CONCLUSION

I N T R O D U C T I O N.

THE distress of prisoners, of which there are few who have not some imperfect idea, came more immediately under my notice when I was Sheriff of the county of Bedford *; and the circumstance which excited me to activity in their behalf was, the seeing some, who by the verdict of juries were declared not guilty; some, on whom the grand jury did not find such an appearance of guilt as subjected them to trial; and some, whose prosecutors did not appear against them; after having been confined for months, dragged back to gaol, and locked up again till they should pay undry fees to the gaoler, the clerk of assize, &c.

INTRODUCTION.

IN order to redress this hardship, I applied to the justices of the county for a salary to the gaoler in lieu of his fees. The bench were properly affected with the grievance, and willing to grant the relief desired : but they wanted a precedent for charging the county with the expence. I therefore rode into several neighbouring counties in search of a precedent ; but I soon learned that the same injustice was practised in them ; and looking into the prisons, I beheld scenes of calamity, which I grew daily more and more anxious to alleviate. In order therefore to gain a more perfect knowledge of the particulars and extent of it, by various and accurate observation, I visited most of the County-Gaols in England.

SEEING in two or three of them some poor creatures whose aspect was singularly deplorable, and asking the cause of it, I was answered, “ they were lately brought from the Bridewells.” This started a fresh subject of inquiry. I resolved to inspect the Bridewells : and for that purpose I travelled again into the counties where I had been ; and, indeed, into all the rest ;, examining Houses of Correction, City and Town-Gaols. I beheld in many of them, as well as in the County-Gaols, a complication of distress : but my attention was principally fixed by the gaol-fever, and the small-pox ; which I saw prevailing to the destruction of multitudes, not only of felons in their dungeons, but of debtors also.

INTRODUCTION.

THE gaol-fever is no new subject of complaint. I remember Stowe, in his Survey *, speaking of the King's-Bench Prison, says, that in the six years preceding the year 1579, an hundred prisoners died there : and twelve between Michaelmas and March of the last-mentioned year, “ through a certain contagion called the sickness of the house ;” and I shall presently have occasion, among the fatal effects of this distemper propagated from prisons, and infecting many abroad, to mention an ancient instance of that sort also. These effects are now so notorious, that what terrifies most of us from looking into prisons, is the gaol-distemper so frequent in them.

UPON this subject I was examined in the House of Commons in March 1774 ; when I had the honour of their thanks. Soon after that, Mr. Popham, Member for Taunton, repeated the humane attempt which had miscarried a few years before ; and brought in a bill for the relief of prisoners who should be acquitted, respecting their fees ; and another bill for preserving the health of prisoners, and preventing the gaol-distemper. They both passed that session. By those acts, the tear was wiped from many an eye ; and the legislature had for them “ the blessing of many that were ready to perish.”

* Vol. II. p. 18.

INTRODUCTION.

THE great honour done me by the House has excited the curiosity of some to inquire what facts I had collected. This is one reason of the present publication: but it is not the only, nor the principal one. There are still remaining many disorders that ought to be rectified: prisoners suffer great hardships, from which I am desirous to set them free: the gaol-fever is not, as I am persuaded it may be, totally eradicated. These are my motives for printing this book. I think it will shew plainly, that much is yet to be done for the regulation of prisons; and I am not without hope, that the present Parliament will finish what was so laudably begun by the last.

I WAS called to the first part of my task by my office. To the pursuit of it I was prompted by the sorrows of the sufferers, and love to my country. The work grew upon me insensibly. I could not enjoy my ease and leisure in the neglect of an opportunity offered me by Providence of attempting the relief of the miserable. The attention of Parliament to the subject, led me to conclude that some additional labour would not be lost; and I extended my plan. The difficulty I found in searching out evidence of fraud and cruelty in various articles, together with other sources of distress, obliged me to repeat my visits, and travel over the kingdom more than once; and after all, I suspect that many frauds have been concealed from me; and that sometimes the interest of my informants prevailed over their veracity.

racity. Besides; as I had in my first journeys gathered, from facts and experience, proofs of the mischievous effects of the want of cleanliness and fresh air, I had in my latter visits these strong arguments to enforce my persuasions; and, in consequence, some gaolers grew at last more mindful and complying, for the sake not only of their prisoners, but of themselves and their own families.

It was not, I own, without some apprehensions of danger, when I first visited the prisons; and I guarded myself by smelling to vinegar, while I was in those places, and changing my apparel afterwards. This I did constantly and carefully when I began; but, by degrees I grew less cautious: not only because use abated the force of noxious impressions upon me, but also on account of the alteration made in some gaols by the act for preserving the health of prisoners. A person may now look into many a prison without gaining an idea of the condition it was in a few years ago. I wish the reformation to be not for the present only, but lasting. If the motive for amendment has any where been merely temporary, there is no doubt but the effect will cease with the cause: those who from such inducement have obeyed, will in future follow the example of others who have disregarded the law; and prisons that have been amended will relapse into their former state.

INTRODUCTION.

As to what is still wrong, I set down matter of fact without amplification; which would in the end rather impede than promote the object of my wishes; that is, the correction of what is really amiss.

THE journeys were not undertaken for the traveller's amusement; and the collections are not published for general entertainment; but for the perusal of those who have it in their power to give redress to the sufferers.

THE writer begs his reader to excuse the frequent egotisms; which he did not know how to avoid, without using circumlocutions that might have been more disgusting.

S E C T I O N I.

GENERAL VIEW OF DISTRESS IN PRISONS.

THERE are prisons, into which whoever looks will, at first sight of the people confined there, be convinced, that there is some great error in the management of them: the fallow meagre countenances declare, without words, that they are very miserable: many who went in healthy, are in a few months changed to emaciated dejected objects. Some are seen pining under diseases, "sick and in prison;" expiring on the floors, in loathsome cells, of pestilential fevers, and the confluent small-pox: victims, I must not say to the cruelty, but I will say to the inattention, of sheriffs, and gentlemen in the commission of the peace.

THE cause of this distress is, that many prisons are scantily supplied, and some almost totally unprovided with the necessaries of life.

THERE

GENERAL VIEW OF

THERE are several Bridewells (to begin with them) in which prisoners have no allowance of FOOD at all. In some, the keeper farms what little is allowed them : and where he engages to supply each prisoner with one or two pennyworth of bread a day; I have known this shrunk to half, sometimes less than half the quantity, cut or broken from his own loaf.

It will perhaps be asked, does not their work maintain them ? for every one knows that those offenders are committed to hard labour. The answer to that question, though true, will hardly be believed. There are very few Bridewells in which any work is done, or can be done. The prisoners have neither tools, nor materials of any kind ; but spend their time in sloth, profaneness and debauchery, to a degree which, in some of those houses that I have seen, is extremely shocking.

SOME keepers of these houses, who have represented to the magistrates the wants of their prisoners, and desired for them necessary food, have been silenced with these inconsiderate words, Let them work or starve. When those gentlemen know the former is impossible, do they not by that sentence, inevitably doom poor creatures to the latter ?

I HAVE asked some keepers, since the late act for preserving

ing the health of prisoners, why no care is taken of their sick: and have been answered, that the magistrates tell them the act does not extend to Bridewells *.

IN consequence of this, at the quarter sessions you see prisoners, covered (hardly covered) with rags; almost famished; and sick of diseases, which the discharged spread wherever they go, and with which those who are sent to the County-Gaols infect these prisons.

THE same complaint, want of food, is to be found in many COUNTY-GAOLS. In about half these, debtors have no bread; although it is granted to the highwayman, the house-breaker, and the murderer; and medical assistance, which is provided for the latter, is withheld from the former. In many of these Gaols, debtors who would work are not permitted to have any tools, lest they should furnish felons with them for escape or other mischief. I have often seen those prisoners eating their water-soup (bread boiled in mere water) and heard them say, "We are locked up and almost starved to death."

As to the relief provided for Debtors by the benevolent

* If the late act does not include Bridewells, it is required, by an act 7th James I. Cap. IV. that "the Masters and Governors of---Houses of Correction shall have "some fit allowance---for the relieving of such as shall happen to be weak and sick "in their custody."

GENERAL VIEW OF

act, 32d of George II. (commonly called the lords act, because it originated in their house) I did not find in all England and Wales (except the counties of Middlesex and Surrey) TWELVE DEBTORS who had obtained from their creditors the four-pence a day, to which they had a right by that act: the means of procuring it were out of their reach. In one of my journeys I found near six hundred prisoners, whose debts were under twenty pounds each: some of them did not owe above three or four pounds: and the expence of suing for the aliment is in many places equal to those smaller debts; for which some of these prisoners had been confined several months.

At Carlisle but one debtor of the forty-nine whom I saw there had obtained his groats: and the gaoler told me that during the time he had held that office, which was fourteen years, no more than four or five had received it; and that they were soon discharged by their creditors neglecting to pay it. No one debtor had the aliment in York Castle, Devon, Cheshire, Kent, and many other counties. The truth is, some debtors are the most pitiable objects in our gaols.

To their wanting necessary food, I must add not only the demands of gaolers, &c. for fees; but also the extortion of bailiffs. These detain in their houses (properly enough denominated spunging-houses) at an enormous expence, prisoners soners who have money. I know there is a legal provision against this oppression; but the mode of obtaining redress (like that of recovering the groats) is attended with difficulty: and the abuse continues. The rapine of these extortioners needs some more effectual and easy check: no bailiff should be suffered to keep a public house*; the mischiefs occasioned by their so doing, are complained of in many parts of the kingdom.

HERE I beg leave to mention the hard case of prisoners confined on exchequer processes; and those from the ecclesiastical courts: the latter are excluded from the privilege of bail; and the former from the benefit of insolvent acts.

FELONS have in some Gaols two pennyworth of bread a day; in some three halfpennyworth; in some a pennyworth; in some a shilling a week: the particulars will be seen hereafter in their proper places. I often weighed the bread in different prisons, and found the penny loaf $7\frac{1}{2}$ to $8\frac{1}{2}$ ounces, the other loaves in proportion. It is probable that when this allowance was fixed by its value, near double the quantity that the money will now purchase, might be bought for

* By the statute 32d George II. it is enacted, that "No sheriff, bailiff, &c.--- shall convey any person arrested---to any public victualling or other drinking-house---without the consent of the person so arrested." Now if the bailiff himself keeps a public house, this seems to preclude the debtor's choice; he must go to a public house, or directly to gaol.

GENERAL VIEW OF

it : yet the allowance continues unaltered : and it is not uncommon to see the whole purchase, especially of the smaller sums, eaten at breakfast : which is sometimes the case when they receive their pittance but once in two days ; and then on the following day they must fast.

THIS allowance being so far short of the cravings of nature, and in some prisons lessened by farming to the gaoler, many criminals are half starved : such of them as at their commitment were in health, come out almost famished, scarce able to move, and for weeks incapable of any labour.

MANY prisons have NO WATER. This defect is frequent in Bridewells, and Town-Gaols. In the felons courts of some County-Gaols there is no water : in some places where there is water, prisoners are always locked up within doors, and have no more than the keeper or his servants think fit to bring them : in one place they are limited to three pints a day each—a scanty provision for drink and cleanliness !

AND as to AIR, which is no less necessary than either of the two preceding articles, and given us by Providence quite gratis, without any care or labour of our own ; yet, as if the bounteous goodness of Heaven excited our envy, methods are contrived to rob prisoners of this genuine cordial of life, as Dr. Hales very properly calls it : I mean by preventing ing that circulation and change of the salutiferous fluid, without which animals cannot live and thrive. It is well known that air which has performed its office in the lungs, is feculent and noxious. Writers upon the subject shew, that a hoghead of it will last a man only an hour: but those who do not choose to consult philosophers, may judge from a notorious fact. In 1756, at Calcutta, in Bengal, out of 170 persons who were confined in a hole there one night, 154 were taken out dead. The few survivors ascribed the mortality to their want of fresh air, and called the place, from what they suffered there, Hell in miniature!

AIR which has been breathed, is made poisonous to a more intense degree by the effluvia from the sick; and what else in prisons is offensive. My reader will judge of its malignity, when I assure him, that my cloaths were in my first journeys so offensive, that in a post-chaise I could not bear the windows drawn up: and was therefore often obliged to travel on horseback. The leaves of my memorandum-book were often so tainted, that I could not use it till after spreading it an hour or two before the fire: and even my antidote, a vial of vinegar, has after using it in a few prisons, become intolerably disagreeable. I did not wonder that in those journies many gaolers made excuses; and did not go with me into the felons wards*.

FROM

* I LEARN from a Letter to Sir Robert Ladbroke, printed in 1771, page 11, that " Dr. Hales, Sir John Pringle, and others have observed, that air, corrupted
" and

GENERAL VIEW OF

FROM hence any one may judge of the probability there is against the health and life of prisoners, crowded in close rooms, cells, and subterraneous dungeons, for fourteen or sixteen hours out of the four and twenty. • In some of those caverns the floor is very damp: in others there is sometimes an inch or two of water; and the straw, or bedding is laid on such floors, seldom on barrack bedsteads. Where prisoners are not kept in underground cells, they are often confined to their rooms, because there is no court * belonging to the prison, which is the case in most City and Town-Gaols: or because the walls round the yard are ruinous, or too low for safety: or because the gaoler has the ground for his own use. Prisoners confined in this manner, are generally unhealthy. Some Gaols have no SEWERS; and in those that have, if they be not properly attended to, they are, even to a visitant, offensive beyond expression: how noxious then to people constantly confined in those prisons!

SEWERS.

ONE cause why the rooms in some prisons are so close,
is

“ and putrified, is of such a subtil and powerful nature, as to rot and dissolve heart “ of oak; and that the walls of buildings have been impregnated with this poison“ ous matter for years together.” The writer quotes for his authority a letter of Sir Stephen Theodore Janssen, which I have not been able to procure.

• AN act made in Ireland the 3d year of his present Majesty, “ for better preventing the severities, &c.” has the following clause: “ Whereas many infectious “ disorders are daily produced by the confinement of numbers in close prisons, “ whereunto there is no back-yard adjoining, and the lives of his Majesty’s subjects
“ are endangered by the bringing of prisoners into public streets for air; Be it is perhaps the window-tax, which the gaolers have to pay : this tempts them to stop the windows, and stifle their prisoners *.

IN many Gaols, and in most Bridewells, there is no allowance of STRAW for prisoners to sleep on ; and if by any means they get a little, it is not changed for months together, so that it is almost worn to dust. Some lie upon rags, others upon the bare floors. When I have complained of this to the keepers, their justification has been, “ The “ county allows no straw ; the prisoners have none but at “ my cost.”

BEDDING.

THE evils mentioned hitherto affect the health and life of prisoners : I have now to complain of what is pernicious to their MORALS ; and that is, the confining all sorts of prisoners together : debtors and felons ; men and women ; the young beginner and the old offender : and with all these, in

MORALS.

“ enacted---That every grand jury at the assizes or quarter sessions---may be enabled,
“ and they are hereby required and directed, to contract either by lease, or to pur“ chase a piece of ground next adjoining the Gaol, or as near as conveniently can “ be had thereto, &c.”

* THIS is also the case in many work-houses and farm-houses, where the poor and the labourer are lodged in rooms that have no light, nor fresh air : which may be a cause of our peasants not having the healthy ruddy complexions one used to see so common twenty or thirty years ago. The difference has often struck me in my various journeys.

some counties, such as are guilty of misdemeanors only; who should have been committed to Bridewell, to be corrected by diligence and labour; but for want of food, and the means of procuring it in those prisons, are in pity sent to such County-Gaols as afford these offenders prison-allowance.

Few prisons separate men and women in the day-time. In some counties the Gaol is also the Bridewell: in others those prisons are contiguous, and the yard common. There the petty offender is committed for instruction to the most profligate. In some Gaols you see (and who can see it without pain?) boys of twelve or fourteen eagerly listening to the stories told by practised and experienced criminals, of their adventures, successes, stratagems, and escapes.

I MUST here add, that in some few Gaols are confined idiots and lunatics. These serve for sport to idle visitants at assizes, and other times of general resort. The insane, where they are not kept separate, disturb and terrify other prisoners. No care is taken of them, although it is probable that by medicines, and proper regimen, some of them might be restored to their senses, and to usefulness in life.

I AM ready to think, that none who give credit to what is contained in the foregoing pages, will wonder at the havoc made by the GAOL-FEVER. From my own observations

in

in 1773 and 1774, I was fully convinced that many more were destroyed by it, than were put to death by all the public executions in the kingdom*. This frequent effect of confinement in prison seems generally understood, and shews how full of emphatical meaning is the curse of a severe creditor, who pronounces his debtor's doom to ROT IN GAOL. I believe I have learned the full import of this sentence, from the vast numbers who to my certain knowledge, some of them before my eyes, have perished in our Gaols.

BUT the mischief is not confined to prisons. Not to mention now the number of sailors, and of families in America, that have been infected by transports, since this mode of punishment is by a late act suspended. Multitudes catch the distemper by going to their relatives and acquaintance in the Gaols: many others from prisoners discharged: and not a few in the courts of judicature.

IN Baker's Chronicle, page 353, that historian mentioning the Assize held in Oxford Castle 1577 (called from its fatal

* I HAVE a Table printed from a large copper-plate, 1772, by Sir Stephen Theodore Janssen, shewing the number of malefactors executed in London for the twenty-three preceding years; and the crimes for which they suffered. I will give an abridgement of it in two tables at the end of the book. In them it will be seen, that the total number of executions in London for those twenty-three years, was 678; the annual average is between 29 and 30. I leave to others the discussion of the question, whether those executions were too numerous, whether all the crimes fatal consequence the Black Affize) informs us, that “all “ who were present died within forty hours: the Lord

“ Chief Baron, the Sheriff, and about three hundred more.”
Lord Chancellor Bacon ascribes this to a disease brought into court by the prisoners; and Dr. Mead is of the same opinion.

THE first of these two authors, Lord Bacon, observes, that “the most pernicious infection next the plague, is the “ smell of the jail; when the prisoners have been long and “ close and nastily kept; whereof we have had, in our time, “ experience twice or thrice; when both the judges that sat “ upon the jail, and numbers of those who attended the “ business, or were present, sickened upon it and died.”*

AT the Lent Affize in Taunton, 1730, some prisoners who were brought thither from Ivelchester Gaol, infected
the court; and Lord Chief Baron Pengelly; Sir James Sheppard, Serjeant; John Pigot, Esq. Sheriff, and some hundreds besides, died of the gaol-distemper. At Axminster, for which it was inflicted (many of which will be distinctly set down) were deserving of death. And it may be left to any one to judge, whether, including debtors and petty offenders, the number of those that died in the several London prisons of the Gaol-Fever, does not exceed the number of those that were executed annually during that time.—I have not the number of executions in all the counties, but am well assured it falls still much shorter of the number that perished in prisons.

* Natural History, Exp. 914.

a little town in Devonshire, a prisoner discharged from Exeter Gaol in 1755, infected his family with that disease : of which two of them died ; and many others in that town afterwards. The numbers that were carried off by the same malady in London in 1750, two judges, the lord mayor, one alderman, and many of inferior rank, are too well known to need the mentioning further particulars.

SIR JOHN PRINGLE observes, that “ jails have often been the cause of malignant fevers ; ” and he informs us, that in the late rebellion in Scotland, above 200 men of one regiment were infected with the jail-fever, by some deserters brought from prisons in England*.

DR. LIND, Physician to the Royal Hospital at Hallar, near Portsmouth, shewed me in one of the wards a number of sailors ill of the gaol-fever ; brought on board their ship by a man who had been discharged from a prison in London. The ship was laid up on the occasion. That gentleman, in his Essay on the Health of Seamen, asserts, that “ The source of infection to our armies and fleets are undoubtedly the jails ; we can often trace the importers of it directly from them. It often proves fatal in impressing men on the hasty equipment of a fleet†. The first

“ 2000 men.” In another place he assures us, that “ the “ seeds of infection were carried from the guard-ships into “ our squadrons—and the mortality, thence occasioned, was “ greater than by all other diseases or means of death put “ together.” * .

IT were easy to multiply instances of this mischief ; but those which have been mentioned are, I presume, sufficient to shew, even if no mercy were due to prisoners, that the Gaol-Distemper is a national concern of no small importance.

THE general prevalence and spread of wickedness in prisons, and abroad by the discharged prisoners, will now be as easily accounted for, as the propagation of disease. It is often said, “ A prison pays no debts ;” I am sure it may be added, that a prison mends no morals. Sir John Fielding observes, that “ a criminal discharged---generally by the “ next sessions after the execution of his comrades, becomes
“ the head of a gang of his own raising.” Improved, no doubt, in skill by the company he kept in gaol : and petty offenders who are committed to Bridewell for a year or two, and spend that time, not in hard labour, but in idleness and wicked company, or are sent for that time to County-Gaols, generally grow desperate, and come out fitted, for the perpetration of any villainy. How directly contrary this to the intention of our laws with regard to these offenders; which certainly is to correct and reform them! Instead of which, their confinement doth notoriously promote and increase the very vices it was designed to suppress. Multitudes of young creatures, committed for some trifling offence, are totally ruined there. I make no scruple to affirm, that if it were the wish and aim of Magistrates to effect the destruction present and future of young delinquents, they could not devise a more effectual method, than to confine them so long in our prisons, those seats and seminaries (as they have been very properly called) of idleness and every vice.

SECT. I. DISTRESS IN PRISONS.

SHALL the regularities, the sources of misery, disease, and wickedness, be endured in a nation celebrated for good sense and humanity; and who from these principles, do treat one sort of prisoners with tenderness and generosity? I mean prisoners of war. These have provision in plenty; some to spare and sell to the soldiers on guard*: we frequently saw

* THE daily allowance to six prisoners was,

9 pounds of bread,

4½ pounds of beef,

3 pints of pease,

6 quarts of beer,

Water plenty.

* On Friday they had not the beef; but a pound and half of butter instead of it.

ON board the men of war, indeed, they were upon short allowance.

GENERAL VIEW OF

their stated allowance hung up for their inspection. Some prisons had large areas for them to walk in; and at night every man had a hammock to himself. It is the farthest thing in the world from my wish to deprive captives of any one of these benefits—I am only desirous of seeing the same humanity shewn to our own countrymen in distress; so that a consistent and uniform practice may prove our benevolence to be a firm and steady principle; and that those who are censorious may find no occasion for ascribing our kind usage of foreigners to a less amiable motive.

HERE it will be said, prisoners of war are not felons, nor yet debtors; and government is sometimes at the end of a war, reimbursed the expence of maintaining them. This latter I believe is fact; and the former is true without dispute: we do not look upon foreign enemies, nor they upon us *, as delinquents: we cut one another to pieces in battle,

* I must not be understood to mean here a compliment to the French. How they treat English prisoners of war, I knew by experience in 1756; when a Lisbon packet (the Hanover) in which I went passenger, in order to make the tour of Portugal, was taken by a French privateer. Before we reached Brest, I suffered the extremity of thirst, not having for above forty hours one drop of water; nor hardly a morsel of food. In the castle at Brest, I lay six nights upon straw: and observing how cruelly my countrymen were used there, and at Morlaix, whither I was carried next; during the two months I was at Carhaix upon parole, I corresponded with the English prisoners at Brest, Morlaix, and Dinnan: at the last of those towns were several of our ship's crew, and my servant. I had sufficient evidence of their being treated with such barbarity, that many hundreds had perished; and tle, but when that is over we grow cool and compassionate. I grant there is a material difference in the circumstances of foreign and domestic prisoners, but there is none in their nature: debtors and felons, as well as hostile foreigners, are men, and by men they ought to be treated as men.

THOSE gentlemen who, when they are told of the misery which our prisoners suffer, content themselves with saying, Let them take care to keep out, prefaced perhaps, with an angry prayer, seem not duly sensible of the favour of Providence which distinguishes them from the sufferers: they do not remember that we are required to imitate our gracious Heavenly Parent, who is “kind to the unthankful and the evil.” They also forget the vicissitudes of human affairs; the unexpected changes to which all men are liable; and that those whose circumstances are affluent, may in time be reduced to indigence, and become debtors and prisoners.

and that thirty-six were buried in a hole at Dinnan in one day. When I came to England, still on parole, I made known to the Commissioners of sick and wounded seamen, the sundry particulars; which gained their attention, and thanks. Remonstrance was made to the French court: our sailors had redress: and those that were in the three prisons mentioned above, were brought home in the first cartel-ships.—A Lady from Ireland, who married in France, had bequeathed in trust with the magistrates of St. Malo's, sundry charities; one of which was a penny a day to every English prisoner of war in Dinnan. This was duly paid; and saved the lives of many brave and useful men. Perhaps what I suffered on this occasion, increased my sympathy with the unhappy people, whose case is the subject of this book.

GENERAL VIEW, &c.

BUT it may be said, enough of the declamatory kind has been written by others. Much it is true, has been written : yet I beg leave to transcribe, a few lines from a celebrated author, which may be thought to come under that description. After representing the calamitous case of prisoners, he goes on to this purpose, “ The misery of Gaols is not “ half their evil ; they are filled with every corruption “ which poverty and wickedness can generate between them ;
“ with all the shameless and profligate enormities that can “ be produced by the impudence of ignominy, the rage of “ want, and the malignity of despair. In a prison the awe
“ of the public eye is lost, and the power of the law is

BESIDES the grievances already mentioned ; there are several bad customs in Gaols, and relating to them, which aggravate the distress of prisoners. I shall enumerate these distinctly, yet concisely.

* The Idler, No. 38.

S E C T I O N II.

BAD CUSTOMS IN PRISONS.

A CRUEL custom obtains in most of our Gaols, which is that of the prisoners demanding of a new comer GARNISH, FOOTING, or (as it is called in some London Gaols) CHUMMAGE. GARNISH. “Pay or strip,” are the fatal words. I say fatal, for they are so to some; who having no money, are obliged to give up part of their scanty apparel; and if they have no bedding or straw to sleep on, contract diseases, which I have known to prove mortal.

IN many Gaols, to the Garnish paid by the new comer, those who were there before make an addition; and great part of the following night is often spent in riot and drunkenness. The gaoler or tapster finding his account in this practice, generally answers questions concerning it with reluctance. Of the Garnish which I have set down to sundry prisons, I often had my information from prisoners who paid it. But I am aware that the sum is sometimes varied by sets of succeeding prisoners, and the different circumstances of a new comer. In some Gaols, if a Felon can pay the Debtor's Garnish (which is commonly more than that of the Felons) he is entitled to partake of the Garnish paid afterwards by new-come Debtors. In some places, this demand has been lately waved: in others, strictly prohibited by the Magistrates.

GAMING. GAMING in various is very frequent: cards, dice, skittles, Mississippi and Porto-bello tables, billiards, fives, tennis, &c. In the country the three first are most common; and especially cards. There is scarce a County-Gaol but is furnished with them: and one can seldom go in without seeing prisoners at play. In London, all the sorts that I have named are in use. I am not an enemy to diverting exercise: yet the riot, brawling, and profaneness, that are the usual consequents of their play; the circumstances of debtors gaming away the property of their creditors, which I know, they have done in some prisons to a considerable amount; accomplishing themselves in the frauds of gamblers, who, if they be not themselves prisoners, are sure to haunt where gaming is practised; hindering their fellow-prisoners who do not play from walking in the yards while they do, of which inconvenience I have heard them complain: these seem to me cogent reasons for prohibiting biting all kinds of gaming within the walls of a prison.

LOADING prisoners with HEAVY IRONS, which make IRONS. their walking, and even lying down to sleep, difficult and painful, is another custom which I cannot but condemn. In some County-Gaols the women do not escape this severity: but in London they do: and therefore it is not necessary in the country. The practice must be mere tyranny; unless it proceed from avarice; which I rather suspect; because county-gaolers do sometimes grant dispensations, and indulge their prisoners, men as well as women, with what they call “the choice of irons,” if they will pay for it.

THE author of the letter to Sir Robert Ladbroke on prisons (particularly on Newgate, which was then to be rebuilt) cites in page 79, the opinion of Lord Coke, Horn’s Mirror of Justice, &c. against this oppression; and adds afterwards, “The learned editor of Hale’s History of the Pleas of the Crown likewise declares, that fetters ought not to be used, unless there is just reason to fear an escape, as where the prisoner is unruly, or makes an attempt to that purpose; otherwise, notwithstanding the common practice of gaolers, it seems altogether unwarrantable, and contrary to the mildness and humanity of the laws of England, by which gaolers are forbid to put their prisoners to any pain or torment.”

THE Gentlemen of the Gaol-Committee, who distinguished themselves by an accurate and zealous inquiry into the abuses practised by gaolers*; in their Report concerning the Fleet Prison, 20th March 1728, after mentioning a petition presented to the Judges by one who had been put in irons by the Wardens, inform us, that the Judges reprimanded the Wardens, and DECLARED, that “a gaoler could not answer the ironing of a man before he was found guilty of a crime.”—To the plea which gaolers use in defence of this practice, that “It is necessary for safe custody,” an answer may be given in the words of Lord Chief Justice King (afterwards Lord Chancellor) to the Wardens of the same prison, when he forbade dungeons, which they had made use of. That Judge DECLARED, “they might raise their walls higher, &c.” See the Report of the same Committee.

THE Marquis Beccaria, in his Essay on Crimes and Punishments, page 75, observes that “Imprisonment being only the means of securing the person of the accused, until he be tried---ought---to be attended with as little severity as possible.” The distress occasioned by chains is increased by

* If the daring character of our felons should seem, after all, to make it necessary to confine them in irons, it would be right, at least, to bring them into court for their trial without irons. cations such confusion and distress, and such shrieks and outcries, as can be better conceived than described. Surely prisoners ought to be conveyed in carts; or else committed at first to the town where the Sessions or Assizes are to be held. And in that town a proper prison ought to be built.

GAOL

GAOL DELIVERY is in some counties BUT ONCE A YEAR. What reparation can be made to a poor creature for the misery he has suffered by confinement in a prison near twelve months (sometimes twice as long) before a trial, in which perhaps he is at last declared by his country not guilty?

THE judicious Marquis whom I quoted but now asserts, that “Privation of liberty being a punishment, “ought not to be inflicted before condemnation, but for as “short a time as possible.” And in cases of guilt, his doctrine is, “The more immediately after the commission of a “crime, a punishment is inflicted, the more just and useful “it will be.” This sentiment is illustrated by a variety of acute remarks in the chapter of the Advantage of immediate Punishment.

ONE cause of Gaol Delivery being so seldom, is in some places the expence of entertaining the Judges and their retinue. At Hull they used to have the Assize but once in seven

seven years. Peacock a murderer was in prison there near three years: before his trial the principal witness died; and the criminal was acquitted. They now have it once in three years.

ALTHOUGH acquitted prisoners are by the late act in their favour * cleared of Gaolers Fees; they are still subject to a similar demand made by CLERKS OF ASSIZE and CLERKS OF THE PEACE †; and detained in prison several days after their acquittal—at Assize, till the Judges—at Quarter Sessions, till the Justices of Peace leave the town; in order to obtain those fees, which the gentlemen say are not cancelled by the act. And yet the express words of it are, Acquitted prisoners “ shall be immediately set at large in open court.” •

ASSIZE, &c.

SINCE the said act the Clerks of Assize in some circuits have started a new demand upon the gaoler for the Judges certificate of acquitment; viz. six shillings and eight-pence for the first prisoner acquitted; and a shilling for each of the rest: or two shillings for every one. I know some of these gentlemen do not make any such demand. Where it is made, some gaolers' refuse to pay it; others submit murmuring. I have copies of two receipts given by the Clerk of the Western circuit to the gaolers of Exeter and Salisbury*.

THE Clerk of the Peace in one county demands as follows:

I WAS informed at Durham, that Judge Gould at the Assize 1775 laid a fine of fifty pounds on the gaoler for detaining some acquitted prisoners, for the fees of the Clerk of Assize. But upon the intercession of the Bishop (proprietor of the Gaol) the fine was remitted; and the prisoners set at large: the Judge ordering the Clerk of Assize to explain to him in London the foundation of his demand.

ONE pretence for detaining acquitted prisoners is, that “ It is possible other indictments may be laid against them

* ONE of them is as follows.

“ RECEIVED 1 April 1775 of Mr. Sherry gaoler one pound eight shillings and “ 8 pence for his certificate entitling him to his gaol fees for the county of Devon “ per

• • • • •

“ Clerk of the Assize.”

THE gaoler told me this was for twenty-three acquitted prisoners.

“ before the Judge leaves the town.” I call it a pretence, because it is often waved upon paying the fees. Another is, the gaoler tells you, “ He takes them back to knock off their irons.” But this may be done in court, in London they have an engine or block, by the help of which they take off the irons with ease in a minute or two; the machine is brought into court, and the acquitted prisoner is immediately discharged. If, according to what I formerly proposed, prisoners were tried out of irons, this pretext would be entirely removed.

CLERKS of Assize, and of the Peace, ought most certainly to have a consideration for their service to the public: and I do not wish to lessen many other emoluments of those gentlemen. The only thing I complain of is, what I am led to by my subject, the demand that is made directly or indirectly upon prisoners.

SOME gaolers live DISTANT from the prison, in houses that do not belong to the county. Non-residence is not consistent with the attention that is requisite for securing the prisoners; and preserving good order, cleanliness, &c.

GAOLERS
DENT.

DEBTORS CROWD the Gaols (especially those in London) with their WIVES and CHILDREN. There are often by this means, ten or twelve people in a middle-sized room: increasing the danger of infection, and corrupting the mo-als of children. This point ought, no doubt, to be treated with tenderness. Man and wife should not be totally separated. Yet the little probability there is of an industrious woman being of much service to her family in a prison : the number of men in the same room ; and of lewd women admitted under the name of wives ; prove that this affair needs some regulation.

GAOLS PRIVATE PROPERTY.

SOME Gaols are PRIVATE PROPERTY : in these the keepers, protected by the proprietors, and not so subject as other gaolers to the controul of magistrates, are more apt to abuse their prisoners, when a temptation offers. One of these Gaols some years ago was quite out of repair, and unsafe ; and the proprietor not choosing to repair it, the gaoler to confine his prisoners took a method, that to all who saw it was really shocking. Some years before that, a prisoner in another of these Gaols was tormented with thumb-screws. The grand jury took up the case, and remonstrated to the proprietor ; but in vain. I had the account from a worthy friend of mine, who was upon that very jury.

OF the complaints which I have hitherto made only in general terms, I shall give instances in the account of particular prisons. To that account I refer, for evidence and fact.

SECT. II.

NUMBER O.

IN the Spring 1776, I summed up carefully the total number of prisoners in the sundry prisons. I have not altered the list since my latter visits, in which I saw the number in several prisons greatly reduced by the insolvent Act. My list was as follows,

	Debtors.	Felons, &c.	Petty Offenders.	Total.
1. IN Middlesex, i.e. London and Westminster; together with three prisons in Southwark, viz. the King's-Bench , Mars-halsea , and Borough-Compter ,	1274	228	194	1696
2. IN the other thirty - nine counties of England,	752	617	459	1828
3. IN the twelve counties of Wales,	67	27	----	94
4. IN City and Town-Gaols,	344	122	----	466

PETTY Offenders in the Welch County-Goals, blank in the third column, third line, are included in the preceding number of Felons 27: most of the Goals in those counties being also the County-Bridewells.

NUMBER OF PRISONERS.

PETTY Offenders, blank in third column, fourth line, are included in the number 459 of Petty Offenders in the thirty-nine County-Gaols; and in the number 122, second column fourth line.

ALL that were in the County-Gaols besides Debtors, I have reckoned in the list of Felons. Although many were Petty Offenders and Fines.

IN the third column, under Petty Offenders are included few Felons occasionally committed to Bridewells.

I HAVE found by carefully examining fundry Gaols, that upon an average two dependants (by which I mean wives and children only *) may be assigned to each man in prison. My computation is confirmed by the account which we have from the Benevolent Society at the Thatched House, October 9th, 1776, as follows. Since their institution in 1772,

Discharged — Debtors,	3980
Persons immediately benefited,	12461

* I do not include Parents, many of whom I have seen sorrowfully attending at prisons, and deeply sharing in the distress arising from the confinement of their children.

And by the account from the Bristol Society; who in their list published May 31st, 1775, have

Persons discharged,	73
Their Wives,	45
----- Children,	120
Total,	238

EACH of these totals is considerably larger than the respective products of multiplication by my rule: the first exceeds by 521, the latter by 19. There is indeed commonly a surplus among Debtors; but a deficiency among Felons, &c. reduces the average of Dependants to that which I stated.

If then to the total number in England and Wales,
that is,	4084
You add twice that number of Dependants,	8168
The number of the distressed is,	12252

IT appears from the foregoing Table of Prisoners, that their number has been greatly magnified by conjectural computations; but surely the real number, with that of those partaking their distress, is an object well worthy the farther attention of the Legislature.

S E C T I O N . .III.

PROPOSED IMPROVEMENTS IN THE STRUCTURE AND MANAGEMENT OF PRISONS.

HOWEVER sanguinary the wish of an angry creditor may be when he arrests and imprisons his debtor; there is no doubt but every one who listens, not to his passions, but to reason, must know, and will own, that it is a flagrant crime to take away the life of a man for debt: and as to felony, a Gaol is not designed for the final punishment even of that; but for the safe custody of the accused to the time of trial; and of convicts till a legal sentence be executed upon them. The laws of England do not suffer private executions. No condemned malefactor may be secretly put to death; nor murdered in a prison directly or indirectly: much less ought those to be destroyed there whose sentence does not affect their life. Their destruction is not only unjust; it is inconsistent with prudence and sound policy. They might no doubt be useful at home or abroad ; if proper care were taken in prison, to keep them healthy and fit for labour : but certain it is, that many of those who survive their long confinement, are by it rendered incapable of working. Some of them are grievously affected with scorbutic distempers ; others have their toes mortified *, or quite rotted from their feet ; many instances of which I have seen.

IF one who has turned King's Evidence, or has been barely acquitted upon trial, terrified by his narrow escape, seeks for honest employment ; he is commonly such a sickly miserable object that no one will set him to work. That, I believe, is the principal cause of his being rejected ; for there are several sorts of labour that require but little confidence : yet the poor acquitted prisoner shall go from door to door asking for work, in vain. Is it not to be lamented, that every spark of good intention, instead of being cherished, should be thus extinguished ? And that the penitent should by an almost irresistible necessity be driven again, though reluctant, to the practice which soon brings him

* MESS^{RS}. Stephenson and Randolph of Bristol, Contractors for Transport Convicts, complained of this to Mr. Biggs, gaoler at Salisbury, in their letter to him Sept. 13, 1774. " Sore feet prove very fatal. The mortality we met with in our last ship, if repeated in this, will so surfeit us, that we shall never take another. We lost an immense sum by them ; and our ship is detained to this moment under quarantine."

back to his former mansion ; and shortens a wretched life, that might have been, that fain would have been, an useful one ?

IN order to redress these various evils, the first thing to be taken into consideration is the Prison itself. Many County-Gaols and other Prisons are so decayed and ruinous, or, for other reasons, so totally unfit for the purpose, that new ones must be built in their stead. Others are very inconvenient, but may be improved upon the ground about them, which is occupied by the keeper, or not used at all. Some need little more than a thorough repair. In order to give what little assistance I can to those who must build a new County-Gaol, I will take the liberty to suggest what hath occurred to me upon this head, in hopes that some more skilful hand will undertake the generous and benevolent task of carrying to perfection a scheme of which I can only draw the outlines. I shall first say something of the

S I T U A T I O N.

A COUNTY-GAOL, and indeed every prison, should be built on a spot that is airy, and if possible near a river, or brook. I have commonly found prisons situated near a river, the cleanest and most healthy. They generally have have not (they could not well have) subterraneous dungeons, which have been destructive to thousands: and by their nearness to running water, another evil, almost as noxious, is prevented, that is, the stench of sewers.

I SAID a Gaol should be near a stream; but I must annex this caution; that it be not so near as that either the house or yard shall be within the reach of floods. This circumstance was so little thought of at Appleby in Westmoreland, when their new Gaol was built, that I saw the walls marked from nine inches to three feet high by floods.

IF it be not practicable to build near a stream, then an eminence should be chosen: for as the walls round a prison-yard must be so high as greatly to obstruct a free circulation of air; this inconvenience should be lessened by a rising ground: and the prison should not be surrounded by other buildings, nor built in the middle of a town or city.

N.

THE annexed engraving represents such a plan for a prison as, according to my ideas, unites the greatest advantages "with regard to health, order, and security. By the assistance of the references it will explain itself better than can be done by a verbal description. I shall only subjoin a few general remarks on some particulars in the structure.

ARCADES. THAT part of the building which is detached from the walls, and contains the men-felons ward, may be square, or rectangular, raised on arcades, that it may be more airy, and leave under it a dry walk in wet weather. Wards over arcades are also best for safety, for I have found that escapes have been most commonly effected by undermining cells * and dungeons. If the felons should find any other means to break out of this raised ward, they will still be stopt by the wall of the yard.

* WHEN I went into Horsham Gaol with the keeper, we saw a heap of stones and rubbish. The felons had been two or three days undermining the foundation of their room, and a general escape was intended that night. We were but just in time to prevent it; for it was almost night when we went in. Our lives were at their mercy: but (thank God) they did not attempt to murder us, and rush out.

I WIST

I WISH to have so many small rooms or cabins in this ward, that each criminal may sleep alone*. If it be difficult to prevent their being together in the day-time, they should by all means be separated at night. Solitude and silence are favourable to reflection; and may possibly lead them to repentance. Privacy and hours of thoughtfulness are necessary for those who must soon leave the world; and in the Old Newgate there were fifteen cells for persons in this situation, which are still left standing, with the design of annexing them to the new building. The like provision for such as return to society, cannot be less needful. One of the writers cited in the note, Bishop Butler, affirms that it is much more so, "since it must be acknowledged, of "greater consequence in a religious, as well as civil respect, "how persons live than how they die."

THE separation I am pleading for, especially at night, would prevent escapes, or make them very difficult: for that is the time in which they are generally planned, and effected. Another reason for separation is, that it would free gaolers from a difficulty of which I have heard them complain: they hardly know where to keep criminals ad-

* SEE the importance of this separation strongly urged in a letter to Sir Robert Ladbroke, printed for Oliver, 1771. KING'S mitted to be evidence for the King. These would be murdered by their accomplices if put among them; and in more than one prison, I have seen them, for that reason, put in the women's ward.

WHERE there are opposite windows they should have shutters; but these should be open all day. In the men-felons ward there should be no glass; nor should the prisoners be allowed to stop the windows with straw, &c.

WOMEN-FELONS.

THE women-felons should be quite separate from the men*; and young criminals from old and hardened offenders. Each of these three classes should also have their day-room or kitchen; and their court-yard and offices all separate.

PUMP.

EVERY court should be paved for the more convenient washing it; and have a good pump, or pipes laid in; both if possible: and the Pump and Pipes should be repaired as soon as they need it; otherwise the Gaols will soon be offensive and unwholesome, as I have always found them to be in such cases. A small stream constantly running in the

* By an Act made in Ireland, 3d of his present Majesty, it is enacted, "That in all Gaols hereafter to be built, there may be distinct apartments for the men and women; and that all Gaolers, whose Gaols will at present admit of such a distinction, may be obliged to separate and keep apart the different sexes."

yard is very defireable. In a room or shed near the pump or pipe, there should be a Bath * (as there is in County-Hospitals) to wash prisoners that come in dirty, or grow dirty afterwards. It should be filled every morning, and let off in the evening through the privies into the drains. There should also be a copper in the shed, to heat a quantity of water sufficient to warm that in the bath; for washing those that are sickly. There should likewise be an Oven: nothing so effectually destroys vermin in cloaths and bedding, nor purifies them so thoroughly when tainted with infection, as being a few hours in an oven moderately heated †.

BATH.

OVEN.

THE Infirmary or sick wards should be in the most airy part of the yard, quite detached from the rest of the Gaol, and raised on arcades. In the middle of the floor of each room there should be a grate of twelve or eighteen inches square, for a current of air; covered with a shutter or hatch at night. The same contrivance might also be convenient in the other wards. Besides the grate, it is necessary to have in the wards, but especially in those of the infirmary, Hand-Ventilators to freshen them every day. This machine is of excellent use when most wanted, and when the wind or sail-ventilator is of no service, that is, in calm weather.

LATOR.

Doctor Hales, on the subject, page 12, shews that it will supply seventy-five tons of air in a minute.

• THE infirmary and sheds will not render the yard unsafe, provided the walls have parapets, or small chevaux de frise.

SEPARATION
AND FELONS.

DEBTORS and felons should have wards totally separate : the peace, the cleanliness, the health and morals of debtors cannot be secured otherwise. The Act 22d and 23d Charles II. Chapter 20, requires this separation at night ; that debtors may not be disturbed by the curses and other profane language of felons : “ Be it enacted,-- That they shall “ be put, kept, and lodged separate and apart one from “ another, in distinct rooms.” These words do perhaps in the strict construction imply no more than nocturnal separation. But surely it is a far greater mischief for debtors to be annoyed and corrupted by the wicked conversation of felons all day long, than to be disturbed by it in the night-time. I am not designing to infer from hence, nor yet from the character of the Gentlemen who composed that Parliament, that the Act should be construed according to my view of the argument ; or to what I conjecture was their intention. I know it is wrong to explain laws by such a vague principle as the supposed spirit of them. But it seems to me necessary that there should be a total separation. These different sorts of prisoners are indeed generally separated at night. I do not recollect more than two or three Gaols where where they lodge together, viz. Brecon, Portsmouth, the Borough-Compter, and Clerkenwell Bridewell. I must now add Tothillfields Bridewell, where petty debtors are confined, because Westminster Gatehouse is taken down. Constant separation is desirable: the Gaol will by that means be kept cleaner: and if the small-pox, or the gaol-fever, should infect one ward, the other at a distance may be free from it. This would also remove the objection that is now made against permitting debtors to work: that is, the danger of their furnishing felons with tools for mischief, or escape.

IN the debtors ward there should be a day-room or kitchen; also a large Work-shop for such as are willing to WORK-SHOP. work. Some few Gaols have the latter; and in them I have seen chair-makers, shoe-makers, &c. employed in their several trades; preserving their habit of industry; contributing to the support of their families; and lightening the burthen that by their imprisonment falls on the respective parishes.

PRISONERS indicted for felony should not be compelled to work. But I have heard many of them wishing they might be permitted to earn something for their more comfortable support. In some few Gaols they have this privilege, as at Exeter, Norwich, &c.

WOMEN-
DEBTORS.

WOMEN-DEBTORS should have a ward, a court, a pump, &c. to themselves : and no communication should be allowed between the two sexes.

WARD.

THE Ward for Men-Debtors should also be over arcades, and placed on one side of the gaoler's house. This house should be in or near the middle of the Gaol, with windows to the felons and the debtors court-yard.

CHAPEL.

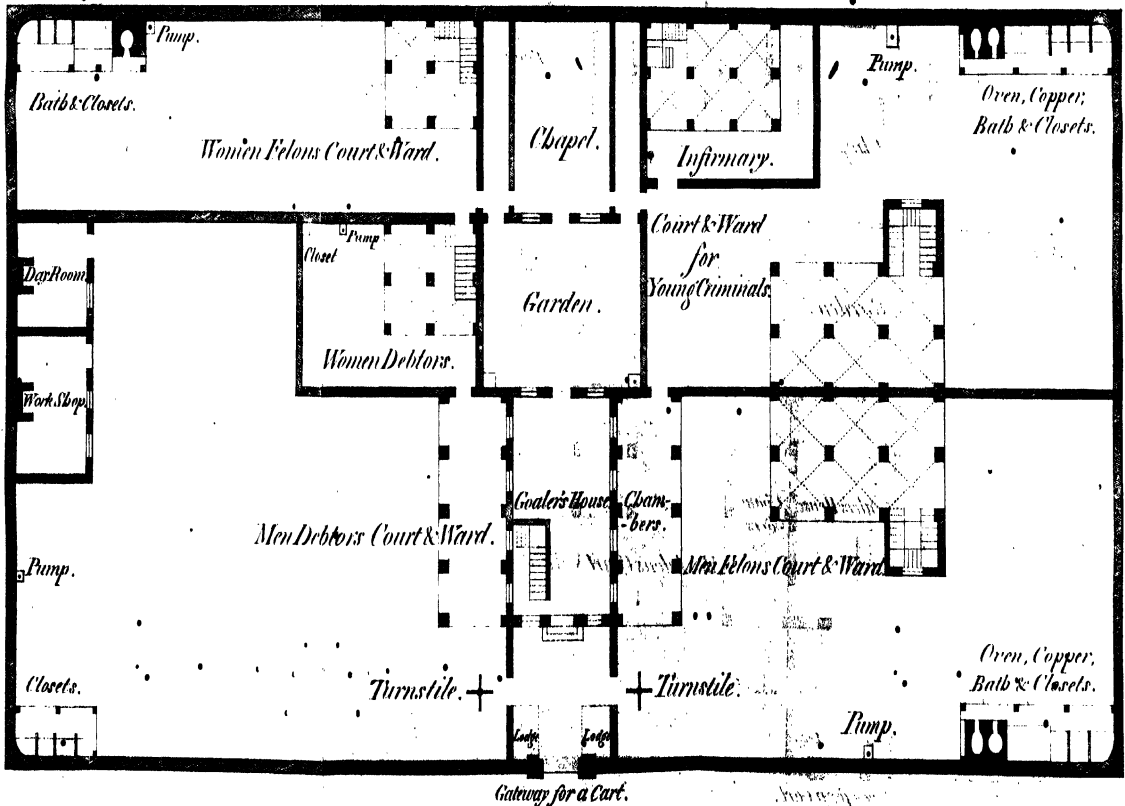

A CHAPEL is necessary in a Gaol. I have chosen for it what seems to me a proper situation. It should have a gallery for debtors or women ; and the rest may be separated below. Bibles and ~~Prayer~~-books should be chained at convenient distances on each side : those who tear or otherwise damage them should be punished.

A PLAN for a COUNTY GAOL.

Size of the Whole, & Proportion of the Parts, to be determined by the general Number of Prisoners.

R E G U L A T I O N S.

WITHOUT a due attention to the oeconomy and government of a Prison, it is evident that no contrivance of structure can secure it from being the abode of wickedness, disease, and misery ; I shall therefore offer a few hints for the better regulation of a Gaol.

THE first care must be to find a good man for a Gaoler ; GAOLER. one that is honest, active, and humane. Such was Abel Dagge, who was formerly keeper of Bristol Newgate. I regretted his death, and revere his memory.

THIS officer must be sober himself, that he may, by example, as well as authority, restrain drunkenness, and other vices in his prison. To remove a strong temptation to the contrary, it is highly requisite that no Gaoler, Turnkey, or other servant be suffered to hold the Tap; or to have any connexion, concern, or interest whatever in the sale of liquors of any kind. Gaolers who hold, or let, the tap, find their account in not only conniving at, but promoting drunkenness and midnight revels. What profligate and debauched company of both sexes, do we see let into our Gaols, that the TAP may be kept running! Besides this, the Gaoler's interest in the sale of liquors, may prompt him to be partial in his behaviour to his prisoners; to treat at least with neglect, those who are poor and have nothing to spend; which is the case of far the greater number: while he shall carelessly dishonest debtors, who take shelter in a prison, in order to live there in riot upon the property of their creditors.

I KNOW that by the statute of 32d George II. a Debtor has a right to send out of the Gaol for liquor and other necessaries*. This is a very judicious provision; and very beneficial to prisoners where they have the full and free use of it. But some Gaolers there are, who find ways to restrain this privilege, for the profits of their tap: whereas if Gaolers were prohibited from all concern in the sale of liquor, this would not only remove that check, and restore to prisoners the free enjoyment of the liberty they are entitled to;

* "At his free will and pleasure, to send for, or to have brought to him--- at seasonable times in the day time, any beer, ale, victuals, or any other necessary food."

but would also be the means of suppressing much Intemperance; and perhaps of entirely abolishing Garnish, as well as Clubs or night associations.

THAT it is necessary to deprive Gaolers of all profits arising from the Tap, I am convinced, not by mere speculation, but by what I have learned from conversation with Gaolers themselves. I asked two of them, whom I found candid and intelligent, “ what they thought would be the “ most likely means of effecting a thorough reformation in “ Gaols.” The answer I had from both, was to this purpose, “ Let no licences be granted for selling beer or wine “ in Gaols: let it be made some other way worth our while “ to keep them.”

GAOLERS should have salaries proportioned to the trust and trouble; since no office, if faithfully and humanely administered, better deserves an adequate encouragement: yet not so much as to raise them above attention to their duty, and the daily inspection of their Gaols.

THE Gaol-Committee, which I have mentioned before, in their Report of the Marshalsea Prison, 14 May 1729, after enumerating many mischiefs which they found had been occasioned by the Gaoler's holding or letting the tap, draw the following conclusion; “ This shews the inconveniency “ of the Keepers having the advantage of the Tap-house, “ since to advance the rent thereof, and to consume the li-

WHEN I was in Ireland (January 1775) I found, not without some surprize, that no liquors were sold in any of the prisons which I saw. Upon inquiry, I learned that there is an Act against it, made in the third year of his present Majesty*.

No Prisoner should be a Turnkey. It is the Gaoler's duty to inspect the wards himself every day, and not to leave this to servants†. The Magistrates of

* THE preamble runs thus, “ Whereas many frauds and abuses have been committed by Gaolers---brewing of drink, and baking of bread, which they oblige “ their prisoners to take from them at their own rates---Be it enacted---that no “ Gaoler or any person in trust for him, shall brew or bake in the Gaol---or in any “ place---for sale, or keep any shop for the selling of bread, or beer, or ale, or “ other liquors, under the penalty of five pounds for every such offence.”

† In my first journeys many County-Gaolers excused themselves from going with me into the Felons Ward. In one County-Gaol the Felons told me once and again that the Gaoler had not been in their ward for months. I would not have quoted a report from Felons, if the Turnkey, who was present, had not confirmed their testimony.

Glasgow * have expressly ordered that “ The Gaoler every morning and evening, at the opening of, and before the shutting up the prison, shall personally visit every room and place therein.”

He must encourage and promote cleanliness. For this reason an old or infirm man should not be a Gaoler: when that is the case, all is commonly dirty. He should be compassionate to the sick. If he is ordered to distribute the allowance, he must do justice to the county or city, and to his prisoners, by giving to the latter the full stated quantity.

I HAVE said before, a Gaoler should not live at a distance from his prison †. He should not only reside on the spot, but be constantly at home. Prisoners generally take advantage from his absence. For this reason, no Keeper of a Prison should be a Sheriff's Officer. Such are very often abroad; and some of them have acknowledged to me, that their business as Officers was incompatible with their duty as Gaolers.

CHAPLAIN.. I HAD the pleasure to find a Chaplain appointed to most of the County-Gaols; in consequence of the Act made 13th of his present Majesty. When this office is vacant, it behoves Magistrates not to take the first Clergyman who offers his service, without regarding his real character. They should choose one who is in principle a Christian: who will not content himself with officiating in public; but will converse with the prisoners; admonish the profligate; exhort the thoughtless; comfort the sick; and make known to the condemned that Mercy which is revealed in the Gospel.

IN the Life of Bernard Gilpin, page 173, the writer, speaking of his labours, informs us, that “where-ever he came, he used to visit all the Jails and places of confinement; few in the kingdom having at that time * any appointed Minister.” And by his affectionate address “he

In the next reign he was promoted to the rich living of Houghton in Northumberland: and it was there he laboured, as is said above.

. IN some prisons where there is a Chaplain appointed, no worship is fixed for Sunday : in some where that day is fixed, the Chaplain, choosing his hours, comes sometimes too soon in the morning, sometimes between morning and evening service, at the prisoners dinner-time : in some there is no fixed day at all. It would be proper to have sermon and prayers once at least on the Lord's Day : and prayers two fixed days in the week besides. And if a Chapter of the New Testament were read daily in order by one of the prisoners to the rest, or by the Gaoler *, before the distribution of prison allowance, the time would not be mispent. The reader, if a prisoner, might be allowed a small weekly pension. The Gaoler should not, as some do, hinder any prisoner from attending divine service. He ought to remove every hindrance : and, on Sunday especially, no visitants should be admitted during that time. Visitants who are there before, should go out or attend.

UPON asking at more places than one, “ why there were so few prisoners at prayers,” I have been answered, “ they are drinking with their friends.” The Gaoler should be constant at Chapel with his prisoners ; and set a good example for them to follow. The Chaplain who officiates in the Gaol may also be employed at the Bridewell, where the distance will allow; and preach once a Sunday in each prison.

It perhaps will be said, that I propose a great deal of duty to these gentlemen. The Act just recited allows a sum not exceeding fifty pounds a year for their services. Many counties have fixed that salary; but I should hope that Clergymen might be found who would act from a much nobler motive, a regard to the most important interests of their fellow-creatures.*

SURGEON. THE late Act for preserving the health of prisoners requires that an experienced Surgeon or Apothecary be appointed to every Gaol: a man of repute in his profession. His business is, in the first place, to order the immediate removal of the sick to the Infirmary. Their irons should be taken off; and they should have, not only medicines, but also diet suitable to their condition. He must diligently and daily visit them himself; not leaving them to journeymen and apprentices. He should constantly inculcate the necessity of cleanliness and fresh air; and the danger of crowding prisoners together. I need not add, that he must report to the Justices at each Quarter Sessions, a state of the health of the prisoners under his care.

AT Newgate there are commonly about two hundred prisoners.

soners. Here the danger to them, and to the city from them, is great. To this capital prison in the metropolis, the Magistrates would, in my humble opinion, do well to appoint a Physician, a Surgeon, and Apothecary. One of the two latter to visit each ward in the prison every day. The two Compters are near enough to be taken care of by the same gentlemen; and they need to be visited as constantly. This attention would, in all probability, prevent the spread of any infectious disease in those Gaols; and stop the mouths of County-Gaolers, who, when their prisons are infected, tell you (as I have often heard them) “The distemper was brought from Newgate by prisoners removed from thence by habeas corpus.”

NO Prisoner should be subject to any demand of Fees. FEES.
 The Gaoler should have a salary in lieu of them; and so should the Turnkeys. Their wages should not be included in the Gaoler's salary: and not only their pay, but the number of them necessary for each prison, should be determined by the Magistrates. Neither of those articles should be left to the interested appointment of a Gaoler. If fees be not abolished, I am sure they should be reduced; and so should the Chamber Rents for Master-side Debtors. In this matter (of the Chambers) another regulation is also needful; that is, no middle-sized room should have more beds than two. The bedding and other furniture should be specified as to articles and value.

WARD.

FOR Common-side Debtors there should be a ward entirely free : they should not be subject to any demand of rent ; as in many prisons they are. These prisoners should either be 'alimented by their creditors without expence and delay ; or have from the county the same allowance of every kind (at least) as felons : food, bedding, and medicine.

NESS.

IN order to CLEANLINESS, than which scarce any thing in the whole oeconomy of a Gaol is of more importance, every ward and room should be well scraped ; and then washed with lime and water during the act of effervescence*, at least twice a year ; just after the Lent and Summer Assize. Each ward and room should be swept, and washed, every day, by the respective inhabitant ; and some times with hot vinegar. Idle Gaolers affect to excuse their negligence in this respect, by pretending that daily washing would make the rooms too damp, and endanger the health of prisoners. This is mere pretence : the effect is directly contrary. There is not in England a prison more healthy, considering the number of prisoners of the lowest sort, than Tothillfields Bridewell ; where the rooms are washed every day. The prisoners do the work by turns : and the healthiness of the prison is a demonstration, that no inconvenience, but great benefit, is the consequence. In Newgate, the prisoner who sweeps the ward has a double allowance of bread. Every prisoner should be obliged to wash his hands, and face before he comes for his daily allowance; and to keep himself as neat as circumstances will admit *. I have said before, there should be plenty of water in a prison; and need not add now, that prisoners should constantly have free and easy access to it.

EVERY prisoner who comes to Gaol dirty, should be washed in the cold or warm bath; and his cloaths should be put into the oven, in a sack on a pair of iron dogs. He should be provided with coarse washing cloaths to wear while his own are thus purifying: washing cloaths should be kept ready in the Gaol for this purpose. Each prisoner should have a clean shirt once a week. There should be in each ward a towel on a roller clean every day. Pails, mops,

* SIR JOHN PRINGLE, in his last Anniversary Discourse at the Royal Society, on the subject of Captain Cook's successful care of the ship's crew in his Voyage round the World; and the medal deservedly adjudged to him on that account, has the following passage at page 26. "It is well known how much Cleanliness conduces "to health; but it is not so obvious how much it also tends to good order and other "virtues. That diligent officer was persuaded---that such men as he could induce "to be more cleanly than they were disposed to be of themselves, became at the "same time more sober, more orderly, and more attentive to their duty." This remark is confirmed by an observation in the Spectator, No. 631, "Several "vices, destructive both to mind and body, are inconsistent with the habit of "Cleanliness."

brooms, soap, vinegar, and fuel for the oven, should be supplied by the county or town: otherwise Gaols will never be kept clean and wholesome.

No stable or dunghill should be suffered in the yard*; nor any fowls kept there, which I have often seen not only in the yards, but also in the rooms of many prisons. Sweepings, ashes, &c. should be taken away every week.

BEDDING. IF the bedding is straw, it should be put in coarse canvass; if it is not so enclosed, it ought to be changed every week. Each bed should have a coarse coverlid or two.

PRISONERS should not remain in the day-time in the little rooms or cabins in which they sleep: they should have a common ward, day-room or kitchen.

FOOD. THOSE who drink only water, and have no nutritious

* THE Act of Parliament in Ireland, which I mentioned in a former note, orders that " No Gaoler or any person employed by him, shall presume on any account to keep in the said Gaols, or the yard, or the houses adjoining thereto, and " provided for the use of such prisoners, any hogs, cows, or other cattle, under the " penalty of forty shillings for such hog, cow, or other beast kept in the said Gaol " or Prison."

liquor, ought to have at least a pound and half of bread every day. The bread should be one day old, and then honestly weighed to them. If once a week (suppose on Sunday) some of the coarser pieces of beef were boiled in the copper, and half a pound of the meat without bone given to each prisoner, with a quart of the broth, and then only one pound of bread, this Sunday Dinner might be made an encouragement to peaceable and orderly behaviour: the turbulent and refractory should not have it. Such an allowance, might help to remove a bad custom that obtains too generally, the pretence of refreshing prisoners with better food and drink on Sunday; upon which many are admitted into the Gaols, and keep the prisoners from Chapel.

I STATE the allowance in weight, not money, because of the variable price. Besides that quantity of bread, each prisoner should have a penny a day in money for cheese, butter, potatoes, pease, or turnips: or he should have a pennyworth of one of those articles.

HERE, as in the tap, I must insist upon it as highly necessary, that every Gaoler, Bridewell-Keeper, Turnkey, &c. be excluded from all concern in the prisoners allowance; from all profit arising directly or indirectly from the sale of their bread, or other food. Whoever distributes it, should be free from all temptation to fraud; and be subject to a strong check *. The whole allowance of prisoners should never be given them in money.

* THE Reader will plainly see, that I am not an advocate for extravagant and profuse allowance to prisoners. I plead only for necessities, in such a moderate quantity, as may support health and strength for labour. The law allows the poor debtor who is detained in prison, two shillings and four-pence per week † (I wish it were more easily obtained) and the government allowance to assize convicts under sentence of transportation is a little more, viz. two shillings and six-pence; which the Sheriff charges to Government in his bill of cravings, presented at the expiration of his office. And I believe upon the average price of bread, potatoes, &c. the allowance I have mentioned does not exceed those sums. I presume it may be thought rather incongruous to allow prisoners before trial (on which some of them may be found not guilty) less than is given to those that are convicted.

QUARRELS.

NO FIGHTING should be suffered in a Gaol: no quarrelling, or abusive language; nor the frequent occasion of them, gaming. If any one be injured, let him complain to the Keeper, who should hear both parties face to face, decide the matter, and punish the aggressor by closer confinement. Faults that deserve more severe animadversion, should be reserved for the cognizance of the Magistrates, or an inspector : of whom presently.

MONEY sent, collected, or bequeathed, should be distributed by the Magistrates. Some of it might be laid out in tools, &c. for such debtors as will work.

DONATIONS
LEGACIES.

THE mention of LEGACIES reminds me of the need there is of a list of them painted legibly on a board ; which should be hung up so as to be read by the prisoners. Very few Gaols have such a table : and for want of it many Legacies have been entirely lost ; and the charitable intention of the Testators frustrated. Yet care of legacies is expressly required by the Act 32d George II.

IN the like conspicuous manner should be hung up in every Gaol an authentic TABLE OF FEES, till they are abolished. This also is expressly required by the same Act. Yet in many Gaols it is totally disregarded, and they have no such tables.

required, that every Gaoler, Keeper, Master, &c. shall procure one or more copies of the three clauses * which contain the several articles of the prohibition, to be printed or fairly written, and hung up in one of the most public places of the Prison or Work-house, and renewed as occasion required, under the penalty of forty shillings for every default.

THERE should also be a list of the ALLOWANCE to prisoners: for want of which I have known them defrauded of a considerable part of their food: the whole of which is nowhere more than sufficient. The same list should exhibit the particulars of bedding, or straw.

THE ACT for preserving the health of prisoners requires that it be painted on a board, &c. as aforesaid: not merely written or printed on paper, because that is more perishable, and

* IN the prohibiting clauses, a fine of one hundred pounds is laid upon any Gaoler, Keeper, Master, &c. who shall sell, use, lend, or give away any such liquors; or knowingly permit them to be sold, used, &c. in the House; except they be prescribed by a regular Physician, Surgeon, or Apothecary, to be used medicinally. And a fine of ten pounds to twenty pounds, or any time not exceeding three months imprisonment, for any person who shall bring such liquors into the House. One moiety of these fines, as well as of that mentioned above, to the informer: the other moiety of each of the two smaller fines to the prisoners; or, in the Work-house, to the poor.

and liable to be torn*. The Rules for Cleanliness, and Orders against Garnish, Gaming, Drunkenness, Quarreling, Profaneness and Obscenity, should also be visibly exhibited; with the penalties for each of those crimes. The penalties should be fixed by the Magistrates, or by law. The table should also shew the hours of opening and shutting the several wards; and of attending public worship. Besides setting down these hours in a table, notice should be given of them by a bell, as in the dock-yards. I have known prisoners absent from Chapel, who said they would have been there, but did not know the service was performing.

It is expressly required by the Act 32d George II. that Rules and Orders made, signed, and confirmed, as the Table of Fees, be drawn up for every Prison †, and hung up conspicuously in it for inspection of prisoners. Yet in many

I DO not remember to have seen the clauses hung up in any Work-house. I shall in the sequel mark the numerous prisons that have the same defect: I could also have mentioned prisons in which, notwithstanding the Act, spirituous liquors are used: and I could even name Gaolers who find ways to evade the Act; and do themselves sell such liquors to their prisoners.

* I MENTION this circumstance, that may seem trifling, as I know the disposition of prisoners to destroy the copies of the clauses against spirituous liquors.

many Prisons neither Fees nor Orders are to be seen: the latter in very few.

• FINALLY, The care of a Prison is too important to be left wholly to a Gaoler; paid indeed for his attendance, but often tempted by his passions, or interest, to fail in his duty. To every prison there should be an Inspector appointed; either by his colleagues in the magistracy, or by Parliament*. Sheriffs and Magistrates have indeed this power already; and prisons are their immediate care. But some Sheriffs excuse themselves from attention to this part of their duty, on account of the short duration, expence, and trouble of their office: and those Gentlemen, as well as Gentlemen in the Commission of the Peace, have no doubt been fearful of the consequence of looking into prisons. But the danger from such inspection is in great measure removed: and it may be expected that Sheriffs will now engage in this business; and that among Justices, and Town-Magistrates, there may always be found one man generous enough to undertake this important service. Or if the constant trouble be thought too much for one person, it may proceed by annual, quarterly, or monthly rotation. The Inspector should make his visit once in a week, or at most in a fortnight; changing his days. He should take with him a memorandum of all the rules, and inquire into the observance or neglect of them. He should (as is done in some of our Hospitals) look into every room, to see if it be clean, &c. He should speak with every prisoner; hear all complaints; and immediately correct what he finds manifestly wrong: what he doubts of, he may refer to his brethren in office, at their next meeting. A good Gaoler will be pleased with this scrutiny: it will do him honour, and confirm him in his station. In case of a less worthy Gaoler, the examination is more needful, in order to his being reprimanded; and, if he be incorrigible, to his being discharged. This Honourable Delegate should have no salary: he should engage from the noble motive of doing justice to prisoners, and service to his country.

I HAVE often inquired of Gaolers whether the Sheriffs, Justices, or Town-Magistrates inspected their Gaols. Many of the oldest have answered, "None of those Gentlemen ever looked into the dungeons, or even the wards of my

thus negligent of their duty, a general thorough reformation

IF our Bridewells be not more properly conducted, sending prisoners from them to County-Gaols will defeat all the care of the most attentive Gaolers, and the whole intention of the Act for preserving the health of prisoners; and discharged offenders will spread disease and vice where-ever they go; and instead of being amended, become an aggravated evil to society.

IT is a shocking thing to destroy in prison the morals; the health, and (as is often done) the lives of those whom the law consigns only to hard labour and correction. One is charged with bastardy: another is abusive in a drunken quarrel: a young creature, who perhaps was never taught a moral lesson, is guilty of some petty theft: send them to Bridewell for a year, or two, which they must consume in idleness, hunger, dirt, with companions much improved by such education — If that prison be not secure, send them into still worse company, that of abandoned felons in the County-Gaol — What is this but devoting them to destruction?

EVERY county and town that has a Bridewell should be careful to see, first of all, that it be suitable to the purpose. In many places the County-Gaol is also a Bridewell. But this prison ought to be quite separate from the Gaol; at least not within the same walls: nor should even the courtyard be common to both. The building must be proportioned to the general number of delinquents. None of the rooms for confinement should be lower than the ground-floor: rather a story above it. Each work-room should have a thorough-fare for air: but the opposite windows need not be equal; the back windows half the size of those in front, and six feet from the floor. Few or none of the windows should have glass; only shutters; and these should be open several hours in the day. In the court-yard (for such is necessary in every prison *) there should be a pump, or some other provision for water in plenty. And prisoners should be permitted to walk about, when they have done working.

FOR in work they ought, most certainly, to be employed. This is indispensibly requisite. Not one who is not sick should be idle. Where the prisoners are numerous, there should be several work-rooms; and but few prisoners in one room. Those who work by compulsion are more likely to be seduced to idleness in large companies, than when they are more by themselves. The Keeper should be a master of some manufacture †; a man of activity *, prudence, and temper. And he should keep his prisoners at work ten hours a day; meal-times included.

For women, especially those that have children with them, and sometimes at the breast, there should be a chimney in one or two rooms: and in winter firing should be allowed. I have known infants starved to death for want of this. In some prisons the smoke has no vent but at the doors and windows. In some Bridewells there should be a separate little room or two for faulty apprentices, as at Totbillyfields, and Clerkenwell. In all, two airy wards for the sick, with medical relief. Men and women should have work-shops, as well as night-rooms, separate†. There should be baths, and an oven, for the same purposes as in the Gaols. In some County-Bridewells there are from twenty to thirty prisoners, and in Tothillfields and Clerkenwell many more. Great care should be taken to prevent infection; to keep the House clean, and well aired; and invariably to adhere to strict rules of sobriety and diligence, in order to correct the faults of prisoners, and make them for the future useful to society. Gentle discipline is commonly more efficacious than severity; which should not be exercised but on such as will not be amended by lenity. These should be punished by solitary confinement on bread and water, for a time proportioned to their fault. The Keeper should, by all means, reside in the House. He should not be suffered to farm any part of the allowance; nor to sell liquor, or any thing else. The whole management should be frequently inquired into, in the same manner as that of a Gaol, and by the same Inspectors.

* It was remarked that a Gaoler should not be an old or infirm person; the same caution is requisite with regard to the Keeper of a Bridewell; since such an one would neither be able to keep the prisoners properly at work, nor to prevent their making their escape at the time of locking up, as I knew to happen at Preston in Lancashire, and other places.

I KNOW not any reason why a House of Correction may not be conducted with as much regularity, as any other house where the family is equally numerous. Some foreign Bridewells are so conducted. Let the sober and diligent be distinguished by some preference in their diet, or lodging; or by shortening the term of their confinement; and giving them, when discharged, a good character. This last will be a strong incitement to good behaviour. The common diet should be at least as good and as much as that of felons in a Gaol. The hours of rising, of reading a chapter in the bible, or prayers, of meals, of work, &c. should all be fixed by the magistrates, and notice of them given by a bell.

A BRIDEWELL under proper regulation would contribute not a little towards its own maintenance. An exact account should be kept of the profit of the work ; and all of it applied to common benefit ; not left to the disposal of Keepers : for some of them in the few Bridewells where work is done, keep to themselves a sixth part, some half and some the whole of the prisoners earnings ; giving them only the short county-allowance, and sometimes but part of that. When I said all the earnings should go to common stock, I meant it of the stated hours for working. Those who will employ themselves in extra-hours, should have the profit to themselves. And perhaps it might be an encouragement to diligence in the stated hours, to give them some small portion of the profit of these also. With regular oeconomy, Prisoners would be better nourished, and fitter for labour, than they now are ; and yet the county not burthened with much, if any, additional expence. But a building fit for the intencion ought first to be provided.

THE charge of this, as well as of a proper Gaol, will no doubt, be complained of. But if that be weighed against the benefit that will accrue to the public, it will be found but light. Besides that ought not to be allowed as a valid objection, the occasion of which should have been removed long ago. Why have some Prisons been suffered to become ruinous; so that many rooms in them are unsafe, and prisoners are crowded together in the few that remain? Why were not the walls of the yards repaired in time, that prisoners might with safety be allowed the proper use of them? Money, to the amount of thousands is not withheld when Shire-halls and Town-halls are wanted. These we often see grand and elegant Edifices. Why should it be spared when the morals and lives of multitudes are at stake; and when it is impossible the design of the Legislature should be answered without it? I mean amending the manners of Petty Offenders; preventing the increase of felonies, and the spread of diseases. That the two latter, instead of being prevented, are promoted by the present irregularity of Bridewells, is notorious. Prescription founded on culpable negligence should not be admitted in bar of a demand, which every principle of equity, humanity, and utility conspires to enforce,*

I HAVE only farther to add under this head, that the management of Bridewells is now a matter of more than ordinary concern, since offenders are at present committed to them for terms so long as from three to ten years. Most of these persons would probably have been sentenced to transportation when that mode of punishment was in use.

* THE Marquis Beccaria closes his 30th chapter with this maxim. "The punishment of a crime cannot be just, (that is necessary) if the Laws have not endeavoured to prevent that crime by the best means which times and circumstances would allow."

I HAD taken some pains to make inquiries concerning the state of transports, with regard to whom many cruelties and impositions were commonly practised, and whose condition was in many respects equally contrary to humanity and good policy: I flattered myself that I had discovered means of remedying these evils in a considerable degree, and of disburthening the counties of a heavy expence with which they were charged; and was preparing to lay them before the Public, when a new turn was given to the matter by Act of Parliament *.

* 16th of George III. Cap. XLIII. An Act to authorise, for a limited Time, the Punishment by hard Labour of Offenders who, for certain Crimes, are or shall become liable to be transported to any of his Majesty's Colonies and Plantations.

I WENT one Sunday in October last to see the Men-Convicts on board the Justitia near Woolwich. I wished to have found them more healthy; and their provision good of the sort; and to have joined with them in divine service. But as the scheme is new, and temporary, I am not willing to complain.

PROPOSED IMPROVEMENTS.

SINCE this has taken place, I suppress what I had written; and shall only give, at the end of my book, a list of the numbers delivered from Newgate for transportation in the course of three years. This will shew, in a very alarming light, the danger there may be in future of crowding our prisons, so as to produce the most destructive consequences.

I CANNOT conclude this Section without attempting to obviate some objections that may occur to the improvements proposed in it. It may be said, that from the many conveniences suggested in the structure of Gaols, and the removal of those hardships which rendered them so terrible, the dread of being confined in them will in great measure be taken off, and the lower classes of people will find them more comfortable places of residence than their own houses. But let it be considered, in the first place, that although I have indeed recommended such attentions in the construction and management as may free them from the diseases and hardships under which they have laboured, I have proposed nothing to give them an air of elegance, or pleasantness. On the contrary, I have censured the plan of some modern Gaols as too shewy and splendid; and nothing abroad struck me more with regard to these buildings, than the perfect plainness and simplicity of their appearance. Then, with respect to the more humane treatment of the prisoners in the articles of food, lodging, and the like, I venture to assert, that if to it be joined such strict regulations in preventing all dissipation and riotous amusement, as I have inculcated, confinement in a prison, though it may cease to be destructive to health and morals, will not fail to be sufficiently irksome and disagreeable, especially to the idle and profligate.

A N A C C O U N T O F F O R E I G N P R I S O N S .

I DESIGNED to publish the Account of our Prisons in the Spring 1775, after I returned from Scotland, and Ireland. But conjecturing that something useful to my purpose, might be collected abroad, I laid aside my papers, and travelled into France, Flanders, Holland, and Germany. I flattered myself that my labour was not quite fruitless: and repeated my visit to these countries, and also to Switzerland, last summer.

I SHALL not give an account of every foreign prison I saw, whether it had any thing peculiar or not: this would be tedious and uninstruative. Nor do I mention the frauds which I observed, or from the evasive answers of Keepers, had reason to suspect. The redress and investigation of foreign abuses was not my object.

IN my relation I shall follow the order of my last journey, and begin with

R A N C E.

IN or near PARIS are the Conciergerie, Grand and Petit Chatelet, Fort L'Evêque, the Bicêtre; and some others. PARIS.

MY first question at each prison commonly was, “Whether the Gaoler or Keeper resided in the House?” and the answer was always in the affirmative.

MOST Prisons in the city have three or four gates; from 4 to 4½ feet high; separated from each other by a little area or court. Within the inner gate is, in some prisons, a Turnstile. The number and lowness of the gates (at each of which you must stoop) and the turnstiles, effectually prevent the prisoners rushing out.

IN most of the prisons there are five or six Turnkeys; viz. two or three at the gates: one walking in the yard, to prevent conferring and plotting (a circumstance to which French Gaolers are very attentive): one at the womens ward: and every day one of them is abroad, or otherwise at leisure. This liberty they have in rotation. They are strictly prohibited, under severe penalties, from receiving any thing of the prisoners, directly or indirectly, on any pretence whatever. The Gaoler is obliged to board them; and to pay each of them at least one hundred livres a year. It must be paid quarterly, in presence of the Deputy of the Attorney-General.

I was surprized at seeing that none of the prisoners were in Irons. No Gaoler (I was informed) may put them on a prisoner, without an express order from the Judge. And yet in some of the Prisons, there were more criminals than in any of our London Gaols. When I was first there, the number had been recently increased by an insurrection on account of the scarcity of corn. My Reader will perhaps presently see reason to conclude, that the manner in which Prisons are conducted makes the confinement more tolerable, and chains less needful. Indeed it was evident, from the very appearance of the prisoners in most of the Gaols, that humane attention was paid to them.

Most of the courts are paved; and they are washed three or four times a day. One would hardly believe how this freshens the air in the upper rooms. I felt this very sensibly once and again when I was in the chambers: and an Englishman, who had the misfortune to be a prisoner, made the same remark. But I seldom or ever found in any French Prison that offensive smell which I had often perceiyed in English Gaols. I sometimes thought these courts were the cleanest places in Paris. One circumstance that contributes to it, besides the number of Turnkeys, is, that most of them are near the river.

PRISONERS, especially criminals, attend Mass every day, and the Gaoler or a Turnkey with them : but such of them as are Protestants are excused. No person is admitted into any Prison during the time of Divine Service.

As condemned criminals generally throw off all reserve, and by relating their various adventures and successes prove pernicious tutors to young and less practised offenders ; care is taken to prevent this mischief, by sending those who are sentenced to the Gallies, to a separate Prison at the Port de St. Bernard : where they are kept till there is a proper number of them to be carried off. Some continue there many months ; but their term commences two days after sentence. I heard that about two hundred were sent from that Prison to Marseilles and Toulon, a week or two before I was there.

To prevent the frequent consequences of desperation, no one condemned to death by the inferior court, is without hopes of life, till the Parliament, to which he commonly appeals, confirms or reverses the sentence : and they never make known their decision, till the morning of the day on which a prisoner is to suffer. Then they publish a confirmation of the former sentence; and it is sold in the streets.

THE chambers are opened at seven in the morning from November 1st to Easter; at six from Easter to November: and shut in the evening at six from November 1st to Easter; at seven from Easter to November. But debtors have an hour more at night. This they commonly spend in the court; as they do not choose to be there in the day-time, among felons. Common-side prisoners are obliged to come out of their night-rooms at the fore-mentioned morning-hours. Experience having shewn, that idleness and lying in bed, are productive of the Scurvy and other distempers. Women are kept quite separate from men. Where there is but one court-yard, as in the Conciergerie, they have the use of it from twelve till two; and the men are shut up. I happened to be in that prison at those hours. The court is fifty-five yards by thirty-eight; and has a fine piazza on three sides; on one side the piazza is double. This was the largest prison in the city before the fire in January 1776: but the Grand Châtelet is now larger, and has more prisoners; viz. 371. In this prison (the Conciergerie) and the Petit Châtelet, I observed the Infirmarys were the uppermost rooms: the best situation, as one of the Gaolers observed, "both for air, and to prevent the spreading of any infectious infectious distemper." Men and women had separate sick wards.

TAKING Garnish, or Footing, is strictly prohibited. If prisoners demand of a new comer any thing of that sort, on whatever pretence; if in order to obtain it they distress him by hiding his cloaths, &c. they are shut up for a fortnight in a dark dungeon, and suffer other punishment. They are obnoxious to the same chastisement for hiding one another's cloaths, or being otherwise injurious.

THE daily allowance to criminals is a pound and half of good bread, and some soup. The soup is not made, nor is any other provision dressed, in the prisons. They have clean linen once a week, from a Society, which was instituted about the year 1753. The occasion of it was the prevalence of a contagious disease which in France they call Le Scorbut, the Scurvy. This distemper was found to proceed from the prisons; and to spread in the Hôtel Dieu, whither prisoners that had it were removed. The cause of it was generally thought to be Want of Cleanliness in Prisons; where several of those confined had worn their linen for many months, and infected the most healthy new-comers that were put in the room with them. Eight hundred were ill of it at once in the Hospital of St. Louis, to which all that were sick of it in the Hôtel Dieu had been carried. By the Abbé Breton's exerting himself on this occasion, a fund was raised to support Prisoners in the Grand Châtelet with clean linen every week. This put an effectual stop to the malady in that Prison. Numbers afterwards joined the Society: the KING and QUEEN honoured it with their contributions: and the charity extended to three other Prisons; so that at last seven hundred prisoners were provided for in the same manner, and a stock of linen requisite for that purpose, viz. five thousand shirts, was completed. The elder prisoners have charge of the linen that is in the Prison; they receive and return it, and are gratified by the Society; which continues to the present time*. Besides this, there is scarce a Prison in the city that has not a Patroness†; a Lady of character, who voluntarily takes care that those in the infirmaries be properly attended; gives them firing; supplies them and the felons in dungeons with linen; does many kind offices to the prisoners in general; and by soliciting the charity of others, procures not only the relief and comforts mentioned already, but soup twice a week, and meat once a fortnight.

THERE is also annually at each Prison somewhat like our Charity Sermons; i. e. Public Service in the Chapel, and a Collection.

* FOR a farther account of this most useful institution, see Code de la Police. Paris, 1767. Tom. I. p. 510, &c.

THOSE who sleep on straw, pay the Gaoler no fee at entrance, or discharge; but they pay one sou or halfpenny a day; and have clean straw once a month: those in the dungeons, once a fortnight. These are seldom let out; never in the yard.

THE Chamber-Rents are all regulated. Those who sleep on beds pay ten sous entrance, and the same when discharged. If they lie alone, they pay five sous a day, if two in a bed, three sous each. The Gaoler finds them clean sheets in summer once in three weeks; in winter once a month. Those who board with him, and have a bed, not a room to themselves, pay a sum not exceeding three livres a day (2s. 7d. $\frac{1}{2}$): but nothing at entrance or discharge. Such boarders as have a chamber to themselves and firing, pay twenty sous a week more: if no fire-place fifteen sous: Both these sorts have clean sheets in summer once a fortnight; in winter, in three weeks. The Gaoler's servants attend them. There are also half-boarders; and some who have an entire chamber, but no board*.

ALL the Regulations are read in the Chapel to Prisoners, the first Sunday of every month, by the Chaplain; and they hang

hang up in the Prison for common inspection. If any Prisoner tears, or otherwise damages them, he suffers corporal punishment: if a Register or Gaoler does so, he is fined twenty livres: if a Turnkey, he is discharged.

THE discipline observed is so exact, that at the late fire in the Conciergerie, the numerous prisoners (as I was informed) were removed without any confusion, or a single escape. There are good rules for preserving peace; for suppressing profaneness; for prohibiting Gaolers or Turnkeys abusing prisoners by beating them or otherwise*; forbidding their furnishing them with wine or spirituous

BOARDERS pay in this Prison 45 livres a month; Half-Boarders $22\frac{1}{2}$ livres: those who board themselves $7\frac{1}{2}$ livres. There were six Turnkeys.

* MONSIEUR Guy du Rousseaud de la Combe, in his Traité des Matieres Criminelles, Paris, 1769, quarto, 6th edition, cites at page 339, an Arrêt of Parliament in the last century, that condemned a Gaoler to be hanged, because he let a prisoner perish* for want of food.

liquors, so as to cause excess, drunkenness, &c. Keepers are punished for this when known to the Magistrates, by a fine for the first offence; and for the second by stripes.

THEY are allowed to sell some things to their prisoners: but the quality, quantity and price must be such as the ordinances of police define and require.

GAOLERS and Turnkeys are obliged to visit once a day at least, all the dungeons. I was sorry to find the humanity which is so conspicuous in the forementioned, and other excellent rules, so deficient as to continue the use of those subterraneous abodes; which are totally dark, and beyond imagination horrid and dreadful. Poor creatures are confined in them night and day for weeks, for months together. They visit these, I say, daily: and if they find any prisoners sick, they must acquaint the Physician and Surgeon; who visit them; and if needful, order them to more wholesome rooms till they recover.

KEEPERS are not tempted by paying for their places, to oppress their prisoners: to remove all pretext for so doing, rents which they formerly paid to the Crown are remitted; and the leases given up.

AS for DEBTORS, their number is small. Of the 202 Prisoners in the Conciergerie, but six were Debtors. In some some other Prisons there were a few more. This perhaps is owing to the following good laws. Every Bailiff who arrests and imprisons a Debtor, must pay to the Gaoler in advance a month's aliment or subsistence, i. e. ten livres ten sous, equal to nine shillings English (provisions being at Paris cheaper in general than at London) : and if the like sum be not paid within fourteen days after the end of every month, the prisoner is set at liberty. Besides this, the Debtor pays no costs of arrests, &c.' The whole of them falls on the Creditor : and so do all expences occasioned by his sickness, or death.

As the best Regulations are liable to be abused, prisoners are not thought sufficiently provided for by enacting good Laws : the execution of them is carefully attended to. The Substitutes of the Attorney-General visit the Prisons once a week, to inquire if the rules be observed ; to hear complaints of prisoners ; to see if the sick be properly attended ; and the like.—Besides this, the Parliament of Paris sends to all the Prisons five times a year two or three Counsellors with a Substitute of the Attorney-General, and two Clerks. They go at Christmas, Easter, Whitsuntide, one day before 15th August, Simon and Jude. There is in each Prison (as in other Foreign Gaols) a room for their reception called the Council-Chamber. It is occupied at other times by the Head-Gaoler.

THE arrival of this deputation is announced by boys, who, though offenders, are allowed to do little errands in the Prison: these go round the yard and into every room, giving notice of it aloud. The Deputies go, without the Gaoler or Turnkeys, into every room and dungeon, and

1. THEY ask the prisoners one by one, if they have any complaint to make of the Gaoler or his servants. But they never meddle with those who are confined by an order from the KING.

2. THEY receive the petitions of criminals who have been detained too long without trial.

3. IN case of debts not exceeding two thousand livres (about ninety pounds) if the debtor can raise a third part of his debt, and no more, they receive it for the creditors. How they clear him of the remaining two thirds, I will shew presently. They take notes of these matters in the Prison: and give an account of all to the Parliament, at their general public meeting a day or two after.

IN behalf of criminals who have not been tried, the Parliament commonly orders the Attorney-General to write in their name to the inferior Judges, inquiring into the causes of delay, or ordering expedition. If a prisoner be acquitted, he is discharged within twenty-four hours.

FOREIGN PRISONS.

THE Laws of France do not in ordinary cases admit a Debtor to bail without the consent of his Creditor. But in the case mentioned above, the Parliament obliges creditors to accept of bail for the remainder of debts under two thousand livres. And even this bail seems a matter of mere form; for they sometimes take for bail men that are insolvent. I believe there is no standing law for this; and that it is rather an immemorial custom: because the Parliament enacts a particular law for each case as it occurs. In France there are no insolvent Acts.

THE Deputies hear no complaints of the Gaoler against his prisoners. When he has any to make, he applies to the Chief Justice, by whose order the prisoner was committed. If he was imprisoned by an order from the KING, he applies to the Lieutenant-General of the Police; if without such an order, to the Lieutenant-Criminal, &c.

BESIDES the Deputation now mentioned, the Parliament appoints to each Prison one of their own body, a Counsellor. They always choose a Gentleman of fortune and good character: he is called Commissaire de la Prison. His business is much like that of the Deputation; and his office perpetual. By frequent discourse with prisoners I learned, that these officers are very humane to the distressed. They can (as the Parliament) oblige creditors to accept one third part of debts under two thousand livres : but they use this power with much caution.

THE BICETRE is upon a small eminence about two miles from Paris; if it were only a prison, I should call it an enormous one. But this for men, like the Hopital general for women, is indeed a kind of general Hospital. Of about four thousand men that are within its walls, not one half are prisoners. The majority are; The Poor, who wear a coarse brown uniform, and seem as miserable as the poor in some of our country work-houses: the Insane: and men that have the venereal disease. Each sort is in a court and apartments totally separate from the other, and from Criminals. These are confined, some in little rooms about eight feet square, window $3\frac{1}{2}$ by 2, with a grate, but not many glazed. By counting the windows on one side of the House, I reckoned there must be five hundred of those rooms: there is but one prisoner in each. These pay two hundred livres a year for their board. There are others in two large rooms called La Force, on the other side of the court-yard La Cour Royale, which are crowded with prisoners. Over these two rooms is a general Infirmary: and over that, an Infirmary for the Scurvy; a distemper very common and fatal among them.

IN the middle of La Cour Royale are eight dreadful dungeons down sixteen steps: each about thirteen feet by nine:

FOREIGN PRISONS.

with two strong doors; three chains fastened to the wall; and a stone funnel at one corner of each cell, for air. From the situation of these dreary caverns, and the difficulty I found in procuring admittance, I conclude hardly any other stranger ever saw them: that is my reason, and I hope will be an apology, for mentioning the particulars.

PRISONERS make straw-boxes, tooth-picks, &c. and sell them to visitors. I viewed the men with some attention; and observed in the looks of many a settled melancholy: many others looked very sickly. This Prison seems not so well managed as those in the city: it is very dirty: no fire-place in any of the rooms: and in the severe cold last winter, several hundreds perished.

WATER in plenty was thought of such importance here, that they have a stone well which is a curiosity. It was built in 1735; is fifteen feet diameter, and near seventy yards deep. The two Buckets hold each about three hogsheds: they are drawn up by horses, and empty themselves into a Reservoir, sixty-four feet square, and nine deep. A bucket is drawn up in five minutes. They work sixteen hours every day, not excepting Sundays; and draw daily about five hundred hogsheds. Three horses work at a time, and twelve are kept for the service.

HOPITAL
GENERAL.

THE HOPITAL GENERAL, near the city, is for women and girls. The latter are employed on the finest embroidery. Numbers of poor; and a sisterhood of religious. Many criminals, quite separate from the others, and not seen by strangers. The House was cleaner, and seemed better conducted than the Bicêtre upon the same foundation.
and

THE BASTILE may occur to some of my readers, as an BASTILE. object concerning which some information would be acceptable. All that I can give them is, that I knocked hard at the outer gate, and immediately went forward through the guard to the draw-bridge before the entrance of the Castle. I was some time viewing this building, which is round, and surrounded by a large moat. None of the windows look outwards, but only towards a small area; and if the state prisoners are ever permitted to take the fresh air, it must be on the leads, which have high parapets. But whilst I was contemplating this gloomy mansion, an officer came out of the Castle much surprized; and I was forced to retreat through the mute guard, and thus regained that freedom, which for one locked up within those walls it is next to impossible to obtain.

MANY of my readers, acquainted with the strict police of France, would have supposed that the other Prisons would have been as inaccessible to a visitant as the Bastile. And indeed my first application for admittance at the Grand Châtelet was unsuccessful. But fortunately remarking the tenth

tenth Article* of the Arrêt 1717, I pleaded it before the Commissaire de la Prison to whom I was referred, and by its means gained admission as well into that Prison, as those of Petit Châtelet and Fort l'Evêque, and had an opportunity of seeing almost every individual confined in them.

PROVINCES.

IN the PROVINCIAL GAOLS I saw little worth noting to imitate or avoid, but what has been already mentioned at Paris. These also have charitable Patronesses, or Patrons, who take care that the prisoners be not defrauded of their allowance; and procure them farther relief. But these Prisons do not seem to be so carefully inspected as those in the city; although the Acts of Parliament for regulation of both are for the most part similar; and were made in the same year, 1717†. They are drawn up, with sound judgment, and accurate knowledge of the complex subject. I found many articles of them in the laws of other nations; but

* THE Article is as follows.

Les Gégliers conduiront les personnes qui viendront faire des charitez dans les lieux de la prison où elles desireront les distribuer, ce qu'elles pourront faire elles-mêmes sur le preau ou dans la cour; mais les aumônes ne pourront estre distribuées dans les cachots noirs que par les mains du Geolier, en présence des personnes qui les porteront.

† THEY are printed in quarto. The Act for the City is dated 18th June: it contains thirty-nine Articles. The title is Arrest de la Cour de Parlement, portant Reglement but cannot say whether the French Acts were compiled from them, or followed by them.

THE 32d Article of the Act for the Provinces requires that Prisons be "au raiz de chaussée"*; level with the ground. Yet at Chalons, and some other towns, I saw many prisoners in dungeons; larger indeed, but in other respects not much better than those at Paris. In the four horrid ones at the Prison de St. Joseph (formerly a Convent) at Lyons, June 1776, were twenty-nine criminals: the heat so excessive, that few of them had any other garment on than merely their shirts. Some of them were sick: none of them looked healthy. In the nine other rooms of that Gaol there were one hundred and twenty-eight prisoners; of which number twenty-two were women. To the Pierrecize, a state prison at Lyons, you ascend by more than two hundred steps: among the few prisoners in it, I sat talking a while with one who said he was in the fiftieth year of his confinement.

LYONS.

Règlement general pour les Prisons, droits et fonctions des Greffiers des Geoles, Geoliers et Guichetiers des dites Prisons: Avec le Tarif des droits attribuez ausdits Geoliers. The Act for the Provinces, dated 1st September, has the same title, except the Tarif. It contains thirty-three Articles.

* THE foundation of this was probably the first Article upon Prisons in the excellent Criminal Ordonnance of Louis XIV. 1670, which directs that they shall be so disposed that the health of prisoners shall not be incommoded.

I dwell perhaps too long on France. Yet I cannot leave it, without stopping a minute longer at Lyons; to give a short account of an Hospital there.

HOTEL
DIEU.

THE HOTEL DIEU is by the river's side (the Rhone). The principal building is in the form of a cross: near three hundred feet from end to end both ways. The wards thirty-two feet wide, and twenty-five feet high: with apertures between the joists of the floor above; and two tier of windows: in many of them two casements. Three rows of iron bedsteads in each ward, Under a dome in the centre is an octagon altar, in view from every part of the cross. Prayers, which are read there twice a day, can be heard through the wards. This part of the House is for those that have Fevers. There are other wards for Lying-in Women; for the Wounded; for Foundlings; for the Insane: all separate: and a room for chirurgical operations. The cross-wards are so airy, as not to be in the least offensive: and yet there are, in another part of the House, two large upper rooms still more airy and pleasant, Chambres de Convalescence: to these they remove patients that are recovering: and those whom I saw there said they were very refreshing. They come down from them at meals to a Refectory or Hall. These rooms soon complete the patients recovery; and seem an excellent precaution against the slow hectic fever, of which our Hospital-Physicians so frequently complain; and it is chiefly chiefly on account of these that I mention the House *. The whole was clean and quiet. There are eight Chaplains; nine Physicians and Surgeons; and twelve Sisters. These are ladies of a religious order, dressed in a neat uniform, who make up, as well as administer all the medicines prescribed; for which purpose there is an Elaboratory and Apothecary's shop, consisting of five or six apartments, the neatest and most elegantly fitted up that can be conceived.

BEFORE the Cantons, I will mention, what is not indeed any part of Switzerland, the little Republic of

* I WAS induced to take such particular notice of this Hospital, from the recollection of something similar to these Chambers of Convalescence proposed by my ingenious friend Mr. Aikin of Warrington, in his Thoughts on Hospitals. I had not the pamphlet then with me, but have since turned to the passage, and find he advises that "all patients capable of sitting up, should remain through the day in large airy halls."

wine. They looked healthy. Here, as in the Swiss-Cantons, men and women are kept separate. For the last year or two no capital punishment. If a criminal flies from justice, they call him in form three days, and after trial, execute him in effigy.

No Debtors: and there seldom are any. A creditor must allow his debtor in prison as much as felons have from the public: upon failure, the gaoler gives notice, and then discharges the prisoner. Besides, there are sumptuary laws in this state. And though the government is in general mild, there is a severe law against bankrupts, and insolvents; which renders incapable of all honours, and deprives of freedom, not only the debtor himself, but his children after him: except such of them as pay their quota of the debts *.

IN those of the CANTONS to which I went, Felons have each a room to themselves, “that they may not,” said the Keepers, “tutor one another.” None were in irons: they are kept in rooms more or less strong and lightsome, according to the crimes they are charged with. But the Prisons are in general very strong. The rooms are numbered, and the keys marked with the same numbers. In most of them a German Stove. The common allowance six-pence a day. In some Cantons there were no prisoners of this sort. The principal reason of it is, the great care that is taken to give children, even the poorest, a moral and religious education. Another thing which contributes to the same intention, is the laudable police of speedy justice. A criminal has notice of his death, not the manner of it, but a short time before he is to suffer: and he is then indulged with his choice of food, wine, &c. Women are not hanged, but beheaded. Every new executioner has a new sword; and in the Arsenal at Bern I saw several old ones hung up in order. In the Houses of Correction many of the prisoners were women; whom I saw at work.

THE most numerous prisoners are the Galley-Slaves; improperly so called, for there are no Gallies belonging to Switzerland.

AT LAUSANNE I visited a Prison, in which LAUSANNE. there were at that time no prisoners. There were dungeons, but on entering each of them the Keeper observed that we were not yet upon the ground, but there were cellars underneath. On conversing with Dr. Tiffot, he expressed his surprize at our Gaol-Distemper; said "I should not find it in Switzerland:" and added that "he had not heard of it's being any where but in England." When I mentioned the late Act of Parliament for preserving the health of our prisoners, he approved of it highly, especially the clauses which require white-washing the rooms and keeping them clean.—I did not (as the Doctor said I should not) find the Gaol-Fever in Switzerland: nor did I find it any where else abroad*.
O 2 England."

BERN.

IN BERN, the principal Canton, there was in one Prison (the *Schallenhau*s) one hundred and twenty-four Galley-Slaves. They have not each a room to themselves; but there is some distinction of the more and less criminal, both in their rooms and work. Most of them are employed in cleaning the streets, and public walks; removing the rubbish of building; and the snow and ice in winter. The city is one of the cleanest I have seen. Four or five are chained to a small waggon and draw; others, more at liberty, sweep, load, &c. These are known by an Iron Collar, with a hook projecting above their heads: weight about five pounds: I saw one riveted on a criminal in about two minutes. They work in summer from seven to eleven, and from one to six; in winter from eight to eleven, and from one to four. I asked

* SIR JOHN PRINGLE, President of the Royal Society, in his Discourse at the Anniversary Meeting, 30th November 1776, informs us at page 16, that "The late Dr. Mounsey, F. R. S. who had lived long in Russia, and had been Archiatre under two successive Sovereigns---happening to be at Moscow when he perused the Observations on the Jail-Fever---was induced to compare what he read in that Treatise with what he should see in the several Prisons of that large city: but to his surprize, after visiting them all, and finding them full of malefactors (for asked them, "Whether they would choose to work so, or be confined within doors?" "Much rather," they said, "work thus." The less criminal are in separate wards. They work within doors, spinning, &c. in a large room; and have not the iron collar. The Prison is not commodious, nor kept clean. The daily allowance two pounds of bread, and twice a day a pint and half of soup, made of barley, beans, &c. they fetch it from the City-Hospital. In their leisure-hours they make trifles to sell, mend shoes &c. and deliver them as they pass on at work. They are not suffered to practise Gaming of any sort. Indeed this is forbidden to all the common people; as playing for any considerable sum is to those of higher rank. The Keeper and Turnkey are to see that the prisoners perform their devotions every morning and evening. The Chaplains pray with them and instruct them on Sunday and Thursday. Once a month other Clergymen superintend the service. No visitant admitted on Sunday. Great care taken of the sick. No sutling place to be kept in this House of Correction. The Keeper is strictly forbidden to sell the prisoners wine, brandy, or other provisions; and required en-

"the late Empress then suffered none---to be put to death) he could discover
 "no fever among them, nor learn that any acute distemper peculiar to Jails had "ever been known there.----Upon his return to St. Petersburg he made the same "inquiry there, and with the same result."

I SHALL just remark here that the Scorbut in the French Prisons may probably be a species of the Gaol-Distemper; but I did not see any persons actually ill of it while I was abroad; otherwise I think I should have been able to have recognized it.

tirely to forego any such emolument. The bedding and cloathing are minutely described, both as to quality and value. I have a copy of all the Orders, twenty-seven in number, dated March 14. 1741. These which I have mentioned may serve for a specimen. Some of the slaves are women: their ward is totally separate from that of the men.

IN La Prison ordinaire some rooms are planked all round. Eight of them are very close and strong. Doors of oak 2½ inches thick, plated with iron; three hinges, a lock and two padlocks. In a closet, were the cloaths of a person that was murdered, kept to confront the guilty when apprehended: and some stolen goods, to be owned. Here were no prisoners. A criminal who can pay is allowed to expend 7 batz 2 kreutzer, about a shilling daily, for two meals of soup and good bread. To one that is poor, the Government allows half that sum. To all who are condemned, they allow a shilling a day for eight days before they suffer. These allowances are specified on a paper hung up in the Gaol. There also hangs up a serious exhortation concerning the awful nature of an Oath; and the forms of sundry oaths to be taken. I procured copies of the whole, but will transcribe only one oath, as follows: --- “ Ma deposition, dont lecture m’a été faite à présent, je la confirme devant la face du Dieu tout puissant, tout sachant et vray, pour contenir la verité, ainsi que je desire que Dieu me soit en aide sur la fin de mes jours. Sans dol ni fraude.” “fraude.”—“ My deposition, which has now been read to me I confirm before the face of God omnipotent, omniscient and true, to contain the truth, as I desire that God may be my help at the end of my days. Without deceit or fraud.” Perjury, I was told, is very uncommon among them *.

IN this city I had some discourse with the celebrated Dr. Haller. He ascribed the sickness in English Gaols to their being over-crowded.

AT SOLOTHURN the Prison (dated in front 1756) is built SOLOTHURN. of a sort of marble from a quarry near the town. Many of the stones are six feet by two or three, and above a foot thick. The Gaoler said, “ He always took off the irons from criminals that came to him chained hands and feet.” There are fifteen rooms about nine feet square, and eight feet high: with a coach roof. The partition walls are all of the same sort of marble: the window is in the upper part of

* IN Scotland also this crime is not frequent. When I was there January 1775, there were no trials: but by inquiring of Gentlemen well-versed in the business of their Courts, I learned that the oath and the form of administering it, are very solemn. The Judge, as well as the Witness standing, holding up his right hand &c. After a witness has given his evidence, it is read to him, that he may correct or explain it; and then he signs it. The whole process is carried on with great deliberation. Judges on the Circuit are obliged to stay five nights at every town where they open their commission. Acquitted prisoners are immediately discharged.

the wall, two feet by six inches: German stoves in most of the rooms. For those guilty of less heinous crimes, there are rooms not quite so strong, and more lightsome. Allowance a pound of bread, and twice a day soup.

THE Magistrates thought a constant supply of water within the Prison-walls so needful, that although there is a fountain in the street about ten yards from the Prison-door, they have placed another in the court-yard, dated 1769.

BASIL. AT BASIL the Gaol for felons is in one of towers. No prisoners; but many rooms ready with clean straw and blankets. Each prisoner (they said) has a room to himself, in which he is constantly shut up, except when conducted to the Council-Chamber for examination. One of the strongest rooms by the great clock is about six feet high: the (trap) door is in the flat roof: the prisoner goes down by a ladder, which is then taken up: his victuals are put in at a wicket on one side. When I was in the room, and took notice of the uncommon strength of it, the Gaoler told me a prisoner had lately made his escape from it. I could not devise what method he took, but heard it was this. He had a spoon for soup, which he sharpened to cut out a piece from the timber of his room: then by practice he acquired the art of striking his door, just when the great clock struck, to drown the noise: and in fifteen days he forced all the bolts, &c. But attempting to let himself down from the vast height by a rope which he found, the rope failed him; and by falling he broke so many of his bones, that the Surgeons pronounced his recovery impossible. But his bones were set; and with proper care he did recover, and was pardoned.

E R M A N Y.

THE Germans, well aware of the necessity of Cleanliness in Prisons, have very judiciously chosen to build them in situations most conducive to it; that is, near Rivers: as at Hanover, Zell, Hamburgh, Bremen, Cologne, Mentz and many other places.

IN the Gaols that I saw there were but few prisoners, except those called, improperly, Galley-Slaves. One cause of this, here as in Switzerland, is a speedy trial after commitment.

THE Galley-Slaves have every where a Prison to themselves. They work on the Roads, the Fortifications, Chalk-Hills, and other public service; for four, seven, ten, fifteen, twenty years, according to their crimes: and are cloathed, as well as fed, by the Government. At Wesel, which belongs to the KING of Prussia, there were ninety-eight of these slaves: they have two pounds of bread a day, and the value of three halfpence English every day they work.

I SAW no under-ground dungeons in any of the new Prisons in Germany: nor indeed in any new Prison abroad. At Lunenburg the dungeons are disused: and instead of them are built additional rooms up stairs: one for each prisoner. And in most of the Gaols each criminal is alone in his room; which is more or less strong, lightsome, and airy, as the crime he is charged with is more or less atrocious.

ONE often sees the doors of sundry rooms marked Ethiopia, India, Italy, France, England, &c. In those rooms, parents, by the authority of the Magistrates, confine for a certain term dissolute children: and if they are inquired after, the answer is, they are gone to Italy, England, &c.

I DO not remember any Prison in Germany (nor elsewhere abroad) in which Felons have not, either from the public allowance, or from charities, somewhat more to live on than bread and water. In some places a person goes on market-market-days with a basket for prisoners: and I have seen him bring them a comfortable meal of fresh vegetables. But there are separate Prisons in which confinement for a week or two on bread and water is all the punishment for some petty offences. Perhaps, when a condemned criminal is only to live a day or two, such diet may be more proper than the indulgence with which the Germans treat prisoners, after sentence of death, which is commonly executed within forty-eight hours. The malefactor has then his choice of food, and wine, in a commodious room, into which his friends are admitted; and a Minister attends him during almost all his remaining hours.

AT STRASBURG I saw in one of the five towers three Debtors: they informed me that they were alimanted by their creditors; that they had two pounds of good bread a day, and soup equally good. I was much pleased to find so much of a liberal spirit prevail in this city, that in the Hospital there were separate chambers for Lutherans, in which they were allowed the attendance of their own Ministers.

STRAS-
BURG.

AT MENTZ, La Porte de Fer, which is for Felons, is five stories high: two rooms on a floor: a spacious landing-place in the middle, with opposite windows, for circulation of air. The rooms are double-floored with oak plank, full two inches thick; and each room has a double door only three feet nine inches high. These two circumstances contribute much to security. On one side the door is a small iron wicket, to put in the daily allowance: which is two pounds of bread, soup, and (except in Lent) a little meat. Only one prisoner is confined in each room, who has a pair of blankets; and once in a fortnight clean straw. This Gaol stands near the Rhine, and is not in the least offensive.

IN the House of Correction all was neat, and shewed the attention of the Regency. On my taking notice to the Keeper how clean his Prison was, he said "How can it be otherwise when we have so many women prisoners? Surely they may keep the House clean." Most of the flour for the city is ground at a mill in this Prison. The delinquents work at it two hours in the morning, and two in the afternoon. Over the door is carved a waggon drawn by two Stags, two Lions, and two wild Boars; with an inscription explaining the device, which is, that if wild beasts can be tamed to the yoke, we should not despair of reclaiming irregular men. I saw the same bas relief at one or two other Houses of Correction.

THERE is a separate Prison for Debtors, near the Fish-Market: Le Port du Poisson. No prisoners. When there are any, they have daily at the creditor's cost two pounds of bread, and about four-pence English.

EVERY Prison at Mentz has in each room a German stove; which, in winter, is heated two or three times a day. Prisoners have clean linen once a week. On my observing to the Brigadier of the Police who went with me, how healthy his prisoners looked, he told me that “Some years ago, they were unhealthy; and the Regency removed them from the dungeons under ground: upon which they recovered; and had been remarkably healthy ever since.” The dungeons are now totally disused.

It was hardly necessary to inquire if the Prisons were inspected by proper Officers. The Keepers make a report every day to an attentive Lieutenant of the Police: and once in a fortnight the Conseiller de Régence, the Secrétaire and Conseiller des Finances visit every Prison; hear all complaints; and inquire if cloaths, or any thing necessary be wanting. None of the Keepers sell liquor; but prisoners may send out for a quart of beer a day. They are not allowed to have any spirituous liquors.

I HAVE related more particulars here, to give a specimen of the oeconomy observed in other German Prisons; most of them being governed upon the same principles; though not all with the same attention.

AT HANAU near Hesse Cassel, the Galley-Slaves (so called) are distinguished into Honnêtes and Desbonnêtes. The former former are condemned for three, four, seven, nine, fourteen years : but the term is sometimes shortened on account of good behaviour. These wear a brown uniform ; and a ' small chain' from the girdle to one leg. The latter are for the most part such as have committed capital offences. These wear a white coat with one black sleeve ; and have a chain from the girdle to each leg : they never work out of the town ; and are put to the most disagreeable services in it. The hours of work for both sorts are in summer from five to eleven, and from one to six : in winter as the weather and length of days permit. Allowance, from 1st of April to Michaelmas, $2\frac{1}{2}$ pounds of bread a day : from Michaelmas to April, two pounds : and each man about two-pence English a day. From a charity they have half a florin (about twelve-pence halfpenny) a month. They are constantly visited by a Deputy from the Regency, who makes his report to the Colonel every morning : and the Colonel conveys it to the young Prince, when he resides at Hanau. Of his kindness to them, the prisoners seemed duly sensible ; and they spoke with grateful respect of the attention shewed them by the amiable Princefs his deceased mother, whose memory will be long revered in that country.

I ASKED one and another of the Honnêtes who were at work on the road, " Whether they liked to be thus employed, or would rather choose to be confined in idleness ? " “ nefs ? ” They readily answered, “ Much, rather be thus abroad at work.” On Saturday afternoon, these sweep the bridges, the entrances to the town &c. They have a Guard of four Soldiers (bayonets fixed), a Subaltern, and the Keeper. This is the guard, be the number of slaves more or less : when I saw them they were from ten to twelve.

AT six in the evening, in summer-time, they bring all their tools into a room in the Prison ; and go to their chambers : the Desbonnêtes on the ground floor ; the Honnêtes above. But in this Prison there is not a separate room for each man ; as in those to which they were at first committed. Each criminal has, besides the cloaths above-mentioned, two pair of shoes ; two pair of stockings ; and two shirts. All are obliged to attend Divine Service on Sunday. The men on my repeated visits looked always healthy.

THE Desbonnêtes are not doomed to despair : but for good behaviour are sometimes promoted to the rank of Honnêtes. I conversed with one whom I found very cheerful for a late advancement of that kind : in consequence of it he was working on the road.

THERE is another Prison at Hanau, La Tour de Margueretta : so called from the first person confined in it. It has four rooms on each of the two floors ; but they were all empty.

CASSEL. AT CASSEL there is also a Prison for Galley-Slaves, under similar management, but not so well conducted. One circumstance struck me as worthy of remark. In a fine new Church just built, there is a gallery with two separate seats for the Honnêtes and Desbonnêtes; though the whole number, when I was there, was only seventeen.

MANHEIM. AT MANHEIM Monsieur Babo, Counsellor to the Regency, very politely gave orders to shew me every room of La Maison de Force. Prisoners committed to this House are commonly received in form with what is called the Bien-Venu (Welcome). A machine is brought out in which are fastened their neck, hands, and feet. Then they are stripped; and have, according as the Magistrate orders—the Grand Venu of twenty to thirty stripes—the Demi Venu of eighteen to twenty—or the Petit Venu of twelve to fifteen: after this they kiss the threshold and go in. Some are treated with the same compliment at discharge. The like ceremony is observed at some other towns in Germany.

THE House was clean. Fifty-two men, and forty-nine women in several rooms: all at work; either at their own trades, as shoemakers, taylors, weavers, lapidaries; or at one of the manufactures of the House; which are coarse cloth and cards. Not one idle. They have but little time to earn any thing for themselves: yet though they work entirely for the House, their labour, I was informed, does not maintain it.

THE Rules and Orders are good. I have a copy of them all. The two last are to this effect. 11th. As it is of the utmost importance in such Houses as this, to observe all possible cleanliness; it is required of all persons to watch most strictly against all appearance of the contrary. Whoever sees the least offence of that kind, shall give immediate notice of it to the Inspector, upon pain of close confinement on bread and water, and the most rigorous chastisement. 12th. That no one may be able to plead ignorance of the Rules, one copy of them shall be given to every prisoner, and another hung up in his room; and they shall be read publicly every Sunday morning after Divine Service. It is ordered that the disobedient be punished; and that encouragement be given to the dutiful and diligent.

THE doors are all numbered; and the keys marked with the corresponding number. Allowance to most of the Men two pounds of bread, soup, and a quart of good beer; and, except in Lent, half a pound of meat. Women have a pound and half of bread: other articles as the men. The sick are indulged with white bread, veal, &c. They have all of them clean linen once a week: it is washed by the women prisoners. The Keeper makes every morning a report to Monsieur Babo of the state of his House as to numbers, health, &c.

A CAPUCHIN says Mass in the Chapel every morning. A gallery for men: another for women, with a blind before it: another for Orphans, of whom there are sixty-four in a sort of Hospital at one end of the Prison. Protestants and Jews are ordered to their private devotions: the latter are excused from working on their Sabbath.

HANOVER. THE Prison at HANOVER was built about thirty years ago. It is situated on the river Leyna. There are eleven strong rooms, about ten feet square, and ten and a half high; with a bed of solid stone in each, eleven inches from the ground, and nine inches higher at the head. Over these are larger apartments for debtors &c. The rooms are warmed by stoves in winter. Criminals have a small chain: they are allowed straw to lie on, and two coverlids. When I visited the Prison there were seven criminals and one debtor. The Keeper sells no liquors, but has a salary. In the Council-Chamber are all the various Edicts in frames. There is a Torture-Chamber, but I with pleasure learned that the two cruel engines had not been used for four years.

LUNEN-
BURG.

LUNENBURG. I found the criminals here employed on a different work from any I had before seen: digging stone from a large chalk-hill called Kalck-Berg. Others were preparing it for the kiln, grinding, sifting, packing &c. in the warehouses. The casks are about three hundred weight. It is sent to Hamburg and other distant places, as it makes an excellent cement. Many other men were employed; but the criminals, of whom there were thirty-one, had a chain of about four pounds. Their allowance was a pound and half of bread, and three halfpence in money: provisions much cheaper than in England.
from

AT HAMBURGH Felons in the Büttley were all in irons. HAMBURGH. The common method of execution is decollation. The Executioner, who is Gaoler, shewed me the sword which, he said, he had made use of eight times.

AMONG the various engines of torture, or the question, which I have seen in France and other places, the most excruciating is kept and used in a deep cellar of this Prison. It ought to be buried ten thousand fathom deeper*. It is said the inventor was the first who suffered by it: the last was a woman, not two years ago.

HERE, as at some other towns, is a Prison for slight offences. The punishment, to be confined from a week to a month, and live on bread and water only. To prevent the prisoners having any thing else, what money they bring with them is taken, and sealed up; but it is returned to them when discharged.

IN this great city, supposed to contain ninety thousand souls, there were but three Debtors: and in the neighbouring town ALTENA, which belongs to the KING of DENMARK, but two.

IT will perhaps be expected that I should say something of the Houses of Correction at the great and opulent city of Hamburg. I was there near a week, and visited all the Prisons with every advantage, through the kindness of my friend, Senator Voght. In the great House of Correction, which is a sort of Work-house, and not reckoned infamous, various kinds of work were carrying on; as knitting, spinning, weaving linen, hair, and wool, rasping logwood and hartshorn. A regular book is kept of the earnings, one fourth of which, I was informed, was given to each, as they worked more or less. This House is governed by eight Directors, who must be married men. Two of them visit it every Wednesday and Saturday; on the latter day along with the Ladies, who deliver out the women's work, and have a room for the purpose. Many hundreds are confined here. In the great room I saw about three hundred women and girls all busily employed both times I was there.

there. Although the House is situated near the Alster, and visited by Ladies, I cannot say much in favour of its neatness or cleanliness.

IN the Spin-House, which is accounted infamous, even the men were not obliged to rasp logwood, but were employed in spinning, in more lightsome rooms than those of the other House. In this were seventy-three prisoners.

AT BREMEN the Prison for Debtors has four rooms; BREMEN. but the Magistrate who accompanied me, Dr. Hornwinckel, assured me not one of them had been occupied for above thirty years, till very lately; when one was fitted up for a debtor, who was confined in it a few weeks. Over the door of this Prison is inscribed Hic fraudum terminus esto.

THAT there were few Debtors, or none at all, in such towns as Mentz, Coblentz, Manheim, &c. may be ascribed to their being places of but little trade. In such large trading cities as Hamburg, and Bremen, it seems owing to the little credit that is given—the expence of alimēt &c. falling on the creditor—the being deprived of every kind of amusement and diversion while in Prison—and the disgrace of being there.

DEBTORS are not permitted in any German cities that I have seen, to have their wives and children living with them in Prison.

THE House of Correction at Bremen, situated on the Wefer, is indeed a House of Industry; yet very quiet. There were eleven men, and twenty-eight women, all at work; except a woman who had broke her leg. The stronger and less docile men rasp Logwood: others weave a set task of Hair Carpets, &c. The Keeper appoints a weaver in the House to instruct every new comer, who generally teaches him the art in a short time. The women's apartments were very clean: their work is spinning, knitting, &c. The Keeper has a salary; and sells nothing.

I SAT an afternoon with Dr. Duntze of Bremen, who told me he was in London in 1753 and 54 with an inquisitive friend, a German. They went into Newgate to observe the effects of the Ventilator; and were struck with an offensive smell in one of the rooms. Next day they were both indisposed. The Doctor's complaint turned out a kind of jaundice. After a few days confinement he visited his friend, and found him excessively low; and in a short time he died with every symptom of the Gaol-Fever.

ZELL. AT ZELL in the Electorate of Hanover, is a large House of Correction; and

AT

AT CASSEL is another, with a work-room one hundred and ten feet by twenty-five, and twelve feet high. It was built by CHARLES, grandfather to the present Landgrave. I shall not, however, enter into a minute detail of the discipline in these two, and other Houses of the same sort in Germany. Those in Holland and Flanders are better conducted: and my account of them shall be more particular.

H O L L A N D.

PRISONS in the UNITED PROVINCES are so quiet, and most of them so clean, that a visitor can hardly believe he is in a Gaol. They are commonly (except the Rasp-Houses) white-washed once or twice a year: and a prisoner told me it was no small refreshment to go into their rooms after such a thorough cleaning. A Physician and Surgeon is appointed to every Prison; and prisoners are in general healthy.

IN most of the Prisons for Criminals there are so many rooms that each prisoner is kept separate. They never go out of their rooms: each has a bedstead, straw, and coverlid. But there are few criminals, except those in the Rasp-Houses and Spin-Houses. In all the seven Provinces seldom more executions in a year than from four to six*. One reason of this, I believe, is the awful solemnity of executions, which are performed in presence of the Magistrates, with great order and seriousness, and great effect on the spectators. I did not see the process in Holland; but it was particularly described to me, and was similar to what I had been witness of in another place abroad.

THE common method of execution is decollation by a broad sword. For the more atrocious crimes, such as premeditated murder &c. the malefactor is broken on the wheel; or rather on a cross laid flat upon the scaffold. But a description of the manner of this execution, which is finished by a Coup de Grace on the breast, would not be agreeable to any of my readers.

DEBTORS also are but few. The Magistrates do not approve of confining in idleness any that may be usefully employed. And when one is imprisoned, the Creditor must pay the Gaoler for his maintenance, from eight to eighteen stivers a day, according to the Debtor's former condition in life. The aliment must be paid every week: in default whereof, the Gaoler gives eight days notice; and if within that time, the money, or security for it, be not brought, the debtor is discharged.

* I WAS told in Scotland that the number of executions there is nearly the same.

ANOTHER reason is, that the situation is very disgraceful. But perhaps the principal cause that debtors, as well as capital offenders, are few, is the great care that is taken to train up the children of the poor, and indeed of all others, to industry. No debtors have their wives and children living with them in Prison: but occasional visits in the day-time are not forbidden. You do not hear in the streets as you pass by a Prison, what I have been rallied for abroad, the cry of poor hungry starving Debtors.

THE States do not transport criminals: but men are put to labour in the Rasp-Houses, and women to proper work in the Spin-Houses: upon this professed maxim, Make them diligent and they will be honest. The rasping logwood, which was formerly the principal work done by the men criminals, is now in many places performed at the mills, much cheaper: and the Dutch, finding woollen manufactures more profitable, have within these last twelve years, set up several of them in those Houses of Correction. In some, the work does not only maintain the prisoners; but they have a little extra-time to earn somewhat for their better living in Prison, or for their benefit afterwards.

FOREIGN PRISONS.

GREAT care is taken to give them moral and religious instruction, and reform their manners, for their own and the public good. The Chaplain (such there is in every House of Correction) does not only perform public worship, but privately instructs the prisoners, catechises them every week &c. and I am well informed that many come out sober and honest*. Some have even chosen to continue and work in the House after their discharge.

OFFENDERS are sentenced to these Houses, according to their crimes, for seven, ten, fifteen, twenty years and upwards: but, to prevent despair, seldom for life. As an encouragement to sobriety and industry, those who distinguish themselves by such behaviour, are discharged before the expiration of their term. A prisoner who gives information of an intended escape is favoured much in this respect: his term is considerably shortened. A little before the election of new Magistrates, those who are in office inspect these Prisons; and inquire of the Keeper which prisoners, of those who have been confined a few years, have been diligent and orderly: and of the Minister, which of them have been most attentive to public and private instructions. According to the accounts, they contract the appointed time of punishment: so that fourteen years will sometimes be reduced to eight or ten; and twelve years to six or seven. This practice of abridging the time of punishment upon reformation is in every view wise and beneficial. Indeed, I have some reason to think that criminals are often doomed to a longer term, with an intention to make such deductions upon their amendment.

* I HAVE heard in England that a countryman of ours, who was a prisoner in the Rasp-House at Amsterdam several years, was permitted to work at his own trade; shoe-making; and by being constantly kept employed, was quite cured of the vices which brought him to confinement. My informant added, that the prisoner received at his release a surplus of his earnings, which enabled him to set up in London; where he lived in credit, and at dinner commonly drank "Health to his worthy Masters at the Rasp-House."

I WAS informed that the work done in some of these Houses of Correction (especially where the men are employed in rasping) does not maintain them: though the men that are robust earn from eight to ten stivers a day; and healthy women by spinning &c. from four to six. But some earn less; those who are infirm very little: none however are quite idle but the sick. This is surely excellent policy; for besides guarding against the pernicious effects of idleness in a Prison, and breaking criminals to habits of industry, if work so constant does not support the Houses, how much heavier would be the public burden, maintaining the numerous offenders in these Prisons, if, as in many of our Bridewells, no work at all were done there?

IN Holland, as well as in Germany, there are private rooms in most of the Houses of Correction, in which young persons of a vicious and profligate turn are confined on the representation of their parents, till they shew signs of amendment.

DAM.

AT AMSTERDAM the Prison is under the Stadt-House. Debtors and felons quite separate. No court-yard. Visitants may converse with debtors at the lattices of their rooms, from nine to twelve in the forenoon. The debtor may buy an anchor of wine to depofite with the Keeper (who fells liquers): he is allowed to call for a bottle of it a day, paying the Keeper two stivers a bottle.

IN this city they compute 250,000 souls*; about one third of those in London: yet in 1775 I found but eighteen debtors, in 1776 only fifteen.

THE rooms for criminals are down fifteen steps: ten feet by nine: in each, one prisoner only: a bedstead &c. doorway twenty-two inches wide; door four inches thick: the condemned rooms have an iron door besides. In the latter a criminal is never left alone: two prisoners from the Rasp-House are always with him, to prevent his destroying himself. They rejoice at the service; for if they discharge it faithfully, their reward is an abridgment of their allotted term. I was credibly informed, that there was no execution here for the last two years: and that for a hundred years past there have not been, communibus annis, more than one a year. It is generally performed within forty-eight hours after sentence.

* IN the Stadt-House there is hung up to public view, a board shewing the mortality for the last two years, and for the last week, viz.

IN the Stadt-House there were six delinquents. Their allowance is nine stivers a day, for which the Keeper gives them—in the morning, four good slices of bread and butter—at dinner, rice soup, and two slices of bread—at supper, milk—besides about a quart of beer a day; and on Sunday three quarters of a pound of meat. He also pays for their weekly shaving, and for washing their linen. In some other Provinces the allowance is the same: in some, more. One of the Magistrates, with whom I was conversing upon the subject of English Prisons, said “Nourish your prisoners well, and keep them in dry rooms, and they will be healthy.”

AT the RASP-HOUSE over the gate is, in bas relief, a device somewhat somewhat like that at Mentz. At the inner gate is (as at other Rasp-Houses) a representation of two men rasping Logwood: which is here their principal employment. Yet regard is had not only to their degree of guilt, but to their strength: for I saw two men winding silk or thread. This last summer there were fifty-four prisoners. In some rooms, where they also sleep, were ten or twelve men rasping an appointed task. Others were in the warehouses, sorting and weighing; others bringing the wood to those rooms. If any one be idle, or refractory &c. he is shut up in a place of closer confinement under ground. I saw one who was so punished for burning logwood: he told me his sentence was for six weeks. On careful inquiry, I learned, that what has been said of a cellar, in which such transgressors are put to pump or drown, is not fact. Hours of work from six to twelve, and from one to four. In extra-hours they make tobacco-boxes &c. which they sell to visitants, who pay two stivers to go in. They are daily visited by the Medical Faculty; and have in general a healthy look. I wished to know more particulars of this famous Prison; but could scarce ever get from the cautious old Keeper a direct answer to any one question: though I paid him five visits with that intent. I could not go into the rooms till last time I was there, when a Magistrate accompanied me. The Keeper was still as much upon the reserve as before: but without asking him, I saw his prison was dirty.

IN

IN the SPIN-HOUSE (Spin-buis) you see a number of women criminals (there were thirty-two) some of whom had been the most abandoned; sitting in presence of the Mistress, quiet and orderly at their different sorts of work; spinning, plain work &c. Of the latter sort much is sent in from the city. Hours of work from six to twelve, and from one to eight. I saw them go from work to dinner: the Keeper as they call him Father presided. First they sang a Psalm: then they went in order down to a neat dining-room; where they seated themselves at two tables; and several dishes of boiled barley, agreeably sweetened, were set before them. The Father struck with a hammer: then in profound silence all stood up; and one of them read with propriety, a Prayer about four or five minutes. Then they sat down cheerful; and each filled her bowl, from a large dish which contained enough for four of them. Then one brought on a waiter slices of bread and butter, and served each prisoner.

HOUSE.

As I staid longer than a common visitant, one of the prisoners went up to the Mistress with the timid modesty of a suppliant, and asked leave to offer me the plate. The leave was granted. The Mistress keeps what is given, till it amounts to a sum sufficient to purchase a little Tea or Coffee, for all to partake.

HERE (as at some other towns in Holland) is a Prison or Work-house

Work-house for flighter offences; where prisoners are employed in Spinning, weaving coarse Carpets, picking Oakum &c.

DOL-HUIS.

I WILL just mention the DOL-HUIS, an Hospital for the Insane: because it would (in my opinion) be a good plan for a Bridewell, with the addition of working rooms. The ground plot is rectangular: the Keeper's house takes up one of the shorter sides: the other three sides have, on the ground-floor, rooms in the recess of a walk full eight feet wide, under arcades; inclosed from the area or garden by a wall to the height of four feet: the upper part to the crown of the arch, open. Each person has a separate room, with two doors; the inner door is latticed; the outer, frequently stands open. Over the doors is an aperture in the wall, about a foot square. These rooms are for the Poor. Above are larger rooms for those whose friends can pay for them. Common visitants are not allowed to go up: but, injudiciously, every one that pays four stivers is admitted below. The windows all round open to the court-yard, none outwards.

HAGUE.

AT the HAGUE I was honoured with the very polite assistance of Sir Joseph Yorke. A Magistrate accompanied me to the Prison; where all was quiet and in order. The same Gentleman presented me with a copy of Instructions to the Sheriff of the Court; a copy of Rules for Officers of the Attorney-General; and with a M. S. copy on several sheets, of forty-four Rules for the Management of the Prison. The Gaoler is never suffered to sleep out of the House, but with the express consent of the Court, or the Advocate &c. and when that leave is, on any special occasion granted, he must provide a Substitute approved by the Court &c. This Substitute is sworn to his temporary office. If any prisoner escapes, whether by the immediate fault of the Keeper, or the fault of his servants, he is to suffer the punishment that was due to the prisoner. He may not keep a tavern or alehouse: nor play at cards &c. with his prisoners: nor accept of any treat or gift from them, directly or indirectly, during their confinement or afterwards. He must keep the Prison neat and clean: furnish fresh straw once a week; and in winter coverlids. The Attorney-General or his Deputy is to see that all this be duly performed. The Keeper is to supply prisoners with good bread, soup, and beer. Those who pay eighteen stivers a day (or what other sum the Magistrates shall allow them to expend) are to have provision proportioned to that price. Visitants are not permitted to be in the Prison from eleven in the morning, till two: and are dismissed in the evening at six in summer, at four in winter. None to be admitted on Saturday: nor in time of Divine Service on Sunday. Candles to be taken away at nine. The Keeper to guard against accidents by fire.

THE Rules for Officers of the Attorney-General, and of the Sheriff have an admirable effect in preserving peace, and order. There are thirty-two of them. I cannot ~~for~~ bear abstracting a few. No officer to stir out of town without special leave: and while in town each must always give notice where he may be found. In case of fire they must immediately repair to the Court-Gate for instructions. Arrests of delinquents must be performed quietly. No officer to serve or watch instead of another. Neglect of duty through drunkenness is punished with living in Prison on bread and water at their own expence for three days, eight days, and at last, with discharge. They may not keep company with any persons in public houses &c. Giving ill language is punished by a fine: quarrels, at discretion of the Magistrates. Not giving information of defaulters is punished with discharge. They are to guard against being guilty of ill behaviour of any sort, that no dishonour may be cast upon the Court of Judicature. Each officer to have a copy of the Rules, and keep it to shew on demand, on pain of a fine. The whole to be read to them all together by the Sheriff once a month.

GRONINGEN.

AT GRONINGEN the Rasp and Spin-House together, has on the ground-floor rooms for men. In the floor above it are four apertures two feet by three and a half each into the wool warehouse above. These were lately made by the advice of a judicious Physician (a Professor), who thought the men's rooms not sufficiently airy, though they have opposite windows; the men sleeping as well as working in them: on which account they are still somewhat offensive. Women have a work-room, and a lodging-room quite separate: both of them very clean. All the prisoners are employed on a woollen manufacture.

AT LEWARDEN the Rasp-House had in it thirty-four men: a few of them rasping Logwood, with an instrument composed of ten saws united: others combing and spinning black wool: others spinning twine; weaving sacks, and coarse linen cloth &c. At their leisure they make shoe-pegs, tobacco-sloppers, sugar-saucers of brass wire &c. and sell them to visitants. In the Spin-House adjoining, were thirty-six women: all at work, preparing thread &c. except one, whom the Mistress, going up with me from her breakfast, found idle in a warehouse; and not only rated her for it sufficiently, but entertained me with her murmurs upon the offence a good while after; from whence I concluded the fault was not a very common one. LEWARDEN.

AT UTRECHT no prisoners in the Stadt-House. The Keeper told me the allowance was twelve stivers a day: "for, said he, confinement here is not meant as punishment; but only as safe custody till trial*." After which, UTRECHT.

* THE same observation I remember was made to me by the Keeper at Nimeguen, where the allowance is ten stivers. Here also were no prisoners.

“some who are to be punished by a short imprisonment “are sent to another Prison, where they live on bread and “water only.” He said a woman who had been his prisoner, was that day sentenced to be so punished for a fortnight: but he added, “She will have a sufficient quantity; and if she be ill, her food will be altered.”

DELT. AT DELFT there were near ninety in the House of Correction: men and women quite separate: all neat and clean, and looked healthy. They told me their allowance was five stivers a day *. All employed on a woollen manufacture—women spinning, carding &c.—men weaving from coarse to very fine Cloth: their task, to earn thirty-five stivers a week. Some earn a small surplus; but they have only half of it. A Burgomaster, to whom I mentioned that circumstance, said it was the truth. They do not put more than eight or ten men to work in one room: for when large numbers are together, one idle person corrupts more; and there is not generally so much work done. Here also, if a prisoner has behaved well for a few years, and given proofs of amendment, the Magistrates begin to abridge the time for which he was sentenced. One whom I saw very cheerful,

* A GUINEA 252d. is = 11 guilders 11 stivers = 231 stivers (for 20 stivers is a guilder) therefore stivers are to pence as $\frac{231}{20} = \frac{11}{12}$:
 i. e. 11 stivers is equal to a shilling.

told me the cause of his joy was that a year had lately been taken from his term.

AT ROTTERDAM in the Prison under the Stadt-House were neither debtors nor felons. In the Rasp and Spin-House about forty men and a hundred women. The former, three or four in a room, making Fishing-Nets, carding Wool, sorting Coffee &c. Women mostly employed on a manufacture of Worsted, spinning, and working at a great wheel like those which at Derby are turned by water.

DAM.

THE PEST-HOUSE across the Maes opposite Rotterdam is a spacious building in a small isle. It is nearly a square of one hundred and thirty feet: has four spacious wards which are about thirty feet wide and twenty high. I mention this edifice, not only as it occurred to me that it would be a good plan for a House of Correction, being airy, and built round a court in which is a basin of water communicating with the Maes; but on account of the sentiments of veneration it inspired, when I trod on the ground under which such piles of my brave countrymen lie buried; it having been used as a Military Hospital after the siege of Bergen-op-Zoom.

HOUSE.

'F L A' N D E R S.

THE FRENCH PROVINCES here and in the Netherlands are chiefly governed by the same Arrêt de Parlement as their Provinces in France. I will therefore mention only one circumstance at Arras in Artois which was different from what I had seen in France. Of one hundred and thirty-nine prisoners in this Gaol, I saw two in the court-yard who had irons. But upon asking one of them the reason of it, he told me "it was for attempting an escape."

IN the AUSTRIAN NETHERLANDS I found the Prisons in general clean; and no sickness prevailing in any one of them: and yet few of the Prisons have a court-yard: in most of them every prisoner is confined to his room. In some places, as at Antwerp &c. the allowance to Criminals is scanty; a pound of bread a day, and a pound of butter a week: but the deficiency is fully made up by supplies from the Monasteries &c. Debtors very few: alimanted by creditors.

AT BRUSSELS twenty-four Felons: daily allowance two BRUSSELS.
pounds of bread (pain de munition) and some soup: on Sunday, except in Lent, a pound of meat. A Keeper of the House of Correction was lately committed to this Gaol for abuse of his trust. Debtor's are sent to another Prison:
the creditor is obliged to advance a month's aliment. In that Prison I saw an Englishman who had his wife and two or three children with him; but they were not permitted to stay at night.

VILFORDE. The House of Correction now building VILFORDE. near this town for all the provinces of Austrian Brabant, is upon the largest scale of any structure of the kind that I have seen. It is situated upon the great canal leading to Brussels; and is almost surrounded by water. The ground plot, a plan of which I have by me, is rectangular, except a sweep before the court of the Governor's house. The longer sides are about two hundred and ten yards; the shorter about one hundred and sixty-seven. At the back of one of the longer sides, fronting the West, I counted eighty windows on a floor. There are the same number opposite, looking inwards towards the courts. Each of these belongs to a separate room or cell, near six feet and a half by five and a half, and eight feet high; and a long passage eight feet and a half wide runs through each floor, into which all the opposite rooms open. Two floors of this side are finished, making three hundred and twenty rooms; there are

are two more, as yet unfinished, of the same number of rooms. Each of the two shorter sides has one hundred and seventy-six rooms, of the same size as the others, and ~~as~~ as many floors. Part of these sides are finished; so that, including some rooms on each side the Governor's house, about five hundred are now ready of the nine hundred and ninety-two. On some vacant ground at the shorter sides more rooms will be built if wanted. Of so great importance is it wisely judged by these Provinces to keep every prisoner at night by himself, that this vast number of rooms is contrived that each may lodge one person only.

ON each side the gate of the court before the Governor's house is a Porter's lodge. Prisoners will pass this way to their respective wards behind the House. Those committed for life will be quite separate from those who are for a limited term: and men totally so from women; not only in their Wards, Work-rooms, and Refectories; but also in two distinct Chapels. These Chapels are octagons of about thirty-five feet; and on each floor the prisoners will have a room looking into them. The work-rooms are numerous; about forty feet by twenty: some up stairs, others under ground for weaving fine linen: but no prisoners are to sleep under ground. Staircases all stone, six feet wide: some dark cells for confining the refractory. A Kitchen forty-seven feet by thirty-four: Bakehouse, and Slaughterhouse large in proportion, and commodious. Convenient apartments for several several Chaplains : and proper rooms for a military guard. No prisoners as yet : and two spacious Infirmaries designed, are not begun.

AT MECHLIN one of the best rooms in the Prison is for MECHLIN.
Debtors : but none in it. Three criminals up stairs : no dungeons. Allowance, two sixpenny loaves and a pound of butter weekly : on Sunday a pound of meat, and some soup : three pints of small beer daily. Straw, and two blankets. Firing from the 1st of November to the 1st of May. Clean linen every week from a charity. I will not describe the mode of Torture.

AT BRUGES there is to the Prison a court-yard for BRUGES.
Criminals, and another for Debtors : but the former are never let out. Each sort has a daily allowance in money, about three-pence halfpenny English : provisions rather cheaper than in London : a clean shirt every week. Debtors have the allowance from their Creditors ; who also pay the Keeper a small fee at the entrance of the prisoner, and a penny a day during his confinement. No under-ground dungeons. Two things are remarkable in this Prison, and well worth imitating. One is the care they take of the Sick. There are two Medical Books, one for the City, the other for the Seigneuries or Lordships of Parishes, which are governed by different Magistrates, but the Prison is common to both. The Physician at every visit enters his in the respective Book, which is carried to the Apothecary ; who after copying the Recipe, sends the book back again ; and it is kept in the room where the Magistrates meet to hold a Court of Judicature, inspect the Prison &c. I spent some hours in looking over them. The prescriptions are written with regularity for many years past. Bark and Cordials were almost constant ingredients in the Recipe. They are not troubled with infectious distempers ; but perhaps the Physicians are somewhat apprehensive of them, and order those preventives with success. The Physician orders a Surgeon to attend when the case requires one : and at his order also the Keeper provides for the sick, Soup, white Bread &c. the Magistrates allowing for this Fourteen-pence a day, to continue till countermanded by the Physician. Some sick prisoners have been many weeks thus liberally provided for.

THE other exemplary practice is their care of Legacies and Donations. In the Council-Chamber, under a picture representing visiting the sick, feeding the hungry, and releasing the prisoner, there is in a frame a printed List of all Charities given or bequeathed to the Prisoners from the year 1315 to 1734 ; with the names and intentions of the several Donors : and in another small frame is a memorial of the time at which each bequest is to be distributed.

each criminal has from the city about four-pence halfpenny English, a day: and provision being there about one third cheaper than in London, some of them save a little out of that allowance after paying for the weekly washing of their linen.

IN the State Prison, governed by other Magistrates, criminals have four-pence a day. In each of those Prisons the Keeper has from the Magistrates two-pence a day for the custody of every prisoner. In the two Prisons, four debtors.

HERE is a Prison belonging to the rich Monastery of Benedictines in the Abbey of St. Peter. There are now thirty-five of the fraternity: who have many Lordships, and part of the City in their jurisdiction. The Prison joins to the Abbot's Court-House. Three dreary dungeons down nineteen steps: a little window in each: no prisoners. I went down; but my noting the dimensions of the windows &c. so enraged the Keeper, that he would not indulge my curiosity any farther.

THE House of Correction for the City of Ghent is not so commodiously built, nor kept so clean as some other Flemish Prisons: but there are very good Rules of Economy, of which I have a copy. Every prisoner is examined at his first coming; and if he be not healthy, he is not put among those that are so. That the Keeper may not be tempted to oppress his prisoners, he is exempted from all Taxes. The prisoners have a set task of different sorts of work : the profits of extra-work their own. The Magistrates meet in the Prison once a week to inspect it ; and to appoint the sort and quantity of provision for every day of the week ensuing. They order the Physician to see that the sick have broth, and other nourishment proper for them. The Keeper provides it and is paid by the Magistrates. I happened to go into the Prison while they were there, and saw them employed as above.

I BEG leave here, on account of the humanity of its institution, to digress from my subject by taking notice of a Nunnery in this place. The Hospitable Mansion is not inhabited solely by Nuns ; it is destined to the reception of men who are insane, and sick aged women. The insane have, when requisite, assistance from their own sex ; and the tenderness with which both these and the poor women are treated by the sisters, gave me no little pleasure.

THERE is at Ghent a new Prison building by the States of Austrian Flanders. It is a House of Correction for all those Provinces (as that at Vilforde for Austrian Brabant) and is called LA MAISON DE FORCE. It is situated near a Canal. The plan is an Octagon : only four sides finished : in one of them were in 1775 one hundred and fifty-nine men criminals :

PLAN OF LA MAISON de FORCE at GHENT.

nals: this year one hundred and ninety-one. Another of the sides is for women, of whom there were fifty-nine. In the middle of this court is a basin of running water, for washing all the Linen of the House.

ON each of the four floors there is a corridor, or arcade, six feet nine inches wide, quite open to the air of the yard, which, however, is not attended with any inconvenience, even in winter. In the recess of every corridor, except the lowest, is a range of bed-rooms, six feet nine inches by four feet ten, and eight feet eight inches high: the doorway two feet. These are uniformly furnished with a bedstead, six feet and a half by two and a half, a straw bed, a mattress, a pillow, a pair of sheets, two blankets in winter and one in summer. Each room has a little bench, and a shutter to the lattice window (in the door), which, when opened and turned down, serves for a table. In the wall is a little cupboard, two feet by one, and ten inches deep. All the rooms are vaulted to prevent fire from running from story to story. No person is on any pretence admitted into the bed-room of another. They have a clean shirt once a week, and clean sheets once a month. The women have not separate rooms. Some of theirs are ten feet and a half by nine and a half.

IN order to the admission of a prisoner, previous notice must be given by the City or Province that sends him.

When

When he comes, he is shaved and washed: a Surgeon examines him; and if healthy, he is cloathed with the uniform of the House, which is marked with the number of his room; to it he is conducted by one of the most orderly of the prisoners; who is appointed to that service, and who also acquaints him with the Rules of the House. Commitment from one year to twenty or more.

A BELL is rung in the morning to summon the prisoners into the dining-room; in the summer at five; in winter the hour varies with the length of the days. Half an hour after the bell rings, their names are called over; and they go to Prayers in a Chapel. They are then allowed half an hour to breakfast. At noon they have two hours, for dinner; making their beds (which in fair weather they bring out to air); and for recreation. I was present during the whole time the men criminals were at dinner, and much admired the regularity, decency, and order, with which the whole was conducted. Every thing was done at a word given by a Director; no noise or confusion appeared; and this company of near one hundred and ninety stout criminals was governed with as much apparent ease as the most sober and well-disposed assembly in civil society. At night they have an hour for supper &c. The bell gives notice of all these successive hours: it is rung at a window over the gate-way by a Centinel, who there overlooks the whole yard; and, should there be any disturbance, is to give the alarm to a company who keep guard.

ON the ground-floors of the building are work-rooms. Those for the men are too small for the looms &c. The women's work-room is one hundred and seventeen feet long, twenty-six wide, and nine to the springing of the arch. In this many were spinning and combing wool; mending linen, &c. Others were washing in places proper for that purpose.

AN exact account is kept of every circumstance relating to each man's work, in a Book that has fourteen columns. The 1st Column contains the Names of Prisoners.

2. The Sort of Stuff on which each Man is employed; as Shalloon, Cloth, Dimity &c.
3. The Number that is marked on the Piece.
4. The Day it was begun.
5. The Day it was finished.
6. Measure of the whole Piece.
7. Number of Working-Days, the Prisoner was upon it.
8. The Task due per Day.
9. Surplus Work upon the Piece beyond Task.
10. Price of the Piece per Ell.
11. Observations, or Occasional Circumstances: such as Sick, Lame, difficult Work, first Piece &c.
12. Payment to Prisoners for Surplus Work.
13. Deficiency of Task.
14. Punishment for the Default.

This last column is written by the Magistrates themselves.

I saw

I saw in it — often excuse — sometimes make up in next piece — sometimes to work alone — to bread and water — seldom to rasping logwood. The daily allowance is two pounds of bread; some soup of beans, pease &c. with wheat-bread in it; and except Friday and Lent half a pound of cold meat. Each prisoner has also the value of our farthing, for which he can buy near two pints of small beer; or somewhat else which the victualler of that Prison is allowed to sell, and deliver to them at a wicket in the wall. Spirituous liquors are expressly prohibited: and so is wine, unless it be ordered by a note from the Physician. It is not allowed to give any ~~money~~ directly to the prisoners: but there is a box into which money may be put; and at stated times it is equally distributed among them. Cards, Dice, and all gaming are strictly forbidden: and there are excellent Rules for preventing all quarreling; for mending their morals; preserving their health; and making them for the future useful in Society. To transcribe all the Rules would to most readers be disagreeable. Such as wish to see them will find them, together with more particulars of this noble Institution, in two Edicts printed in folio at Ghent in 1773 and 75: the first in French and Low Dutch; the latter only French: and in a book in quarto written by Count Vilain XIV. and offered to the Government in 1775. The title of it is Memoire sur les Moyens de corriger les Malfaiteurs et Fainéans a leur propre Avantage et de les rendre Utiles a l'Etat. A Gand &c.

I SAID transcribing all the Rules at length, would be tedious; for this reason I have only given extracts from these, and from those made for other Foreign Prisons. I have compleat copies of them, and of others which I have not mentioned; some printed, others M. S. which I will readily show to any Gentleman who has leisure and inclination to study the subject.

WHEN I formerly made the tour of Europe, I seldom had occasion to envy Foreigners any thing I saw with respect to their Situation, their Religion, Manners or Government. In my late journeys to view their Prisons, I was sometimes put to the blush for my native country. The Reader will scarcely feel from my narration the same emotions of shame and regret as the comparison excited in me, on beholding the difference with my own eyes. But from the account I have given him of Foreign Prisons, he may judge whether a design of reforming our own be merely visionary—whether Idleness, Debauchery, Disease, and Famine be the necessary attendants of a Prison, or only connected with it in our ideas for want of more perfect knowledge, and more enlarged views. I hope too he will do me the justice to think that neither an indiscriminate ~~admiration~~ of every thing foreign, nor a fondness of censuring every thing at home, has influenced me to adopt the language of a Panegyrist in this part of my work, or that of a Complainant in the rest.

Where I have commended I have mentioned my reasons for so doing ; and I have dwelt perhaps more minutely upon the management of Foreign Prisons, because it was more agreeable to me to praise than to condemn. Another motive induced me to be very particular in my accounts of Foreign Houses of Correction, especially those of the freest States. It was to counteract a notion prevailing among us that compelling prisoners to work, especially in public, was inconsistent with the principles of English Liberty ; at the same time that taking away the lives of such numbers, either by executions, or the diseases of our Prisons, seems to make little impression upon us. Of such force is custom and prejudice in silencing the voice of good sense and humanity !

I HAVE only to add that, fully sensible of the imperfection which must attend the cursory survey of a traveller, it was my study to remedy that defect by a constant attention to the one object of my pursuit alone, during the whole of my two last journeys abroad.

S E C T I O N V.

A PARTICULAR ACCOUNT OF ENGLISH PRISONS.

AS the Tables of which the present Section will chiefly consist, contain several terms which cannot be expected to be familiar to the generality of my Readers, I shall begin with an explanation of them.

IN the first page of every County, City, &c. the second article of the Gaoler or Keeper's emolument is FEES; by which are meant such only as are taken by him and his servants on the admission or discharge of a Prisoner. The sums set down under this head are from the best information I could procure in my repeated journeys; but they differ sometimes from those specified in the Tables of Fees where such are found.

THE next article under Gaoler is TRANSPORTS. The sum set down to this, is what (from the best intelligence I the Prisons over which they preside, and to which they commit offenders, be fit for the purposes they are designed to answer. I might add, that a variety of descriptions may possibly suggest something useful in the plans of such Prisons as may hereafter be erected ; since whatever may appear worth copying may be extracted from any.

I HAVE here and there taken the liberty of pointing out what seemed to me, as I viewed a Prison, an obvious remedy of some defect that happened to strike me. But I did not examine with the accuracy of a Surveyor ; and hope I shall not be thought to direct in the style of a Dictator.

THE Builders of Old Newgate seem to have regarded in their plan, nothing but the single article of keeping prisoners in safe custody. The rooms and cells were so close, as to be almost the constant

REMARKS.

NEWGATE. stant seats of disease, and sources of infection; to the destruction of multitudes, not only in the Prison, but abroad. The City had therefore very good reason for their resolution to build a new Gaol. The Plate will give a better idea of it than any description. I give the plan, rather to gratify the curiosity of my Readers, than as a model to be followed. Many inconveniences of the old Gaol are avoided in this new one: but it has some manifest errors. It is now too late to point out particulars. All I will say, is, that without more than ordinary care, the prisoners in it will be in great danger of the Gaol-Fever.

THE Cells built in Old Newgate a few years since for condemned malefactors, are intended for the same use at present. I shall therefore give some account of them. There are upon each of the three floors five cells: all vaulted, near nine feet high to the crown. The cells on the ground-floor measure full nine feet by near six; the five on the first story are a little larger, on account of the set-off in the wall; and the five uppermost, still a little larger for the same reason. In the upper part of each cell, is a window double grated, near three feet by one and a half. The doors are four inches thick. The strong stone wall is lined all round each cell with planks, studded with broad-headed nails. In each cell is a barrack-bedstead. I was told by those who attended me, that criminals who had affected an air of boldness during their trial, and appeared quite unconcerned at the pronouncing sentence upon them, were struck with horror, and shed ~~tears~~ when brought to these darksome solitary abodes.

THE New Chapel is plain and neat. Below are three or four pews for men felons &c. On each side is a gallery: that towards the women's ward is for them: in it is a pew for the Keeper, whose prefence may set a good example and be otherwise useful. The other gallery towards the debtors ward is for them. The stairs to each gallery are on the outside of the Chapel. NEWGATE.

I WENT once to Prayers there. Mr. Villette read them distinctly, and with propriety: the few prisoners who were present, seemed attentive: but we were disturbed by the noise in the yard. Mr. Villette told me "that was always the case, even on Sundays." Surely they who will not go to Chapel, who are by far the greater number, should not be suffered to hinder the edification of such as are better disposed.

THE Chaplain (or Ordinary) besides his salary, has a House in Newgate-street, clear of Land-Tax; two Freedoms yearly, which commonly sell for twenty-five pounds each; Lady Barnadiston's Legacy, six pounds a year; an old Legacy paid by the Governors of St. Bartholomew's Hospital, ten pounds a year: the City generally presents him once in six months with another Freedom. He engages when chosen to hold no other living.

DEBTORS have every day from the Chamber of London sixteen stone of beef: Fines eight stone: and some years Felons eight stone. Debtors have several Legacies. I inquired for a list of them, and Mr. Akerman told me "The Table in Maitland's Survey, which he shewed me, was authentic." The amount of it is £53:5:8 a year. He said there were also a few more.

persons charged with contempts of the Courts of Chancery, Exchequer, and Common Pleas. FLEET.

IN 1728 many abuses practised by the Warden were the subject of parliamentary inquiry.

THE Prison was rebuilt a few years since. At the front is a narrow court-yard. At each end of the building, there is a small projection, or wing. There are four floors, they call them Galleries, besides the cellar-floor, called Bartholomew-Fair. Each gallery consists of a passage in the middle, the whole length of the Prison, i. e. sixty-six yards; and rooms on each side of it about fourteen feet and a half by twelve and a half, and nine and a half high. A chimney and window in every room. The passages are narrow (not seven feet wide) and darkish, having only a window at each end.

ON the first floor, the Hall-Gallery, to which you ascend eight steps, are, a Chapel, a Tap-room, a Coffee-room (lately made out of two rooms for Debtors), a room for the Turnkey, another for the Watchman, and eighteen rooms for Prisoners.

BESIDES the Coffee-room and Tap-room, two of those eighteen rooms, and all the cellar-floor, except a lock-up room to confine the disorderly, and another room for the Turnkey, are held by the Tapster, John Cartwright, who bought the remainder of the lease at public auction in 1775. The cellar-floor is sixteen steps below the hall-gallery. It consists of the two rooms just now mentioned, the Tapster's kitchen, his four large beer and wine cellars, and fifteen rooms for Prisoners. These fifteen, and the two before-mentioned FLEET. mentioned on the hall-gallery, the Tapster lets to Prisoners for four to eight shillings a week*.

ON the first Gallery (that next above the hall-gallery) are twenty-five rooms for Prisoners. On the second Gallery twenty-seven rooms. One of them, fronting the staircase, is their Committee-room. A room at one end is an Infirmary. At the other end in a large room over the Chapel is a dirty Billiard-table; kept by the Prisoner who sleeps in that room. ON the highest story are twenty-seven rooms. Some of these upper rooms, viz. those in the wings, are larger than the rest; being over the Chapel, the Tap-room, &c.

ALL the rooms I have mentioned are for Master's-side Debtors. The weekly rent of those not held by the Tapster is one shilling and three-pence unfurnished. They fall to the Prisoners in succession, thus: when a room becomes vacant, the first Prisoner upon the list of such as have paid their entrance-fees, takes possession of it. When the Prison was built, the Warden gave each Prisoner his choice of a room according to his seniority as Prisoner. If all the rooms be occupied, a new comer must hire of some tenant a part of his room; or shift as he can. Prisoners are excluded from all right of succession to the rooms held by the Tapster, and let at the high rents aforesaid.

THE apartments for Common-side Debtors are only part of the right wing of the Prison. Besides the cellar (which was intended for their kitchen, but is occupied with lumber, and shut up) there are four floors. On each floor is a room about twenty-four or twenty-five feet square, with a fire-place; and on the sides seven closets or cabins to sleep in. Such of these Prisoners as swear in Court or before a Commissioner that they are not worth five pounds, and cannot subsist without charity, have the donations which are sent to the Prison, and the begging-box, and grate. Of them there were at my last visit sixteen.

I HAVE in the Report of the Committee of the House of Commons 1728 a Table of some Charities: but I saw no such Table in the Prison.

THERE is plenty of water from the river and pumps: and a spacious yard behind the Prison.

I MENTIONED the billiard-table. They also play in the yard at skittles, mississippi, fives, tennis, &c. And not only the Prisoners: I saw among them several butchers and others from the market; who are admitted here as at another public house. The same may be seen in many other Prisons where the Gaoler keeps or lets the tap. Besides the inconvenience of this to Prisoners; the frequenting a Prison lessens the dread of being confined in one.

ON Monday night there is a Wine-Club: on Thursday night a Beer-Club: each lasting usually till one or two in the morning. I need not say how much riot these occasion; and how the sober Prisoners are annoyed by them.

FLEET. SEEING the Prison crowded with women and children, I procured an accurate list of them; and found that on (or about) the 6th of April 1776, when there were on the Master's side 213 Prisoners, on the Common side 30, Total 243; their wives (including women of an appellation not so honourable) and children were 475.

I was surprized to see in this Prison a Table of Fees containing only those of the Clerks of the Papers and Inquiries: and that the date of it was 1727, i. e. before the Committee of the House of Commons made their inquiry. I did not doubt but another Table was settled after that inquiry; and that it contained the Warden's Fees also. But upon asking the Clerk of the Papers for a later Table, I was referred to that which hung up. It is as follows.

A TABLE of FEES to be taken by the Clerk of the Papers and by the Clerk of the Inquiries of the Fleet Prison pursuant to the Resolution of the Honourable XX of the Court of Common Pleas in the Easter and Trinity Terms 13th GEORGE 1st 1727.

THERE is in the Prison a TABLE of RULES or ORDERS. They were made at very distant times, from the reign of Queen Elizabeth, to the date they bear ; and some of them partly coincide with others :
those which do so I have put together to avoid repetition, and have presumed to abridge the whole.

HILARY 3d GEORGE II. 1729.

1. 2. 3. WARDEN or Deputy to appoint Turnkeys &c. with Arms : to stop persons bringing Arms, and watch if an escape be in agitation.
4. WARDEN to distribute charity-money. He, or his Agent, to keep one key of the box ; and the Prisoners another.

FLEET. . 5. 6. 12. If a Master-side Debtor shall neglect for three months to pay his chamber-rent; the Warden may, not lock him up, but, remove him to the Common-side; delivering to him his goods by a witnessed inventory. After discharge, if legal dues be still unpaid, he may be detained in the Common-ward: the door of which is never to be shut but at night (summer at ten, winter at nine): and then a Watchman must attend to open it for those who must go to the yard &c.

7. SUCH as attempt to escape, or greatly misbehave, may be shut up in a close room or dungeon.

N. B. It was reported to the four Judges whose names are here subscribed, and who made inquiry concerning it, to be "boarded wholesome and dry."

8. 18. WARDEN to repair the whole House, Chapel, Drains &c. and keep all clean. To take care that Divine Service be duly performed, and the Sacraments administered. Prisoners to attend.

9. AGAINST clandestine Fleet-marriages.

10. THOSE who blaspheme, curse, swear, or are disorderly, to be set in the stocks.

11. 13. WARDEN or Deputy to dispose of the chambers, and tap: and see that good order be observed in the public rooms &c.

14. WARDEN to take effectual care that no Prisoner be carried to a Spunging-house; and that NO GARNISH be demanded from a new comer.

15. WARDEN to cause a Table of Gifts and Bequests, written in a fair and legible hand, to be hung up in the Hall. And to see that no Prisoner be defrauded of his share. None of the servants to partake or distribute.

16. EVERY Prisoner not worth five pounds &c. (As before in Remarks.) FLEET.
17. Two rooms to be an Infirmary for Common-side Debtors. No Prisoner obliged to sleep with one that is diseased.
19. CORONER's Inquest upon the dead: and corps to be delivered to the friends, free of cost.
20. WARDEN not to remove a Prisoner to the King's Bench by Habeas Corpus.
- 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26. WARDEN to keep books, and register commitments, courts from whence, declarations, discharges, writs of Habeas Corpus. Tipstaff and Judge's Clerk to keep each a separate book of Prisoners delivered up at a Judge's Chamber.
27. ALL those books, except the Tipstaff's, to be kept in the Public Office of the Clerk of the Papers; accessible to all persons for copying &c.
28. No Clerk, Officer, or Servant of any Judge to take a Fee on occasion of a petition or complaint, founded upon the foregoing Orders, or any misgovernment.
29. THAT the Warden and his Officers do treat the several Prisoners in his custody with all tenderness and humanity: and that such Prisoners do behave themselves toward the Warden with that submission and regard which the law requires.

THERE is, moreover, a little Code of Laws, eighteen in number, enacted by the Master's-side Debtors, and printed by D. Jones 1774. It establishes a President, a Secretary, and a Committee, which is to be chosen every month, and to consist of three members from each Gallery. These are to meet in the Committee-room every Thursday: and at other times when summoned by the Cryer, at command of the President, or of a majority of their own number. They are to raise contributions by assessment: to hear complaints: determine disputes: levy fines, and seize goods for payment. Their Sense to be deemed the sense of the whole House. The President or Secretary to hold the cash; the Committee to dispose of it. Their Scavenger to wash the galleries once a week; to water and sweep them every morning before eight; to sweep the yard twice every week; and to light the lamps all over the House. No person to throw out water &c. any where but at the sinks in the yard. The Cryer may take of a Stranger a penny for calling a Prisoner to him; and of a Complainant two-pence for summoning a Special Committee. For blasphemy, swearing, riot, drunkenness, &c. the Committee to fine at discretion: for damaging a lamp, fine a shilling. They are to take from a New Comer, on the first Sunday, besides the two shillings GARNISH to be spent in wine, one shilling and six-pence to be appropriated to the use of the House.

COMMON-SIDE Prisoners to be confined to their own apartments, and not to associate with these LAW-MAKERS, nor to use the same conveniences.

N E W L U D G A T E,

IN BISHOPGATE-STREET.

THIS Prison for Debtors who are free of the City, for Clergymen, Proctors and Attorneys, was formerly a Bridewell to the London Work-house adjoining.

REMARK:

ON the ground-floor are, a long-room, a tap-room, and a kitchen. In each of them is a staircase; leading first to eleven rooms for Master-side Debtors—viz. over the long-room, a sizeable chamber, and a room on each of the two floors above: over the tap-room, four small rooms, which have iron bars at the windows, and a larger room above them: over the kitchen, a sizeable chamber, and two rooms above. The Common-side Debtors are in two large garrets, the Forest and Dock.

THE Prison is out of repair. No regard has been paid to the Act, which enjoins white-washing &c. A small Court-yard, with a Cistern for river-water. No Infirmary. The Chapel is common to the Prison and Work-house.

THE City allowance is ten stone of beef a week: to which has been added since the 9th of February 1776, a penny loaf a day for each Prisoner. The Lord Mayor and Sheriffs send annually coals: and

NEW and Messrs. Calvert and Co. send from the Peacock-brewhouse weekly LUDGATE. a generous donation of two barrels of small beer. Keeper's salary, £70: Fees, see Table. He lives distant; but the Deputy is constant and careful in his attendance, and respected by the Prisoners.

REMARKS. FOR Master's-side Debtors there are about fifteen rooms between the inner and outer gates. For Common-side Debtors, six wards within the inner gate, two of them on the ground-floor, viz. the King's Ward, in which were twenty-four Debtors; and the Prince's Ward, nine Debtors. In each of these wards, some Prisoners (for want of more room) sleep on a broad shelf or cabin over those on the lower beds. Above those wards are the Middle Ward, in it were twenty Debtors; and the Women's Ward, two Debtors. Above them are the Upper Ward, eleven Debtors; and the *Jews Ward, four Jew Debtors. Near the middle ward, on the same floor, is a close darkish room for the sick. In each ward, a fire-place. The rooms are out of repair: and no regard has been paid to the late Act for white-washing &c. but the Debtors keep the floors very clean. The yard is small, but that also is clean: the water constantly running.
King's

THE Tap-room is in the Court-yard. Adjoining to it is the Felons Day-room, the Bell. Their Night-rooms, one for men, another for women, are up stairs. But the women's room was once occupied for a work-shop by a Prisoner, a cooper; and the women slept in the Bell below. No straw or bedding.

ON one side of the Court-yard is a Chapel; with a narrow gallery all round for Master's-side Debtors. A man who is not in orders preaches on Sunday mornings; and gives the Prisoners books, or a little money: they spoke of him respectfully. The Chapel, and indeed the whole of this Prison, is quite out of repair.

AT the roof of the Prison, all round, are spacious leads, on which the Master's-side Debtors are sometimes allowed to walk: but then the Keeper is with them: for the leads communicate with the ad-

IN this Prison eight men had with them their wives and nineteen children. The other Prisoners, I learned, had forty-four wives and one hundred and forty-four children, not in the Gaol.

THE Clauses of the Act against Spirituous Liquors are not hung up.

REMARKS. THIS Prison, built, as appears by inscription on the front, in 1670, has only a small Court-yard or Passage for all Prisoners. Many apartments: yet but two rooms for Common-side Debtors: that for the men, which is their day-room, night-room, and kitchen, with a copper &c. is dark and dirty; about thirty-five feet by eighteen,

eighteen, and sixteen feet high; far too small for the number of Prisoners; many of whom sleep in twenty-three beds which are on three stories of galleries, or broad shelves. At one of my visits there were in this room thirty-nine Debtors; seven of them had their wives and children. The room swarms with bugs. The day and night-room for Women Debtors is more lightsome: in it were only two Prisoners. Beyond it is a room ruinous, and fit for no use.

FOR Men Felons there are two rooms: and two for Women: one of these is a dark cell. No bedding or straw. Those who choose a bed pay a shilling a night: or else ten shillings and six-pence floorage, and three shillings and six-pence a week.

NEAR those four rooms are twenty-three rooms for Master's-side Debtors.

IN the Court-yard is the Chapel: and under it the Tap-room, down sixteen steps.

ALL the rooms aforesaid are within the inner gate; between which and the outer gate (i. e. in the Keeper's house) are more rooms for Master's-side Debtors.

THE Prison is greatly out of repair: the main wall on one side shored and propped. No Infirmary.

THE Keeper pays to the Chamber of London £30 a year rent, which is repaid him for Fees of the poorest Prisoners. He also pays Window-tax £5 : 1 : 0.

I LEARNED from him that in the beginning of the year 1773 his Prisoners were sickly, and eleven died. Since that time the Governors of the General Dispensary have shewn a kind attention to these poor people; and ordered their Physician, Dr. Lettson, to visit visit them. He is esteemed by the Prisoners: and at my last visits, all were well.

THE allowance of a penny loaf is from the Chamber of London. Debtors (some of whom are from the Court of Conscience) have from the Peacock-brewhouse (Messrs. Calvert and Co.) a donation of two barrels of small beer a week: and from the Sheriff's thirty-two pounds of beef on Saturday. Mr. Taylor, formerly a baker, has for some years sent them weekly a large leg and shin of beef.

THERE are many Legacies for Common-side Debtors, who receive them quarterly. The annual amount is £59 : 2 : 11.

SOME years since, there came once a fortnight to Common-side Debtors in this Prison, nine stone of beef, and fourteen quartern loaves: and the like relief to other Prisons also. The Charitable Hand was concealed; till, the Donation failing on the death of the amiable Princess Caroline; it was supposed that her Highness had been the generous Benefactress. And upon representing to the Lady who had been Almoner to the Princess, the distress of the Prisoners, she obtained from the King a Renewal of the Charity; which was continued during his Majesty's life.

IN BLACK-FRYARS.

REMARKS. THIS building was formerly a Palace, near St. Bridget's (St. Bride's) Well; from whence it had the name; which, after it became a Prison, was applied to other Prisons of the same sort*. It was given to the City by King Edward VI. in 1552.

THAT part of Bridewell which relates to my subject has wards for men and women quite separate.—The men's ward on the ground-floor is a day-room in which they beat hemp; and, down a step, their night-room. One of the upper chambers is fitted up for an Infirmary.—The women's ward is a day-room on the ground-floor, in which they beat hemp; and a night-room over it. I was told that the chamber above this is to be fitted up for an Infirmary. The sick have, hitherto, been commonly sent to St. Bartholomew's Hospital: All the Prisoners are kept within doors.

THE women's rooms are large, and have opposite windows, for fresh air. Their ward, as well as the men's, has plenty of water: and there is a Hand-Ventilator on the outside, with a tube to each room of the women's ward. This is of great service, when the rooms are crowded with Prisoners, and the weather is warm.

THE Prisoners are employed by a Hemp-dresser, who has the profit of their labour, an apartment in the Prison, and a salary of £14. I generally found them at work: they are provided for, so as to be able to perform it. The hours of work are in winter from eight to four; in summer from six to six, deducting meal-times. The Steward is allowed eight-pence a day for the maintenance of each Prisoner; and contracts to supply them as follows—On Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Thursday, a penny loaf, ten ounces of dressed beef without bone, broth, and three pints of ten shilling beer: on Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday, a penny loaf, four ounces of cheese or some butter, a pint of milk-pottage, and three pints of ten shilling beer.

THE Porter or Keeper is John Brown. Salary £80; no Fees. To the women's ward there is a Matron, Sarah Lyon, Salary £60. She takes care of the sick, both men and women; and is allowed a shilling a day for those that are put on the sick diet.

IN Bridewell is a Public Chapel: the Prisoners go thither on Sunday morning (except such as are, in a manner, destitute of apparel): the men and women separated from each other, and from the rest of the congregation.

ON the walls of the Hall and Court-room are hung up many Tables of very considerable Gifts and Legacies to this Hospital, in common with others: sufficient, one would think, to have made this Prison more commodious, by providing several work-rooms, and lodging-rooms, for keeping the Prisoners more separate.

IN winter they have some firing. The night-rooms are supplied with straw. No other Prison in London has any straw or other bedding.

Salary, £50.

Salary, £60, for this Prison and the Bridewell.

THIS PRISON, built in 1775, is much more commodious than the former of the same name. Over the gate-way are two rooms, called Night-Charges, for Prisoners brought in the night, to be examined by a Magistrate next day. In one of them are Keeper's beds.

NEWPRISON beds. From that outer gate you pass on to the gate of the Men's COURT-YARD on the right hand, and of the Women's to the left. To each you descend seven steps. In the Men's Court is a large open shed, which is their day-room. The roof too low for the depth: it has a chimney. Their night-ward, into which they are not permitted to go in the day-time, that the air in it may be cool and fresh, is a house on the other side of the yard, divided into two parts. Each part has a room on the ground-floor, a chamber, and an upper room. In one part each of these rooms is thirty feet by thirty-one: in the other part, thirty by twenty: near ten feet high; well planked all over: no chimneys. For the purpose of transmitting air, every room has in front, to the yard, two windows; and backwards three, with iron bars, and shutters; but, very properly, no glass. Barrack-beds in every room; but in each of the two chambers and in one of the lower rooms are other beds for those who pay three shillings and six-pence a week: when these beds are occupied, no Prisoners sleep on the barrack-beds in those rooms. In this Court is a lock-up room for the unruly. All the stairs are stone.

ON one side of the Women's Court is their day-room; with a fire-place. Their night-rooms are—one on the ground-floor ranging with the day-room, and called the Low Ward; twenty-one feet by seventeen, and ten feet high—a chamber over it of the same size—and a passage or gallery over the day-room: on the back of it are five cabins or cupboards, each ten feet by five feet eight inches, with a barrack-bed for two prisoners. These closets will be very unwholesome; having no air but from grates over the doors into the gallery. The two larger night-rooms have windows only in front.

Iron

Iron bars and shutters : no glafs. The windows of both the Men's and Women's Ward are (as they should be) too high for them to look out.

CLERKEN-
WELL.

THE ground-floors, and the Men's Court-yard, are paved. The Women's, they told me, is to be paved also.

THERE is a Pump in each Court; and the New-River water is laid in : but not directly from the Main, and constantly on, as it is at the neighbouring Prison.

A CHAPEL, almost finished; which is to be common to this Prison and the Bridewell. Men of the two different prisons to be on opposite sides below; and women in opposite galleries. There is a room above it which lowers the ceiling. This circumstance, and the chapel not being large, will endanger its being offensive.

THE Tap-Room is near the outer gate. Prisoners do not come in to it; but take their liquor at a wicket made for that purpose in the wall, that separates it from them. No infirmary: no bedding or straw.

A MATRON has £5 salary out of the Gaoler's £30. In July 1775 the Justices thought fit to raise his fees from 5s. 6d. to 7s.

A GENEROUS Benefactor (a salesman in Smithfield) often sends the Prisoners beef and bread. They have occasionally other small donations.

IN the gate-way is a board on which is painted as follows.

IDEWELL. floor, one for Fines, and one for other Offenders, are about twenty feet by fourteen each ; with barrack-beds. One of them was so crowded, that some Prisoners slept in hammocks hung to the ceiling.
Over these night-rooms are chambers with beds for those who pay three shillings and six-pence a week. In another part of the yard is a Hemp-shop or Work-shop : through it you pass to six little Work-shops for faulty Apprentices ; seven feet by three and a half each : fronting these are their six night-rooms, rather larger than the shops ; all on the ground-floor.

In the Women's Court are three sheds or day-rooms ; same size as those of the men ; with a hemp-shop or work-shop. Over this, and the men's work-shop, is a long gallery or passage ; on the back of which are twelve dark unwholesome night-rooms for women ; nine feet by seven each, and ten and a half high : in some of them are beds for those who pay.

THE Prison is much out of repair. It has not been so much as white-washed for years : but in November 1776 the rooms were clean, and but one person sick ; a woman who lay on the floor. No straw. No Infirmary. I saw but few at work : sometimes none at all. A Matron has £5 a year.

THE Keeper pays Window-tax ; and £2 a year for New-River water ; which is directly from the Main, and always on. Besides this they have good water at a pump in each court-yard.

THE Keeper had a Salary of £50 ; but in July 1775 the Justices took off the Salary, and augmented the Fees from five shillings and six-fix-pence to seven shillings. At the same time, in lieu of Fees from CLERKEN-

WELL
BRIDEWELL. Acquitted Prisoners, which were cancelled by the late Act, they paid the Keeper at the rate of £20 a year from the time when that Act took place.

To this Bridewell, among Criminals, are committed Debtors from the Court of Conscience: they are discharged after forty days. Of these, at my last visit, there were three.

OF the one hundred and eight in January last, above thirty were Fines, that is, Criminals committed for a term of years, to five or six. Some of these, and of the others, were sick. They complained to me of sore feet, which the Turnkey said were quite black. The sick were for the most part women of the poorest sort; not able to pay for beds. There were, in the whole, near as many women-prisoners as men.

OF late they have made the men and women change wards and courts; those in which the women were before being thought strongest.

WHITE

FOR DEBTORS.

THIS is a Prison for the Liberty and Manor of Stepney; and REMARKS.
Hackney. The former includes, by a printed List which I have, towns, parishes, villages, streets, lanes, &c. to the number of forty-six; and was granted by King Edward VI. to Lord Wentworth, and his Heirs for ever.

In it are confined those whose debts are above £2, and under £5. The Master's-side Prisoners have four sizeable chambers, fronting the road; i. e. two on each story. They pay two shillings and six-pence a week; and lie two in a bed; two beds in a room. The Common-side Debtors are in two long rooms in the Court-yard, near the Tap-room. Men in one room, women in the other: the Court-yard in common. They hang out a begging-box from a little closet in the front of the House; and attend it in turn. It brings them only a few pence a day: and of this pittance, none partake but those who at Entrance have paid the Keeper two shillings and six-pence; and treated the Prisoners with half a gallon of beer. The last time I was there no more than three had purchased this privilege.

THE Prison is out of repair. The Keeper, George Garred, is an Officer: he pays Rent £20 to the Lady of the Manor; and keeps the Tap: Window-tax above £3. Fees £0 : 8 : 1. No Table: but in November last I saw a paper hung up, on which was written as follows:

For every person who chooses to lie on the Master-side } after the first night to pay every week — }	0	2	6

GEORGE GARRED Keeper 10th August 1776.

AT the same time I saw another paper intitled Rules and Orders to be observed in this Prison. It is dated Aug. 6. 1776. The first Rule is "That every person who comes into this Prison as a Prisoner, shall pay for his Garnish two shillings and ten-pence halfpenny."

THE Clauses of the Act against Spirituous Liquors are hung up.

AT my first visit there were on the Common-side two Prisoners in hammocks, sick and very poor.—No Chaplain. A compassionate Man, who is not a regular Clergyman, sometimes preaches to them on Sunday; and gives them some small relief.

LADY TOWNSEND sends a Guinea twice a year, which her Servant distributes equally among the Prisoners.

As Debtors here are generally very poor, I was surprized to see once ten or twelve noisy men at skittles; but the Turnkey said they were only visitants. I found they were admitted here as at another public house. No Prisoners were at play with them.

 who is Gaoler. There is a Court-room in the House for the Tower Hamlets. The Prison-yard is one hundred and sixteen feet by eighteen, latticed over head. At one end, are two large rooms; of which little use has been made since the last war; when French Prisoners were kept in them. The present Prison-rooms are towards the other end of the yard: on the ground-floor is a day-room or closet about five feet and a half by three and a half, with a chimney.
 Up stairs are three night-rooms. The Prison is out of repair, and not secure. Keeper no salary. Fees, £0 : 9 : 1. No Table. Al-

REMARKS.

THIS Prison for Soldiers, has two rooms called the Guard Rooms; because in them are confined Offenders who are of the King's Guards. The remainder of the building near the gate is the Keeper's House. On the opposite side of the yard, is a large room down five steps, the Hall: the rooms over it uselefs. On the left-hand side of the yard is another hall, not so large: at each end of it is a room with barrack bedsteads and beds; both rooms very close and unhealthy. Over them are other barrack-rooms, somewhat more airy: one of them, No. 4, is tolerable, and has opposite windows. There is, besides, the Black Hole, the Condemn'd Hold, the Cock Pit, and several other parts of this irregular building, which I pass over.

MARCH 15, 1776, there were 119 Prisoners; of whom 49 were Transports. I saw many sick and dying. The Gaol was so infected by them, that the Distemper has been caught there by many since: and if it be not thoroughly purified, it will destroy many more.—The whole is indeed much out of repair; hardly any part of it secure.

MAY 25, Prisoners 37. Many of them sick of the Gaol-Distemper, in the rooms where I saw the sick and dying in March.—Keeper, Captain Jackson: Salary, £50: no Fees: he pays Land-tax, Window-tax, Water, &c.

THIS Prison has—For men, two day-rooms and three night-rooms—For faulty apprentices, five small rooms—For women, a day-room, and four night-rooms. All the night-rooms have barrack-beds. They are constantly washed every day; and are quite wholesome. The Prisoners wash their hands and faces every morning before they come for their allowance. No straw. No Infirmary.

 BRIDEWELL.

THE women should have another day-room: and one of the day-rooms for men should be enlarged. There would then be less quarreling among them: and Prisoners who are now idle might be employed. The Court-yards adjacent might also be enlarged. All the rooms for women and their court-yard, and the men's night-rooms would be more airy if the Garden Pales were set farther off. I know Mr. Smith would with pleasure see part of his Garden sacrificed to these Improvements. He pays Window-tax £2 : 4 : 0, and Water £2. Over the Gate is a paper with this inscription: "No person admitted into this Prison on a Sunday after nine o'clock in the morning until five in the evening."

In my last visit, there were among the Felons, two Debtors from the Court of Conscience: one for £0 : 17 : 6, the other for £0 : 14 : 1.

 two gate-ways. It has three floors, five rooms on each; in which have been sometimes near a hundred Prisoners: but it is now so ruinous, that none are sent to it. All are committed to Tothill-fields Bridewell, which, in consequence, is overcrowded; and besides (as was there noted) Debtors, even from the Court of Conscience, are confined at night, (as well as in the day-time) with Criminals: which is contrary to the statute of 22d and 23d Car. II.

I HAVE from the very old Keeper the particulars of Rent, Fees &c. but as the Prison is now useless, I will not transcribe them.

REMARKS. THIS PRISON is part Old Buildings, part New.

THE Old Buildings are—A Coffee-room just within the Gate:—and a Street called King-street. On the right hand is the Tap-house; and four houses for Prisoners: each consisting of a ground-floor, and two floors floors of chambers; four rooms on each floor; near ten feet square, and seven high. On the left hand side of the street is the Chapel; and six houses for Prisoners; of equal depth with the former houses: but the back-rooms have not, as the former have, communication with the fore-rooms. At the higher end of the fore-rooms, on the ground-floor, is a common Kitchen, much too small. The Cook, a Prisoner, has the room over it. These houses also have ground-rooms, and two floors of chambers. All the rooms fronting King-street, and the whole of the houses on the other side the way, are for Master-side Debtors; who pay for each room unfurnished a shilling a week.

THE back part of the left hand Row^{*} is the Common-side: the doors in the back front. The first room on the ground-floor they call their Court-room. The two houses at the farther end have six rooms each, for Crown-Debtors and Fines; and are called Crown-Court. The rest of this range on all the three floors is for Common-side Debtors.

AT the farther end of King-street, in a small Court inclosed from the rest of the yard, is a building called the STATE-HOUSE; consisting of ground-floors, and two floors of chambers; four sizeable rooms on each floor; total twelve. A Debtor who chooses to be here, pays the Marshal eight to ten guineas for his whole time; besides a shilling a week, like other Master-side Debtors.

ALL these old buildings are out of repair.

THE New Buildings are—First, a house at the gate for the Turn-key. The chambers are very convenient; and let at present to a Prisoner who pays a very high rent.—But the principal new building is at the farther end of the yard. The two parts of it form a right angle.

angle. One part is four houses, with four ground rooms to each; and the same number of chambers on each of the three floors above: total sixty-four. The rooms are about thirteen feet by eleven, and about eight feet high. The other part, (the wing) is built as the Fleet Prison; but more airy and commodious. It has the same number of floors as the other part. On each floor is a passage seven feet and a half wide, and seventy-three and a half long: rooms on each side the passage, eleven on each floor, total forty-four; each room thirteen feet and a half by nine and a half, about eight feet high.

THE Prison is well supplied with water. Among the late improvements, of 108 new rooms, and a spacious yard, it is pity they did not build an Infirmary. The Prisoners are numerous. At more than one of my visits (which I repeated to this as well as many other Prisons much oftener than the times when I took the numbers) some had the Small-Pox. It was so crowded this last summer, that a Prisoner paid five shillings a week for half a bed, and many lay in the Chapel. In May 1776 the number of Prisoners within the walls was 395; and by an accurate list which I procured, their wives (including a few only called so) were 279, children 725, total 1004: about two thirds of these were in the Prison.

THIS Prison is visited at Michaelmas term, as the Act * directs; yet at my first visit there was a Wine-Club, and a Beer-Club; and one can scarcely ever enter the walls without seeing parties at skittles, mississippi, portobello, tennis, fives &c.

THE following Tables of Rules and Orders for the government of this Prison are hung up (as required by the Preamble) for common inspection. I presume to give an abridgment of them.

* 32d George II.

Made and Signed the 25th of November 1729.

1. THE stocks to be kept up for punishment of blasphemers, swearers, riotous &c.
2. AGAINST illegal methods of confinement. None to be confined in an unusual place or manner, unless for attempting to escape. And such may appeal to the Court, or a Judge.
3. MARSHAL not to remove any to the Fleet by writ of Habeas Corpus.
4. MARSHAL not to remove any one from the Common-side and it's benefits without three days notice: during which time, the Prisoner may appeal to a Judge.
5. CORONER's Inquest upon the dead.

TO this Prison of the Court of the Marshalsea, and of the King's Palace-Court of Westminster, are brought Debtors arrested for the lowest sums, any where within twelve miles of the Palace, except in the city of London: and also persons committed for piracy.

REMARKS.

THE Deputy Marshal, under whose particular custody this Prison is, has his appointment from the Knight Marshal of the King's household

MARSHAL- hold for the time being. The great abuses practised by this Officer SEA. were reported to Parliament by the Gaol Committee in 1729.

THIS Prison is an old irregular building (rather several buildings) in a spacious yard. There are, in the whole, near sixty rooms; and yet only six of them now left for Common-side Debtors. Of the other rooms, —Five are let to a man who is not a prisoner: in one of them he keeps a chandler's shop; in two he lives with his family: the other two he lets to Prisoners. Four rooms, the Oaks, are for women. They are too few for the number; and the more modest women complain of the bad company, in which they are confined. There are above forty rooms for men on the Master's-side, in which are about sixty beds; yet many Prisoners have no beds nor any place to sleep in but the Chapel, and the Tap-room.

THE Prison is too small and greatly out of repair. Little regard is shewn to the late Act for white-washing and cleaning the rooms. No Infirmary. The yard is well supplied with water. In it the Prisoners play at rackets, mississippi &c; and in a little back court, the Park, at skittles.

THE Tap is let to a Prisoner in the Rules of the King's Bench Prison: this Prison being just within those Rules. I was credibly informed, that one Sunday in the summer 1775, about 600 pots of beer were brought in from a public house in the neighbourhood, (Ashmore's) the Prisoners not then liking the Tapster's beer.

IN March 1775, when the number of Prisoners was 175; there were with them in this incommodious Prison wives and children 46.

MR. ALLNUTT who was many years since a prisoner here; had, during his confinement, a large estate bequeathed to him. He learned sympathy by his sufferings: and left £100 a year to release poor Debtors from hence. Many are cleared by it every year.

REMARKS. THIS Prison, in Tooley-street, for the Borough of Southwark, which contains four parishes and a part of a fifth, has, for Master's-side Debtors—seven rooms.—For Common-side Debtors, a Room on the ground floor, in which Felons &c. are with them night and day; a long room up stairs, the Rookery; and a room over it, useless, because not secure.—The Women are in the Stone Kitchen, now divided vided into two rooms. Three of the Common-side rooms have barrack beds. Among the Debtors are many poor creatures from the Court of Conscience who lie there till their debts are paid.—There is a small court-yard ; and a Chapel, but no Chaplain is appointed.

BOROUGH
COMPTER.

THE whole Prison is much out of repair, and ruinous. No Infirmary. No bedding or straw. The Keeper, an officer, pays Window-tax £2 : 15 : 0 and Land-tax £2 : 10 : 0. He is put in by the High Bailiff, whose office is in the disposal of the Court of Aldermen.—An inscription over the Gate dated 1716 calls it the Borough Court : but the Courts are now held at St. Margaret's Hill.

THE Clauses of the Act against Spirituous Liquors are hung up.

DEBTORS have sixty penny loaves, once in eight weeks, from a Legacy of Eleanor Gwynn. No other Bequest.

IN the interval of two of my visits the Gaol-Fever prevailed, and carried off seven or eight Prisoners, and two Turnkeys. The Felons were on that occasion removed to the Bridewell. At my last visit four were sick.

THIS Gaol could not have been made healthy and convenient. There is a new one building just out of the town. It has no dungeon; and is more spacious and convenient than the old one.

A CLOSE Prison, frequently infected with the Gaol-Distemper. REMARKS.
Inquiring in October 1775, for the Head-Turnkey, I was told he died of it.

IN the Tap-room there hung a Paper on which, among other things, was written "Prisoners to pay Garnish or run the Gauntlet."

DEBTORS have a bushel of coals a day from about 12th November to Lady Day: and £5 : 0 : 0 a year by a legacy of Elizabeth Her- ris from Lands in Brentwood, paid by the Rector or Minister of the parish of Chelmsford on the 24th of December. By a Memorial hung up in the Tap-room it appears the Bequest was acknowledged by the Testatrix 14th June 1746.—It was generous in the Justices to grant Debtors the same allowance as Felons; and very judicious to fix that allowance to a certain weight.

IT gave me pain to be informed, that there had been no Divine Service for above a year past, except to condemned Criminals.

THERE is a new Gaol, which exceeds the old one in strength &c. almost as much as in splendor. The County, to their honour, have spared no cost. The Magistrates cannot but know the plan. The Prison is nearly finished. It can therefore be of no service to offer any remarks upon this stately fabrick.

CHELMSFORD. BUILT 1766. On the ground-floor a large work-room, a kitchen, and a lodging-room for men: over them rooms of the same size for women: two rooms for the sick. Court-yard small, and not secure: Prisoners always kept within doors, and the rooms offensive, although the water is laid in. Mr. Ford (the Keeper) told me at one of my visits that many had been ill of the Gaol-Fever, brought from the County Gaol. His Salary £30: Under Keeper's £16: no Fees. Prisoners allowance three-pence a day; for which they have a pound and half of bread, and a quart of small beer; and three halfpence a day further allowance to each sick Prisoner. Coals and straw £5 a year each.

NEWPORT. BUILT in 1775. The front is elegant, yet plain: in it are the Keeper's apartments; and a room for the Justices. Behind is the men's court; in the middle of which is a pump. On the farther side, a large work-room on the ground-floor, and a smaller work-room over it: so that too many need not work together: a fire-place in each of them. There is a lodging-room even with the upper work-room. On the left side of the court are two lodging-rooms on the ground-floor, and two above. In all these lodging-rooms are boarded beds. The Keeper has a view of this court from two of his back windows.—Women have a room on the ground-floor, and one over it. No fire-place. These, though they join to the last-mentioned rooms for men, have no communication with them: you go to them through one of the Keeper's rooms: the court-yard quite separate; and the windows toward that.—No allowance: Prisoners have what they earn. Straw £2 a year. Firing in winter two guineas. Keeper's Salary £25: no Fees. Clauses of Act against Spirituous Liquors not hung up.

HALSTED. MEN and women have a separate work-room, and a separate lodging-room. There is a room for the sick. All out of repair. A court-yard which men use one part of the day, women another. No water. Keeper's Salary £32: no Fees. Allowance a pound and half of bread, and a quart of small beer, a day.

1776, Nov. 19, Prisoners 4.

BARKING. A ROOM for men, the Fore-Gaol: fifteen feet by ten and a half; seven feet high; two windows to the street. Another room, the Back-Gaol, for women; thirteen feet four inches by eleven feet, eight feet high: one window about two feet square. They are planked all over: no chimneys: and both rooms are made offensive by sewers in them. Court-yard not secure: Prisoners have no use of it; nor any access to the pump. Allowance three-pence a day. Keeper's Salary £28: no Fees. Clauses of Act against Spirituous Liquors not hung up.

Salary, £50, for the Gaol and Bridewell.

M A I D S T O N E.

THE Rooms in the Felons Wards are sizeable; but the air is obstructed by broad wooden bars at the windows instead of iron ones. There are three court-yards: one for Debtors; one for Men-felons; and one for Women-felons. The two last are much too small; but may be commodiously enlarged, by adding to them the adjacent court of the Old Bridewell, which will soon be disused. Then also a Chapel might be built; and service no longer performed, as it now is, upon the stairs. REMARKS.

FELONS are allowed yearly ten chaldron of coals: they have barrack-beds*, and hop-bagging with straw; but no coverlids. This County has for years past been so considerate as to pay the Fees of poor Prisoners acquitted: and to Transports cast at Assizes, who are entitled to the King's allowance of two shillings and six-pence a week, they continue the allowance which they had before trial. They also pay the Gaoler's Fees for those Convicts. The Felons said they wished for more bread; and would, if that were increased, be content with less beer.

THE Baker who serves the Felons sells thirteen loaves to the dozen; and Debtors have amongst them every thirteenth loaf.

THERE is an Alarm-Bell; and a Sail-Ventilator.

ON examining two sick Prisoners, I found they had no irons; and the Surgeon said the Gaoler was always ready to take them off when he requested it.

* THESE are low stages of boards; raised from the floor, and sloping from the wall towards the middle of the room.

MAIDSTONE. A NEW Prison: separate wards, areas, work-shops, and infirmaries for men and women: opposite windows to transmit fresh air. Keeper's Salary £20. No Prisoners here as yet. In the old Bridewell, 1776, Feb. 19, Prisoners 2.

CANTERBURY. MEN and women separate. The latter have the back court in which their ward is. The men have no court-yard; but they have a hall or kitchen to the street; and three wards or night-rooms to the yard. Out of the Keeper's garden or yard might be taken a court-yard for the men. There is no water within reach of the men: yet I always found the Prison remarkably clean. County allowance, two pennyworth of bread a day. No employment. Last Lady-Day (or April) Sessions, the Justices abolished Fees £0 : 13 : 4, and raised the Salary from £25 to £40. Licence for Beer.

1776, Feb. 17, - - - 13,

---- May 25, - - - 6.

AT CANTERBURY is also the CITY GAOL, over the West-gate. One large day-room for men and women: and in each of the two Towers, a small night-room. No court-yard; and Prisoners are seldom permitted to walk on the leads. Allowance three pennyworth of bread a day. Keeper's Salary £5. Fees, Debtors £0 : 6 : 8, Felons £0 : 13 : 4: no Table. He keeps a public house adjoining, in which is a room or two for Master side Debtors.

DARTFORD. THIS County Bridewell, built in 1720, consists of two rooms: one for men, twenty-one feet by seventeen and a half: one for women, fourteen feet square: both ten feet high. No chimneys: offensive sewers; and the rooms dirty: no water: no straw: mats, but quite worn out. No yard; though the Keeper has a garden. His Salary £20: Fees £0 : 3 : 6: no Table. Allowance to those committed on suspicion of Felony, two-pence a day. Clauses of Act against Spirituous Liquors not hung up.

THE Keeper told me, they had about two years ago, a bad Fever; which himself and family, and every fresh Prisoner caught. Two died of it. The Prisoners are now well, and at work, upon a Manufacture of Flax-dressing and weaving Sacks.

Window-tax £1 : 11 : 6 paid by the County.

THERE ARE ALSO IN THIS COUNTY,

• ROCHESTER CITY GAOL, under the Court-Room. One day-room to the street; and two inner or night-rooms: not clean. In the Keeper's house is a room for Debtors; and another in which Women-felons were kept when the Assizes were held here. No Court-yard: no water accessible to Prisoners. Allowance two-pence a day. Keeper a Sergeant: no Salary: Fees £0 : 6 : 0: no Table.

REMARKS.

THE Rooms are too small, except the Free-ward for Debtors.
 No straw: no yard; and yet ground enough for one behind the Gaol. Transports convicted at Quarter Sessions, have, as those condemned at Assize, the King's allowance of two shillings and sixpence

pence a week. Lent Affize at East-Grinstead; where there is no Prison: Summer Affize, at Lewes and Horsham alternately.

THERE is a new Gaol building. The Duke of Richmond, in concurrence with the other Gentlemen of the County, has interested himself much in this affair: the Situation is judiciously chosen; and the Plan is such as appears to me particularly well suited for the purpose.

PETWORTH. THIS Bridewell has two rooms: one seventeen feet by ten, full six feet high; the other eighteen by nine, six feet high: too small for the general number of Prisoners. No chimney: no yard: no water: no employment. Allowance a penny loaf a day. This I once found to weigh seven ounces and a half. Keeper's Salary lately augmented from £12 to £20. Fees £0:6:8: no Table.

THE Keeper told me (in September 1774) that "all his “ Prisoners were, upon discharge, much weakened by the “ close confinement, and small allowance.”

Thomas Draper and William Godfrey were committed the 6th of January 1776 ; the former died the 11th, the other the 26th of the same month. William Cox, committed the 13th of January, died the 23d. None of them had the Gaol-Fever. I do not affirm that these men were famished to death : it was extreme cold weather. However, since that time, the allowance of bread is doubled. For this the Prisoners are indebted to the kind attention of the Duke of Richmond.

THE NEW GAOL, besides the Gaoler's House, and the REMARKS. Tap-room has for—Master's-side Debtors a parlour, and four other sizeable rooms; and for Common-side Debtors, four good rooms. Mr. Hall takes care to prevent these being crowded with the wives and children of the Debtors. For these Prisoners, there is a court-yard: into which Felons are not admitted; except a few, whom the Gaoler has reasons for indulging with that distinction.

THE ward for Men-felons has six rooms on three floors: in these they sleep. There is a yard belonging to it.—The ward for Women-felons has two lower rooms, two above; and a court-yard belonging to it. In the two upper rooms, are put Malefactors of either sex condemned to die. .

I HAVE here noted nineteen rooms: yet they are not sufficient for the number of Prisoners. Mr. Hall is sometimes obliged to put Men-felons into some rooms of the Women's ward.

IN so close a Prison situated in a populous neighbourhood, I did not wonder to see in March 1776 several Felons sick on the floors. No bedding nor straw: no Infirmary: no Chapel: Divine Service is performed in the Parlour; which is too small for the purpose; about sixteen feet square. The Act for preserving the health of Prisoners is on a painted board. The Clauses of the Act against Spirituous Liquors are hung up.

IF the County do not build a new Gaol, more roomy and airy, and in a better situation, it would at least be adviseable to add to this an Infirmary ; which, with a Chapel under it, they may build on the vacant ground beyond the Women's ward.

TRANSPORTS have not the King's allowance of two shillings and six-pence a week. For these Convicts a Merchant contracts with the County to take them at the Gaol: the Gaoler sends them to the ship, attended by his servants ; and receives from the Merchant £0 : 10 : 6 for each Prisoner so conducted.

LENT Assize is at Kingston: Summer Assize at Guildford and Croydon alternately. At this last town there is no Prison.

THERE is hung up in the Gaol a printed List of sixteen Legacies and Donations. The dates of the first six are 1555, --71, --76, --84, --97, --98. Three are in the next century, viz. 1609, --38, --56. The other seven are not dated: and one of them noted on the List, has not been received since 1726. There are also other articles which seem to need inspection. Two of the Charities are for Debtors expressly: the others are not so distinguished; but Debtors have them all. In the title of the paper it is said, "The Gaol was formerly called the White Lion Prison." The common Seal of the Prison is a Lion rampant.

THERE is another Legacy bequeathed by Eleanor Gwynn, not, I think, in the List; from which are sent to this Prison once in eight weeks, sixty-four penny loaves. Common-side Debtors have this as well as the preceding Gifts.

KINGSTON UPON THAMES. THIS Bridewell, built in 1775, has a house for the Keeper ; and separate wards (quite distinct buildings) for men and women : with separate courts, work-shops, pumps, &c. Each ward has two lower rooms ; three steps above the ground ; and two chambers. The men's rooms are near seventeen feet by fourteen, and full nine high : the women's, about fifteen feet square, and nine high. court-yard fifty-eight feet by fifty : the women's, forty-five by thirty-five. Prisoners pay a shilling entrance for the use of them. There is also a room built quite separate for faulty apprentices ; about eight feet by eleven, and full eight high ; it has a fire-place.

It is pity that to a Prison in other respects so commodious, the Gentlemen did not add an INFIRMARY. Using any of the rooms for that purpose, will not prevent the communication of Small-Pox &c.

COUNTY allowance to Prisoners a three halfpenny loaf a day (weight 14 to 15 ounces). No bedding. They were at work. The Keeper has the profit of it ; a Salary of £25 ; and Fees £0 : 3 : 4 : no Table.—Clauses of Act against Spirituous Liquors not hung up.

ONE of the Prisoners who was committed for bastardy, and not finding sureties, had been sent back hither, from the preceding Quarter Sessions at Ryegate ; where there is no Prison. I had heard of the hardships suffered by Prisoners when conveyed for trial to such towns ; and inquired of this man, what was his situation at Ryegate. He said that “ he “ and fifteen others were confined there two or three days in a “ very small room ; and almost suffocated.” The Keeper who was present confirmed the fact.

Salary, £12 for the Gaol and Bridewell.

IN this Prison there is a day-room for Debtors, which is REMARKS.
used as a Chapel, and three or four lodging-rooms : for Felons, two day-rooms, one for men, the other for women, without fire-places : two dungeons, down eleven steps, and often very damp. The straw, for which the County allows the Gaoler £5 a year, is not on the floors, but on frames or bedsteads. On application, the Justices allow in winter coals both to Felons and Debtors. The court-yard is common to both, and small. No apartments for the Gaoler.

CLAUSES of the Act against Spirituous Liquors are not hung up. When I was Sheriff, I was culpably ignorant of that Act. No Infirmary. About twenty years ago the Gaol-Fever was in this Prison: some died there, and many in the town; among whom was Mr. Daniel the Surgeon, who attended the Prisoners. His Successor, Mr. Gadfly, judiciously changed the medicines from Sudorifics (generally used before) to Bark and Cordials: and a Sail-Ventilator being soon after put up, the Gaol has been free from the Fever almost ever since.

FEES on a printed paper, signed by the late Gaoler, as follows:

ALL Persons that come to this place, either by warrant, commitment, or verbally; must pay before discharg'd, fifteen shillings and four pence, to the Gaoler, and two shillings to the Turnkey.

dungeon for Men-felons; in which is a small condemned room. In another place, down seven steps, is a dungeon for Women-felons: the floor of it level with the court-yard: in which is the Bridewell. This has two rooms below for men; and two above for women. The Prison is too small: but I always found the whole of it remarkably clean. Clauses of Act against Spirituous Liquors not hung up. No Infirmary. Mr. Nunn's Salary for the Bridewell is £24 : 16 : 0, for the Town Gaol £3.—Straw £4 : 16 : 0 a year.

I WAS sorry to hear at my last visit that Mr. Brock, the late Chaplain, who officiated very constantly twice a week, and had a Salary of £20, was dismissed. He would have continued his attendance, without the Salary; but an order was made expressly for bidding it.

THE PRISON is the Gate of the old Castle. Below are two strong rooms; one for Men-felons, the other for Women. You go up twenty-two stone steps outside to the Debtors apartments. On the first floor is a room for the Turnkey; a large kitchen; and two two or three other rooms. Above them are three rooms and a condemned room. All the rooms are sizeable, but not very secure: a Prisoner escaped lately.—Clauses of Act against Spirituous Liquors hung up, by a written Order of Thomas Cockran, Esq. Sheriff.—Straw twenty shillings a year.—The Castle-yard is spacious, but not safe; and Prisoners have not the use of it. In it is the Gallows.

DEBTORS have some small relief from a Legacy, paid by St. John's and Sidney Colleges: and twenty shillings a year, deducting Land-tax, from an Estate at Croxton in this County. No Memorial of either in the Prison.

THERE is a small court-yard ; of no use to the Prisoners, because not secure. No water : no sewer. The whole Prison out of repair.

COLLEGE, or Vite-Chancellor Prisoners, have four-pence on Sunday, to prevent the necessity of their working on that day as formerly. Those of them that are ill are properly attended, and have three-pence a day. No allowance of bread for Town Prisoners. Keeper's Salary £30 : no Fees. Straw £1 : 1 : 0 a year.

THE Bridewell stands in the back yard of the Keeper's house ; which was bought and endowed for the encouragement of wool-combers and spinners of this town. The basis of the Institution was a Legacy of the famous Carrier Thomas Hobson. To answer the intention, the Keeper appointed is a Clothier : he employs not only several hands upon the Foundation of the Charity, but many others ; among them his Prisoners.

IS SITUATED on the summit of a hill. That part which is called the Upper Gaol has ten rooms for Master's-side Debtors; and Leads for them to walk on.—The Low Gaol has several rooms for Debtors, Felons &c.—A small area in the middle of the Gaol, in which are lately made some improvements; such as a pump, a convenient bath, and some rooms over it. There is a dungeon down a ladder of eight steps, for Men-felons; in which is often an inch or two of water: and a small room for Women-felons; which keeps them always separate from the men, except when delicacy would most of all require it. There are two airy rooms for the sick: so distinct from the rest of the Prison, that there is no danger of spreading any infection from thence. The Gaoler is humane, and respected by his Prisoners. These, Felons as well as Debtors, sell at the grates of their separate day-rooms, laces, purses, nets &c. of their own making.

A NURSE or Matron to attend the sick; and provide for them, when the Surgeon orders it, broth, gruel, milk-pottage and extra-firing.—She orders the straw, which is not farmed, but paid for per load by the County.—It is also her business to see that the Prisoners be duly served with their allowance of bread, which is remarkably good. At Lent Assize Prisoners are moved from hence to Thetford; and put into a dungeon which is described in that place.

MRS. FRANCES KEMPE formerly bequeathed certain Charities to the Poor of Norwich and Heyden; and a Stipend for preaching three Sermons a year. For Payment, she bound an estate in Heyden left her by her father John Mingay, Esq.—Among the Charities were some to Prisoners in this Castle, and in the City Gaol. These have for many years years past received nothing; although the Legacies are paid to the other Objects.

REMARKS. THIS is also the ~~town~~ GAOL: yet only one court-yard.—For Debtors, a kitchen, or day-room; and several chambers: one of these is lately made a free ward.—For Felons a day-room: and for the men a strong night-room; with beds excellently contrived for cleanliness and health. Each Prisoner has a crib-bedstead, ten or twelve inches high; the head raised a few inches; strong feet, low sides. These keep as distinct as possible Prisoners who sleep in the same room; and are easily moved when the ward is to be washed. The County allows to each crib a straw bed, and a blanket.—The women have no separate day-room: and their ward, or night-room, has no fire-place.—One of the two drinking-rooms is called the Garnish-room.—Two rooms for the sick; not distinct enough from the rest. It is not without reluctance that I add, the sick in February 1776 complained to me of being neglected by the Surgeon. At my last visit, none sick.—Debtors sell at the front grate garters, purses &c. of their own making.

A NEAT Chapel lately built. Mr. Brome, the Chaplain, does not content himself with the regular and punctual performance of his stated Duty; He is a Friend to the Prisoners on all occasions.

ASSIZE always at Bury: no allowance for conveying Prisoners thither. Keeper a Sheriff's Officer.

DEBTORS have on Sunday from a Legacy of Mr. John Pemberton, each one pound and a half of beef for broth, a penny loaf and a pint of ale. From another Legacy the Town supplies them with five chaldron of coals yearly. No Memorial in the Gaol.

Clauses of Act against Spirituous Liquors not hung up.

1776, Dec. 6, Prisoner 1.

BURY ST. EDMUND'S GAOL.

THIS Prison for the Franchise or Liberty of Bury St. Edmund's, is the property of Sir Charles Davers. The court-yard is spacious, but not secure: none have the use of it without paying a shilling a week. On one side of it are several rooms for Debtors: one of them is a work-room: those who work in it pay a shilling a week.—On the other side, is a large Dungeon down three steps; which is the day and night-room for Felons: the men are chained to staples fixed in the barrack bodsteads. No straw. There is another dungeon down a step or two; seldom used. The late Gaoler told me that in the winter 1773 five died of the Small-Pox. No Apothecary then; but one is appointed since. No Infirmary.—A Chaplain; and Prayers twice a week.—Keeper, no Salary: Fees, Debtors £0 : 8 : 8, Felons £0 : 6 : 8: no Table: Licence for Beer and Wine.—Allowance, Debtors none, Felons three-halfpennyworth of bread a day; and from the 5th of November to the Saturday before Lady-day, Felons have two bushels of coals a week, and Debtors four: both from a Legacy of which no Memorial in the Gaol.—In a Description of Bury printed 1771, there is an account of several ancient Donations and Bequests to Prisoners. Whether they be now totally sunk, or the coals be from some of them, I cannot say.

AT Affize, twice a year, Prisoners of both sexes brought from Ipswich are confined four or five nights in the Dungeon here described.

SURGEON, Mr. Weale.

Salary, £20 for Gaol and Bridewell.

W A R W I C K.

REMARKS. ONE Court-yard for Debtors, and Men-felons. Women-felons have quite separate Court, day-room, and two night-rooms. They used to be loaded with irons; now they have none. Men-felons have a day-room: their night-room is in an octagonal Dungeon about twenty-one feet diameter, down thirty-one steps; close, damp, and offensive. Two cells, in another dungeon for the condemned. Prisoners are tried in the county cloathing. I saw twelve suits for men and six for women. *

DEBTORS common day-room is the Hall, which is also used as a Chapel. For Master's-side, ten or twelve rooms, some of them in the Rooks Nest, where also is the free ward.

No Infirmary. The late Gaoler Mr. Roe (uncle to the present) died in 1772 of the Gaol-Distemper; and so did some of his Prisoners. No water then, but now plenty.—The Felons allowance of bread is judiciously fixed by weight, not variable with the price.

DEBTORS have in common from a Legacy thirty shillings a year; and from another Legacy eight three-penny loaves at the beginning, and as many at the end, of every month. No memorial of either Legacy hung up in the Gaol.

THIS Prison might be improved on the adjacent ground belonging to the county.

See a better practice at Reading in Berkshire.

THIS GAOL, built two years ago, is in a close part of the City. I was shewn a fine spot which some Gentlemen very judiciously preferred. It has eight lodging-rooms for Master's-side Debtors; and one free ward. Women-felons sleep in their day-room. The Men have a day-room. To their Dungeons you go down twelve steps to a passage only four feet wide: the four dungeons are about nine feet by six: at the upper corner of each, a little window. All are dirty, offensive and unhealthy: we went down with torches. Only one court-yard for all Prisoners. No straw. No Infirmary. Clauses of Act against Spirituous Liquors not hung up.

down

COVENTRY CITY BRIDEWELL.

Two rooms for men; two for women; all close and offensive. No court-yard: no water accessible to Prisoners: no sewers: no employment. Keeper's Salary £5. Fees one shilling.

THE old Town-Hall adjoining, and now useless, might be added to this Prison.

BIRMINGHAM TOWN GAOL.

THE GAOL for this large populous town is called the Dungeon. The court-yard is only about twenty-four feet square. Keeper's house in front; and under it two cells down eight steps: the straw is on bedsteads. On the right hand of the court two small night-rooms for women; and some rooms over them:—on the left hand is the Gaoler's stable, and one small day-room for men and women; no window:

window :—above is a free ward for Court of Conscience Debtors, who are cleared in forty days : this is a sizeable room, but has only one window eighteen inches square. Over it is another room, or two.

In this small court-yard, besides the litter from the stable, I saw a stagnant puddle near the sink, for the Gaoler's ducks. Gaoler's poultry is a very common nuisance ; but in so scanty a court it is intolerable.—The whole Prison is very offensive.—At some particular times here are great numbers confined. Once in the winter 1775 there were above 150, who by the care of the Magistrates had a supply of proper food, broth &c.—Licence for Beer : Fees £0 : 2 : 0 : no Table. Clauses of Act against Spirituous Liquors not hung up.

FOR Master's-side Debtors eight or nine rooms. Day-room common. The free ward the Cellar is a long dungeon*, which is down seven steps and damp; two windows; the largest about a foot square. Felons day and night rooms are dungeons from five to seven steps under ground. They sleep on thick mats; which, if coverlids were added, would be better than straw. The whole close and offensive. Court-yard small. No Chapel. Two rooms lately built for an Infirmary: but the situation of the Gaol is so confined, that it cannot be made convenient or healthy. In 1774 three Debtors and a Felon died of the Small-Pox. Of that disease I was informed few ever recover in this Gaol.

CLAUSES of the Act against the use of Spirituous Liquors painted on the same board as the Table of Fees.

In this County they make an annual collection by a kind of Voluntary Brief. The Gentlemen of the Grand-Jury recommend it to the Clergy: most of whom promote the collection in their respective parishes. The thanks of the Grand Jury to forty-eight Clergymen by name, were inserted in the Leicester Journal of Feb. 16th 1775; for the satisfaction of those Gentlemen and other Contributors. There is a table of the sum received from each parish; and a List of Debtors

* THIS seems to be the low moist Dungeon that was complained of by a debtor in this Gaol, in his Letter 13th Nov. 1690 sent to Moses Pitt, a Prisoner in the Fleet; who printed it, with other Letters from Prisoners, in his Cry of the Oppressed 1691. By this and one or two more of the Letters in that little Tract, it appears that some inconveniences which I observed in Gaols, and have set down in my Remarks, are of long standing.

cloathed or discharged; and an account of the expenditure of the remainder in feeding and warming all the Prisoners in the inclement season. The collections, in 1774 amounted to £74. The accounts are kept, and the application of the money is chiefly directed by John Simpson, Esq. of Leicester. I wish every County would imitate this exemplary benevolence: and I wish every County that does so, a Steward equally faithful and assiduous.

D E R B Y.

THIS GAOL, built about eighteen years ago, is in an airy REMARKS healthy situation.—The Debtors Court-yard and Ward very properly separate from those for Felons, but not from the Bridewell. The Debtors floors are tarras, not easily washed. The windows in general too small.—The Bridewell, in the Debtors court, has a large workroom, a lodging-room for men, and two for women. Mr. Simpson is Keeper: Salary £40, deducting £14 for the former Keeper.—In the Felons Court there is for men a day-room, and down three steps a dungeon: for women a day-room, and two small night-rooms;
 the latter are too close.—A neat Chapel, and near it a new Bath:
 Prisoners wash in it before Assize and Quarter Sessions: a Copper just by to warm the water in winter.—Over those are two rooms for an Infirmary.—There is also a new room or parlour at the Keeper's house with windows to the Felons court: this circumstance keeps them quiet and orderly. The County allows eight guineas a year for Straw.

MR. SIMPSON observed to me very judiciously, that “Licences in Gaols occasion much disorder.”

A PERSON goes round the County about Christmas to Gentlemen's houses, and begs for the Debtors. He carries a book, in which the Giver enters his name, and donation. The whole amount generally about £14.

TABLE OF FEES.

Derbyshire, AT the General Quarter Sessions---held at Bakewell to wit. ---on Tuesday the first week after the translation of St. Thomas the Martyr (to wit) the 10th---July---4th year of ---George III.---1764, before the Rev. Sir John Every, Bart. the Rev. John Simpson, Clerk, Philip Cell, John Twigg, Henry Thornbill, and Joseph Briggs, Esquires, Justices &c.

LEONARD FOSBROOKE, Esq. Sheriff.

IT is ordered---that the following---Fees---be taken by the Keeper and no other.

For the lodging of every Prisoner in his house per week		2
For the discharge of each Prisoner out of custody	--	13
To the Turnkey	—	2
For the copy of every Warrant	—	1
For signing a Certificate, in order to obtain a Superfedeas		2
For registering each declaration	—	1
For attending with every Prisoner in order to give bail or be otherwise discharged	—

AND it is further ordered, that the Clerk of the Peace do cause this Order to be printed, and the Keeper of the Gaol for the time being do observe the same upon pain of being prosecuted according to law.

By the Court, HEATHCOTE Clerk of the Peace

WE the Judges of Assize for the County of Derby have reviewed and do hereby confirm the above written Table of Fees. Given under our hands at the Assizes holden at Derby the 11th day of August 1764.

DERBY TOWN GAOL

Is also the Bridewell. Two rooms for Debtors ; one for Felons ; three for Petty Offenders. Prisoners always locked up : the narrow court or passage, only thirty-four feet by seven, not being secure, is of little use but for the Keeper's fowls. The whole dirty and offensive. Gaoler has a garden behind the Prison. No Salary as Gaoler : as Keeper of Bridewell £5. Fees, Debtors 6s. 8d. Felons 3s. 6d. No Table. Garnish 3s. 6d. on a paper in the Debtors kitchen. Allowance to Felons one shilling and six-pence weekly in bread. Licence for Beer.

Another COUNTY BRIDEWELL at

CHESTERFIELD. THIS House, given, as I was informed, to the County for a Bridewell, was built in 1614. For men, a room or cellar under the Keeper's house ; down eight steps ; but level with the ground behind it : provision generally put through a hole in the floor. A room for women up stairs. No court-yard : no water : no straw. Nothing allowed by the County for Conveyance to Quarter Sessions. Keeper's Salary £20. No fees : no allowance : no employment.

1776, Jan. 10, Prisoners 2,

---- Oct. 28, - - - 1.

CHESTERFIELD GAOL,

For the Hundred of Scarsdale, is the property of the Duke of Portland; to whom, or to his Steward, the Gaoler pays £18 : 12 : 0 a year.—Only one room with a cellar under it; to which the Prisoners occasionally descend through a hole in the floor. The cellar had not been cleaned for many months. The Prison-door had not been opened for several weeks, when I was there first. There were four Prisoners, who told me they were almost starved: one of them said, with tears in his eyes, “he had not eaten a morsel that day;” it was afternoon. Their meagre sickly countenances confirmed what they said. They had borrowed a book of Dr. Manton’s; one of them was reading it to the rest. Each of them had a wife; and they had in the whole thirteen children, cast on their respective parishes. Two had their groats from the Creditors; and out of that pittance they relieved the other two. No allowance: no straw: no firing: water a halfpenny for about three gallons, put in (as other things are) at the window.—Gaoler lives distant.

NOTTINGHAM.

REMARKS. THE GAOL is on the side of a hill. For Master's side Debtors three rooms. Down about twenty-five steps are three rooms for Criminals who can pay. Down twelve steps more are deep dungeons, cut in the sandy rock, very damp: only one of them is used; it is twenty-one feet by thirteen, and seven feet high: the straw on barrack-beds.

For Bathing here is (not, as in most other County Gaols, an inconvenient and almost useless Tub—but) a large and very commodious Bath, supplied with river water; and a Copper just by, to warm it when necessary. This Bath is a late improvement; and so is the Infirmary, near it, which has two rooms. The Act for preserving the Health of Prisoners is neatly painted over the Keeper's door.

THE Justices have allowed the Gaoler to supply the sick with better nourishment &c. to the amount of seven shillings a week. Gentlemen so remarkably considerate and humane will, I hope, abolish the unwholesome Dungeon.

No Chapel: Service is performed in a parlour, which is too small.

TRANSPORTS condemned at Assizes have, with the King's allowance of two shillings and six-pence a week, the County-bread.

HERE (as at Derby) a man goes round the County about Christmas, and begs at Gentlemen's houses for the Debtors. He carries a book, and Gentlemen write in it their names and donations. Amount, the two last years £62. Charge of collecting £18.

PRISONERS

PRISONERS are tried in cloaths provided for that purpose by the County.

IN the account lately sent up to London of Transports in this Gaol, was one William Berks. This man obtained his Majesty's pardon. Mr. Francis Waters, Clerk of Assize, in his letter sent with the pardon, charges

State Office Fees £1 : 7 : 6,

My Fees - 1 : 7 : 8.

FOR these and the Gaol Fees the pardoned Criminal was detained at my last visit.

JOHN HURST Deputy Clerk of the Peace.

Nottinghamshire.

A TABLE of the several GIFTS LEGACIES and BEQUESTS---for the benefit---of poor Prisoners in the common Gaol of this County as settled by us his Majesty's Justices of the Peace---this 18th day of Jan. 1760. Pursuant to the late Act of Parliament and according to the best information we can get, as follows.

By John Sherwin Esq. of Nottingham, the yearly Sum of Four Pounds, paid quarterly out of an Estate at Bramscote, in this County, purchased by Mr. Sherwin's Father of some of the Descendants of Henry Handley Esq. who left this Charity.

By

By Abel Smith Esq. of Nottingham, pursuant to the directions of the Will of Mr. Abel Collings deceased, four shillings monthly for Coals for the Prisoners.

We are informed that forty shillings a year, was formerly left by some of the family of — Hutchinson Esquire. But that the Prisoners have not received the same these twenty years past.

We do not know of any other Gifts, Legacies, or Bequests, except the General Collection made in the County for the Prisoners every Christmas.

We order this Table to be transmitted to the Deputy Clerk of the Peace for this County, to be entered among the Rolls of the Sessions, and Copies thereof to be made and hung up by him in the respective Courts, where the General Quarter Sessions are held---there to remain and be inspected. --- And also to cause another Copy---to be transmitted to the Kceper of the said Gaol to be forthwith hung up by him there, in some public place, and in a conspicuous manner, — so as the Prisoners may have free resort thereto, at all seasonable times in the day time, without paying any thing for the same.

LINCOLN

LINCOLN CASTLE

REMARKS. BELONGS to the Duchy of Lancaster. The County pays ten shillings a year. The Gaoler, per contract, to keep it in repair.—A spacious Area of six or seven acres. On the ground-floor are the Gaoler's apartments, the Tap-room &c.

FOR Master's-side Debtors, six sizeable rooms on the first story; and as many garrets. The floors of both stories are tarras, and cannot be kept clean: the passages only six feet wide, with windows close glazed.

THE free ward for Debtors is only a room at the end of the building, down two steps. It is paved with small stones, and is a thoroughfare to sundry places. First, by a trap-door in the said pavement you go down ten steps to two vaulted dungeons for Criminals, eight feet high; one, the Pit, fourteen feet by twenty-one, window two feet by fourteen inches; the other, within it, the Condemned Cell, fourteen feet by eight; window about nine inches by eighteen: a little short straw on the floors: both dungeons dirty and offensive.—You also pass through it to the Women-felons ward which joins to it and is eleven feet by eight:—and to the Felons small court-yard, and their sizeable day-room, fifteen feet by nineteen: no water: no sewer:—and to a room for the closer confinement of Debtors who do not behave well.

THERE are two rooms with beds for Felons who can pay for them. To these you go another way.

No Chapel: Service is performed in the Shire-Hall. No Infirmary.—The whole Prison is out of repair.—Perhaps because the County designs to build a new one.

MR.

MR. WOOD, besides the fore-mentioned articles of his contract, is to furnish his Prisoners with pails, and other utensils, to amount of £3 a year; and to pay yearly to Prisoners in the King's Bench and Marshalsea, two guineas; all out of his £154.

IN order to a Debtor's being admitted to County Allowance, it is required that he produce a Certificate of his poverty signed by the Minister, Churchwardens and Overseers of his Parish.

MR. SIMPSON'S Salary £5 is from a Legacy of Thomas Hazledine; and for attending condemned Criminals he has five guineas from the Sheriff.

REBECCA HUSSEY by her Will, proved in London 10th May 1715, bequeathed the Interest of £1000 to release poor Debtors from this Castle: but no Debtors have received the benefit for many years past.—Thomas Hazledine left to the Prisoners £3 a year payable from the Rent of a House in Lincoln.—There is not in the Gaol any Memorial of Bequests.

ON a Tomb-stone in the Cathedral, is an Inscription, noting that Clement Wood interred there, was thirty-three years Gaoler of the Castle, and of the City Gaol.

THIS is also the COUNTY BRIDEWELL and the TOWN GAOL; yet I REMARK found it twice empty. On the ground-floor is a day-room or kitchen for Debtors:—a day-room, and two small night-rooms for Felons; one of which being very small and quite close, the Gaoler has made apertures in the door, one at top, the other at bottom:—and a large work-room.

UP stairs are two rooms strongly planked with oak: in each of them are two beds.

THE Felons court-yard is lately parted off with strong wooden palisades; which intercepting the pump, the Justices have been so considerate as to put down another pump in the Felons court. They have also ordered the Gaoler to provide some cloathing for the most destitute Prisoners. His Salary as Keeper of the Bridewell is £20. No Table of Fees.

THIS GAOL is also the COUNTY' BRIDEWELL; but Petty Offenders are kept separate from Felons. Mr. Scofield has a Salary of £36 : 10 : 0 as Keeper. Two court-yards; but that for Felons is too close. No straw. The County have lately built seven commodious rooms, for one Felon each: yet there is still a dungeon eleven steps under ground, which might have been disused if they had doubled the number of the new rooms. There is ground enough in the Keeper's yard or garden. REMARKS.

THE Chapel is the upper room in the Gaoler's house.—It is painful for Prisoners loaded with irons to go up and down the stairs. No Table of Fees.

DEBTORS and Felons have their court-yards separated by iron rails.—The former have a kitchen: and for the Master's-side many rooms; REMARKS.

READING. rooms; but no free ward.—Felons have a day-room for men and women. The night-room for men is a large dungeon down four steps: the Prisoners broke out lately. A separate night-room for women.—The Turnkey has now a lodging-room, over the Felons dungeon, with an alarm bell: so that an escape will be more difficult. There is lately fitted up a small room for an Infirmary; and another room or two: but no provision made for separating Men-felons at night; nor for Common-side Debtors. There is a room used for the Gaoler's poultry.—Transports have not the King's allowance of two shillings and six-pence a week. No Table of Fees. Clause of Act against Spirituous Liquors not hung up. No straw.

ABOUT six years ago a Gentleman sent to this Gaol for the Prisoners thirty-six rugs or coverlids: most of them now worn out.

WHEN Felons come to this Prison, they are stripped and washed; and then they put on cloaths provided by the County. The men have a Russia-drab coat and breeches, a flannel waistcoat, two check shirts, and two pair of yarn hose. The women, a linsley woolsey gown and petticoat, a flannel petticoat, two dowlais shifts, two pair of yarn hose. Their own cloaths are ticketed and hung up till the Quarter Sessions or Assizes; when they put them on again to appear in on trial. Afterwards the County-cloaths are washed, mended, and purified in an oven, for the use of future Criminals. The cloathing aforesaid for twenty men and five women cost only £26 : 6 : 8.

OH Ye whose hours exempt from Sorrow flow,
Behold the seat of Pain and Want and Woe:
Think, while your hands th' entreated alms extend,
That what to Us ye give to GOD ye lend.

OXFORD CASTLE.

REMARKS. FOR the Castle Gaol the County pays £40 a year to Mr. Etty, who holds it of Christ Church College on Lease.—Debtors' apartments small; and not enough of them for the general number of Prisoners. No free ward: for lodging even in the Tower on their own beds they must pay 1s. 6d. a week: see the Table. Their court-yard is too small.—Felons day-room for men and women down five steps: the men's dungeon down five more; only a small window: the women's night-room very small; no window. The court-yard common to both; much too small. The Gaoler has a spacious garden.

THIS Prison is also the City Gaol: for which Mr. Wisdom has £5 a year.—In 1773 eleven died of the Small-Pox. In 1774 that distemper still in the Gaol: in 1775 one Debtor died of it in May; three Debtors and a Petty Offender in June: three recovered. No Infirmary: no straw.

THOMAS HORDE, who was confined here for some offence against Government, built the Chapel. After his discharge, he had bequeathed £14 a year for a Chaplain; and as much to the Prisoners. But finding some difficulties would obstruct the execution of that Bequest; he altered it, August 6th, 1709, to a Legacy of £24 a year to be distributed among Prisoners of both sorts, at £2 a month. For the Payment, he bound an Estate in Oxfordshire: and to make up any deficiency of that Estate, he bound an Estate in Berkshire. Yet the Prisoners have now only thirty-three shillings a month. A Memorial of the process and result of Mr. Horde's benevolent intention hangs up in the Gaol. I have a copy of it; too long to transcribe.

THERE

THERE is another Legacy to Prisoners of both forts; 8s. 8d. a year; paid quarterly by Mr. Hart of Oxford.

DEBTORS have in common every Saturday two shillings worth of meat; sent by a Gentleman of Christ Church College. From two other Colleges they have in bread about 2s. 4d. a week. Christ Church and New College send them broth; generally three times in a fortnight: the Prisoners pay four pence to the man who brings it.

MR. WISDOM (the Gaoler) told me that about nine years ago, wanting to build a little hovel, and digging up stones for the purpose, from the ruins of the Court, which was formerly in the Castle, he found under them a complete skeleton with light chains on the legs; the links very small. These were, probably, the bones of a Malefactor who died in Court of the Distemper at the Black Affize mentioned page 17.

THAME. I WAS informed that this House, built in 1708, was given to the County for a Bridewell: but the greatest part of it is now a Parish Work-house. For the Prison there is only left, up stairs, a common day-room, and a small insecure lodging-room: and down eleven steps a dungeon in which are two night-rooms, the Cubs, each nine feet by seven.—If the House were put into good repair, and the whole used as a Bridewell, it would be a commodious one. Then there would be no need of sending Petty Offenders, as is now done, to the County Gaol: nor of locking up all day long within doors those few that are committed hither, men and women in the same room: nor of confining either sex at night in the Cubs. No allowance: no employment: no water: no sewers. Keeper's Salary £16: Fees 4s. 6d. no Table.

THE Keeper now farms the Work-house and the rest of the poor at £480 a year for the whole maintenance, cloathing, medicines &c.

seven; with only a grate of about nine inches square in each door. The Prison is not secure. No allowance but to the sick, who have six-pence a day and medicines. No straw: no water. Keeper's Salary, £20: Fees 4s. 2d. no Table.

THE House does not belong to the County: it is in the court-yard of the Keeper's public house, for which he pays £13:7:0 a year. Prisoners have no use of the court-yard; but their window is accessible to passengers. I saw a crowd of men talking at the grate with the Prisoners, who were all of them women; and was informed there is sometimes riot and confusion on such occasions.

REMARKS. THE CASTLE-YARD is spacious: County Members are chosen in it. In the Gaoler's house are many good lodging-rooms for Master's-side Debtors; and two small day-rooms: one of these is used as a Chapel.—The free ward, or night-room for Debtors, is at another part of the yard. You go to it through the Women-felons night-room. The day-room for Men and Women-felons is in the middle of the area; only fourteen feet by twelve. Near it is a Hand-Ventilator for airing the Men-felons dungeon, which is twenty-six steps under ground, and circular, about seventeen feet diameter, with barrack-bedsteads. Over it is an aperture in the yard, with an iron grate. The Felons work the Ventilator cheerfully about a quarter of an hour before they go down, and as long when they come up; for it freshens and cools the dungeon amazingly: we could hardly keep our candle burning below while it was working.—Excellent water at a pump in the yard. Straw £4 a year.—No Infirmary. Mr. Hallward the Surgeon caught the Gaol-Fever some years ago, and has ever since been fearful of going into the dungeon: when any Felon is sick there, he orders him to be brought out.—The Gaoler pays near £4 Window-tax.—Clauses of Act against Spirituous Liquors not hung up.

THIS Prison may be made commodious by separate wards, yards &c. There is round it much ground belonging to the County.

THIS GAOL is much too small for the number of Prisoners : REMARKS, and so is the Felons Court-yard. *The Dungeon where the Men-felons sleep is about two feet lower than the passage. No steps, a sloping descent. It is too close. No Infirmary. An Alarm-bell.
It is pity that the Stream just on the outside of the Walls is not within them. I was pleased to see plenty of clean STRAW in the Dungeon; and found it was owing to the generous and exemplary practice of NOT FARMING IT, but allowing the Gaoler to order it whenever wanted, and the County paying for it THEMSELVES.

SEPARATE Court-yards for Debtors and Felons; but the latter have no water. For this reason, and because their day-room is in the Debtors Court, both Debtors and Felons are commonly together in that Court.—Commodious apartments for Master's-side Debtors: and a large free ward for the Common-side.—For Felons there are two night-dungeons down eleven steps: that for men was about four years ago made more airy by an additional window: and it is, or should be, now daily freshened by a Hand Ventilator which is in the room above. The women's dungeon might also be freshened by the same.—The day-room for Felons is small: men and women together.—The County is now enclosing a Court-yard for the Women; and will probably build them a separate Day-room. They will no doubt provide Water in this Court; as they should also in that of the Men-felons. REMARKS.

AN Infirmary should be added: for if the intended improvements will be some protection against the Gaol-Fever, which of late years has prevailed here more than once, they will not secure Prisoners against the Small-Pox and other diseases.

WHEN the Apothecary finds that a sick Prisoner should have better diet, he orders the Gaoler to provide it, and signs his bill for the amount; which is readily allowed by the Justices at Quarter Sessions.

OF the twenty-four Felons in September last, fourteen were Convicts for Transportation.—The County allows Transports convicted at Quarter Sessions as much as those convicted at Assize have from the King's allowance, viz. 2s. 6d. a week.

SHREWS-BURY.

MR. WOOD who, before the appointing of a Chaplain, read prayers three times a week, and had £5 a year, has been employed in the same service ever since; and has received of the Chaplains the same salary.—I believe the Magistrates made the Chaplain's salary £5 more, in favour of Mr. Wood.

THE Justices of this County, at the General Quarter Sessions 11th Jan. 1774, were so considerate and humane, as to prohibit the demanding from Prisoners at their entrance into this Gaol, or into the County Bridewell, any money for drink, by the name of Garnish, or any other Name: and to require that two or more fair copies of their said order should be hung up in the most public places of the Gaol, for the inspection of Debtors, as well as Felons; that the unfortunate might not afterwards be Imposed upon.

COUNTY BRIDEWELL AT SHREWSBURY.

Too small: only one day-room for men and women. Two night-rooms above for women. In one of them I saw a poor young creature too ill to come down stairs; she was languishing on the floor in a consumption. The night-room for men is a dungeon down ten steps. There is a small court-yard with water.—By means of a door from this into one of the Gaol Court-yards, these Prisoners have a privilege (which few in Bridewells enjoy) of attending Public Worship in the Chapel on Sunday.

KEEPER'S Salary £50. Fees at Discharge of a Felon, 8s. of one guilty of a Misdemeanor, 6s. 8d. of a Vagrant, 3s. 6d. as per Table in the Prison.—Allowance, bread as Felons in the Gaol. Little or no employment: Keeper has half the profit.

COUNTY BRIDEWELL AT HEREFORD,

ON the Castle-green, is quite out of repair. Indeed it is not only ruinous but dangerous: a cross wall is parted a great way from the wall against which it abutted. In the day-room there was a large quantity of water from the roof. No fire-place: offensive sewers: no yard: no water: no stated allowance: no employment.—Keeper's Salary £10. He told me that a little before I came, a Prisoner died after three weeks confinement. Six Prisoners, whom I saw there at my first visit, complained of being almost famished. They were sent hither from the Assize a few days before to HARD LABOUR (as the sentence usually runs) for six months. The Justices had ordered the Keeper to supply each of them daily with a two-penny loaf: but he had neglected them. They broke out soon after.

REMARKS. ONLY one Court-yard. The rooms for Debtors small. Felons night-room at top of the house, with only one little window. Besides the difficulty of going daily up and down in irons; when water is to be 'carried so high, and the staircase, like this, is narrow and inconvenient, a room is seldom clean and healthy. This cannot be so if it should be crowded. At my first visit in 1774 they had the Gaol-Fever, of which J. Daverel and several of his Prisoners, and some of their friends died.—No Infirmary: there is room to build one at the bottom of the yard. The Brewhouse is very fit for a Felons Day-room; which is much wanted.

AFTER the mortality mentioned above, all the Prisoners were new cloathed by the Duke of Beaufort.

JOHN GABRIEL a Gardener near the town used to send each Prisoner every Quarter-day a six-penny loaf: and at his decease he bequeathed the same Donation. Prisoners do at present receive it; but there is no Memorial of the Legacy hung up.

COUNTY BRIDEWELL AT U S K.

THIS PRISON was formerly a Chapel. On the ground-floor is a room for men, and another for women. There are two work-rooms at top of the house; but I saw no Prisoners there.—The Keeper's wife told me that many years ago the Prison was crowded; and herself, her father, who was then Keeper, and many others of the family, had the Gaol-Fever: three of them, and several Prisoners died of it. The danger of such a calamity for the future would be much lessened, if an additional room or two were built in the Garden. There is a Court-yard, with a Pump, which is seldom in order.—Keeper's Salary £20: Fees 5s. 6d. no Table.

GLOUCESTER CASTLE

REMARKS. IS also one of the County Bridewells: yet only one Court-yard for all Prisoners; and one small Day-room, twelve feet by ten, for Men and Women-felons. The night-room (the Main) for Men-felons, though up many stone steps, is close and dark; and the floor is so ruinous, that it cannot be washed. Adjoining to the Main, there are other night-rooms for Fines &c. men and women separate. Fines have also their separate day-room. Many Prisoners died here in 1773; and always, except in my last visit, I saw some sick in this Gaol. The large Dunghill that one constantly sees near the stone steps may be one cause of it.—The whole Prison is much out of repair. Some alterations are now making at the Gateway. I hope the Gentlemen will consider the dreadful condition of the other Buildings.

THE upper rooms of the Castle were the Bridewell; but they are not now used except occasionally for a Prisoner that has the Small-Pox &c. there being no Infirmary.

OF the Felons &c. in September and December last, thirteen were Transports: most of them convicted at Lent Assize 1775. About twenty were Fines; who not having the County allowance, nor any employment, were in September very pitiable objects indeed; half naked, and almost famished. But in December their appearance was much altered. Mr. Raikes and other Gentlemen took pity on them, and generously contributed toward the feeding and cloathing them.—Mr. Williams has £10 a year as Bridewell Keeper.

IN this Gaol were some Prisoners, who had been arrested by Exchequer Writs; in which an Officer is commanded “to bring
“ the

“ the body before the Barons of the Exchequer---at Westminster--- “ to answer our Sovereign Lord the King concerning divers tref“ passes, contempts, and offences &c.” The Prisoners are called Contempts. In different parts of the Kingdom, there are many Prisoners detained by such Writs, which are indeed numerous.

fined in their rooms. It may be enlarged from the Keeper's Garden; and should be made secure, that Prisoners may use it, and have access to the pump. The Keeper readily agreed with me in that opinion. He is a Sheriff's Officer: Salary £10: Fees 6s. 8d. no Table. Straw ten shillings a quarter: allowance, if a Prisoner be very poor, 2d. a day: no employment. Clauses of Act against Spirituous Liquors not hung up. BERKELEY. QUITE out of repair. Only one room for men and women: no chimney: yard not secure: no water: no straw. The sensible old Keeper lamented the bad effects of close confinement in idleness, upon the health of even young strong Prisoners. Many such, he said, he had known quite incapable of working for some weeks after their discharge. He told me, that some years ago his Prisoners used to grind malt for a penny a bushel; and the Justices would not licence any Victualler whose malt was not ground here: but that of late years they have done no work at all. No allowance. Keeper Francis Norman: his Salary £20: Fees 4s. 4d. no Table. He wrote me a List of his Prisoners for four years past; which I will transcribe.

CIRENCESTER. THE ground-floor is the Keeper's shop for garden feeds; and his kitchen &c. On the first story is a room about sixteen feet by eleven for men: one corner of it is parted off for a bed-room, called the Cub, eight feet by five. On the second story is a larger room for women.—The whole out of repair; and the yard not secure enough to let the Prisoners have the use of it.—No allowance to any but Felons occasionally committed hither. WINCHCOMB. In this Bridewell Prisoners were formerly kept all together in the Cellar. Now they are in the Garrets: men in one, women in another; each about fourteen feet square: roof and floors meet: eight feet high to the ridge in the middle. A close glazed window in each: no chimney. Prisoners always confined to their rooms: court-yard not secure. The County have not laid out any thing upon the House for many years; and the whole is quite out of repair. It is the Keeper's Freehold: he is upwards of fourscore; his Salary per Receipts £12 : 10 : 0, in fact £12. Fees 13s. 4d. no Table. Licence for Beer. Clauses of Act against Spirituous Liquors not hung up. Allowance, if charged with Felony, three-pennyworth of bread a day. No straw.

THE Gaoler put down a Pump at his own expence; and for reimbursement he deducts three pence a week out of three shillings a week which the City pays Debtors in common. On the 13th of December Prisoners have ten shillings worth of bread from an Estate in Hemsted near this City. It is sent in two-penny loaves. No Memorial of it in the Gaol.

W I N C H E S T E R.

REMARKS. THIS GAOL is kept very clean; and the late alterations in it are improvements. The present Dungeon is down but five steps: it is boarded and has large windows. The former destructive Dungeon was darker, and down eleven steps: Mr. Lipscomb informed me that more than twenty Prisoners had died in it of the Gaol Fever in one year; and that his predecessor died of the same distemper. The Felons day room is commodiously enlarged. Their straw beds and coverlids are brought out and aired when the weather is fine. They have every day a clean towel hung on a roller: the prisoner who takes care of it and delivers it next day is paid a penny. If a little court, which is now shut up from the Gaol, and totally useless, were cleared, lowered, and opened towards the Prison, it would be very conducive to health and convenience.

ST. CROSS's Hospital bread (the Dole) is about a penny loaf given to each of the Prisoners six times a year: viz. on the eve of the following days, 10th August, 31st October, Christmas, Easter, 3d of May, and Whitfunday.

THE College allowance to Felons is, once a week, an ox's head, four sheeps heads and henges, about seventeen pints of oatmeal, three pints of salt, twelve loaves the size of twopenny ones, about twenty gallons of table beer, and generally three times a week the broken victuals. In Lent they have not the ox head, nor the other meat.

THE Gaoler has two guineas a year for keeping a bread account, to check the baker. The Justices also take care of this matter; and, in consequence, the quarterly bills, now the Prisoners have three halfpence a day, amount to no more than they did in the last Gaoler's and Baker's time when the allowance was but a penny a day.

COUNTY BRIDEWELLS.

WINCHESTER. THE three rooms are too close, and the yard too small for the Prisoners who are commonly numerous; especially especially at Quarter Sessions, when they are brought hither from the other Bridewells. This Prison has been fatal to vast numbers. The misery of the Prisoners excited the compassion of the Duke of Chandos; who for some years past has sent them every week about thirty pounds of beef and two gallon loaves. A pump lately sunk: no straw. Clauses of Act against Spirituous Liquors hung up. Keeper's Salary £40: Fees 7s. 8d. no Table. Licence, Beer and Wine. Allowance, a three-penny loaf in two days: no employment.

1775, Dec. 28, - - - 21.

GOSPORT. APARTMENTS convenient, but not kept clean. The yard airy. An oven to purify the cloaths, but no fuel allowed by the County. No straw. Keeper a Sheriff's Officer: Salary £40: Fees 6s. 8d. no Table. Licence, Beer and Wine. Allowance, two-pennyworth of bread a day: no employment. Clauses of Act against Spirituous Liquors hung up.

1774, Sep. 27, Prisoners 2,

1776, Feb. 26, - - - 5.

ODIAM. THREE rooms. The Keeper takes to himself for a brew-house, dairy &c. the middle room, which is far the largest: the other two are twelve feet by eleven each. Keeper a Sheriff's Officer: Salary £15: Fees 6s. 8d. no Table. No Licence. Allowance about a pound of bread a day: no straw: no employment. Clauses of Act against Spirituous Liquors not hung up.

1776, Feb. 28, Prisoners 8.

NEWPORT in the Isle of Wight. This is the Keeper's property.

Two rooms; one of them quite dark: no yard: no water. Keeper told me his Salary was £19 : 15 : 0, for which he was to supply each Prisoner daily with three-halfpennyworth of bread, and three pints of water.

1774, Sep. 27, Prisoners none.

THE PRISON in this City called Fisberton-Anger Gaol (from REMARKS.
the name of the Parish in which it stands) near a fine stream, is also one of the COUNTY BRIDEWELLS. Only one yard. No day-room for Common-side Debtors, nor Felons: each sort have their fire on a brick hearth raised in the middle of their respective lodging-rooms, without chimney. The Debtors room over the Felons. Women-felons have a separate room, more commodious.

MR. BIGGS has £6 : 13 : 4 Salary for the Bridewell; and £10 a year for Fees of Prisoners acquitted at Quarter Sessions. He pays Window-tax £3 : 15 : 0.

THE last time I was there, I saw a new building in the yard; a stable, cart-house, and brew-house; with an Infirmary over them; one room for men, another for women. I could not help wishing that the lower part instead of stable &c. had been two day-rooms with fire-places, one for Common-side Debtors, another for Felons.

THAT part of the Prison which was the Bridewell is not secure; and Petty Offenders are confined in the Gaol.

JUST without the Prison-gate is a round staple fixed in the wall: through it is put a chain, at each end of which a Common-side Debtor padlocked by the leg, stands offering to those who pass by, nets, laces, purses &c. made in the Prison. The two whom I saw there last were Crown Debtors not cleared by the late Insolvent Act.

I HAVE been informed, that at Christmas, Felons chained together were permitted to go about; one of them carrying a sack or basket for food, another a box for money.

TWENTY pounds a year of the Chaplain's Salary is paid by Lord Weymouth by a Bequest of Thomas Thynne, Esq. who bound for Payment the Manors of Weobly and Rofs in the County of Hereford. The Bequest was recognized by Lord Weymouth in a Deed of Settlement dated 2d November 1709.

LORD PEMBROKE pays a Legacy of £5 a year; part to the Chaplain himself, viz. a guinea for a hat; the remainder to be by him distributed among the Prisoners. Mr. Smith of Salisbury left the Interest of £50 to be divided among them. No Memorial of any Legacy hung up in the Gaol.

ALLOWANCE to Offenders three-halfpennyworth of bread a day (weight in Sep. 1776, 18 ounces), and a pint of small beer. Straw a guinea a year.

THERE was a Debtor from the Court of Requests, he had a wife and four small children. Twelve weeks confinement clears such Debtors.

Two or three years ago the Gaol-Fever carried off many: but as the Infirmary and some of the other rooms mentioned above have been built since that time, there is now little danger of that distemper; provided care be taken to separate Prisoners in the apartments built for that purpose. All these rooms are on the ground-floor ; and by a sewer within doors, they are made very offensive, especially the men's night-room ; in which, when I was there first, I saw one dying on the floor of the Gaol-Fever. The Keeper told me that just before one had died there, and another soon after his discharge. Up stairs are three rooms for those who pay. No court-yard : no water accessible to Prisoners : no straw. Allowance to Petty Offenders none ; Felons two-pennyworth of bread a day. Too small; and the ceilings low. Keeper's Salary £40: Fees 13s. 4d. no Table. Allowance a three-penny loaf in two days, weight in Sep. 1774, 1lb. 15oz. No employment. No straw. The Keeper told me he had spoken in behalf of his sick Prisoners to the Clerk of the Peace, who said "he thought the late Act did not extend to Bridewells."

THE Justices have very judiciously provided for the relief of Prisoners going to different Quarter Sessions. Their Order dated 12th April 1774 is as follows.

Sherborn, Dorset. THE great inhumanity that frequently happens unto the several Prisoners---conveyed to the different Quarter Sessions to be tryed---by the walking loaded with heavy irons---being taken into consideration---it is the Resolution and Order of this Court that for the future the Gaol-Keeper and Bridewell-Keeper shall provide for one Prisoner only a horse, for two or more a convenient cart or carriage for the conveying them: and to be allowed the sum of three pence per mile for one person; for two or more the sum of six pence a mile &c.

THIS GAOL is the Property of John Rolle Walter, Esq. whose Family had a Grant of it from the Duchy of Cornwall: the Gaoler pays him Rent £22 per annum. The house and yard too small: no sewer. The three night-dungeons down three steps are close and unhealthy:

REMARKS.

unhealthy: the windows too small. An Infirmary, commodious enough, is lately built; but the stairs that lead up to it are intolerably bad. The Prisoners make cabbage-nets for two pence a dozen; and purses of different sorts from four pence to seven pence a dozen: the Turnkey finds the twine and thread.—Two Sailors fined a shilling each, had £1 : 1 : 4 each to pay the Clerk of the Peace, besides the Gaoler's Fees. Mr. Rule the Surgeon told me that he was by contract excused from attending in the Dungeons any Prisoners that should have the Gaol-Fever.

THERE is no Table of Fees. But by the close of the Preamble at the Sheriff's Ward, the Table there seems to have included originally the Fees of this Gaol also.

THE Gaoler has for each Transport two guineas from the Merchant, to whom the County pays per contract £5.

ABOUT Christmas, the Gaoler permits his Prisoners to solicit Charity in the City. When I was last there the box was broke open, supposed by the person who conducted them and absconded. If any Gentleman would undertake the disposal of the Contributions, this would not only prevent such a fraud, but the money laid out for meat, firing &c. would be far more beneficial than their spending most of it in liquor.

It was commendable and exemplary in the Justices of this County to fix the Felons allowance by a certain weight of good bread, not variable with the price.

Southgate. MRS. Hester Reed gave sixpence a week for ever, to this * Prison to be paid out of a Tenement called Ven in the Parish of Culemton, and laid out in middling wheat bread and distributed always to the Prisoners in the Shew. *

* The Shew or Shoe is the Common ward for poor Debtors, who beg by letting down a shoe.

PLYMOUTH TOWN GAOL.

Two rooms for Felons; and a large room above for Debtors. One of the former, the Clink, seventeen feet by eight, about five feet and a half high, with a wicket in the door seven inches by five to admit light and air. To this, as I was informed, three men who were confined near two months under sentence of Transportation, came by turns for breath. The door had not been opened for five weeks when I with difficulty entered to see a pale inhabitant. He had been there ten weeks under sentence of Transportation, and said he had much rather have been hanged than confined in that noisome cell. No yard: no water: no sewer. The Gaolers live distant: they are three Sergeants at Mace. Fees 15s. 10d. no Table. Allowance to Debtors, none but on application: Felons two-pennyworth of bread a day. No straw.

L A U N C E S T O N.

REMARKS. THIS GAOL, though built in a large yard belonging to the old ruinous Castle, is very small; house and court measuring only fifty two feet by forty four; and the house not covering half that ground. The Prison is a room or passage twenty three feet and a half by seven and a half, with only one window two feet by one and a half:—and three Dungeons or Cages on the side opposite the window: these are about six and half feet deep; one nine feet long; one about eight; one not five: this last for women. They are all very offensive. No chimney: no drains: no water: damp earth floors: no Infirmary. The yard not secure; and Prisoners seldom permitted to go out to it. Indeed the whole Prison is out of repair, and yet the Gaoler lives distant. I once found the Prisoners chained two or three together. Their provision is put down to them through a hole in the floor of the room above (used as a Chapel); and those who serve them there, often catch the fatal fever. At my first visit I found the Keeper, his Assistant, and all the Prisoners but one, sick of it: and heard that a few years before, many Prisoners had died of it; and the Keeper and his wife in one night.

I LEARNED that a woman who was discharged just before my first visit (by the Grand Jury making a collection for her Fees) had been confined three years by the Ecclesiastical Court; and had three children in the Gaol. There is no Table of Fees.

THE King, of his Royal Bounty, has offered TWO THOUSAND POUNDS towards a new Gaol; but nothing is done by the County.

I WAS edified by the serious behaviour of the Chaplain at Prayers.

The

The Prisoners respect him, and were very attentive. He has a large family : I was sorry for the late reduction of his Salary.

THE Mayor sends the Prisoners weekly one shilling's worth of bread : no memorial of the legacy in the Gaol. Transports have not the King's allowance of 2s. 6d. a week. Clauses of Act against Spirituous Liquors not hung up.

COUNTY BRIDEWELL AT BODMIN.

THE County pays £20 a year for this Prison. It is much out of repair ; and the walls round the yard not safe enough to let Prisoners use it. The night rooms are two garrets, with small sky-lights seventeen inches by twelve, close glazed. I was informed that a few years ago the Gaol-Fever was very fatal, not only in the Prison, but also in the Town. Keeper's Salary lately raised from £20 to £28. Fees 16s. 8d. no Table. Allowance a three-penny loaf in two days ; (weight, Dec. 1775, 31 oz.) No employment. A Surgeon to this Bridewell ; his Salary £20.

REMARKS. THIS PRISON, for which the Sheriff pays £20 a year, is out of repair. A spacious back-yard, with a stream running through it. The Keeper pays Window-tax £3 : 7 : 0, and I saw some windows were stopped up.—He said he had been Keeper above twenty years; and during the whole time had but four Prisoners who obtained from their Creditors the allowance commonly called the Groats.

TRURO TOWN GAOL.

BUILT about two years ago upon a good plan. Two houses in front, for the two Sergeants at Mace who are the Keepers. Cross the yard is the Prison ; which consists of four convenient rooms, two of them vaulted : no pump.

1775, Dec. 21, Prisoners none.

AT PENZANCE is also

A PRISON for the Hundred and Liberties of PENWITH,

THE Property of Lord Arundel. Two rooms in the Keeper's stable-yard ; but distant from his house, and quite out of sight and heating. The room for men is full eleven feet square, and six high : window eighteen inches square : no chimney. Earth floor ; very damp. The door had not been opened for four weeks when I went in ; and then the Keeper began shoveling away the dirt.—There was only one Debtor, who seemed to have been robust, but was grown pale by ten weeks close confinement, with little food, which he had from a brother, who is poor and has a family. He said, the dampness of the Prison, with but little straw, had obliged him (he spoke with sorrow) to send for the bed on which some of his children lay.

He had a wife and ten children, two of whom died since he came thither, and the rest were almost starving.—He has written me a letter since, by which I learn that his distress was not mitigated, and that he had a companion, miserable as himself.—No allowance. Keeper no Salary : Fees 8s. 4d. Every action, no Table.

A YEAR or two ago five Prisoners, I was informed, grew desperate by what they suffered in this wretched Prison, and broke out.

The Keeper told me that he lately had a Prisoner who was arrested for £6 : the man had a large family, and not a bad character ; yet the Plaintiff paid him his groats for two years ; and dying then, bound his Estate for the continual Payment of them : but the Insolvent Act freed the Prisoner and the Estate.—Keeper no Salary : Fees 13s. 4d. no Table.

REMARKS. THE GAOL is near the river, and has no offensive sewers. The apartments roomy; but the court-yards too little.* They might be enlarged eastward. Men-felons have no day-room: a room, which is fit, and seems to have been designed for that use, is taken by the Gaoler for a stable, Affizes never held here. Prisoners are moved for trial to the Bridewell at Taunton; or to Bridgewater where the Prison is only one room; or to Wells where there is no Prison at all: and yet, at Midsummer Assize 1775 the Prisoners were kept in that City eight days.

EVERY time I was here I saw one Thomas Hayes who was committed by order of the Ecclesiastical Court.

BRISTOL-NEWGATE.

REMARKS. THIS NEWGATE (as that in the Metropolis) stands in the midst of the City. It is too small for the general number of Prisoners. For Debtors there are about fifteen rooms; yet no free ward. The poorest pay ten pence halfpenny a week: others two shillings and six-pence.—For Women-felons, a day-room and several night-rooms.—For Men-felons, a day-room, with a court-yard adjacent twenty feet by twelve. Their dungeon, the Pit, down eighteen steps, is about eighteen feet by seventeen, and nine feet high: barrack-bedsteads: no bedding nor straw. It is close and offensive: only a small window.—There is another yard, the Tennis-Court, larger than that of the Felons: Prisoners are admitted into it by turns.—A room or two at the top of the house for an Infirmary.—There are many narrow passages: the utmost attention is requisite to keep the Prison healthy. I found it clean; considering it was so crowded and so close. It was scraped and lime-whited once a year before the late Act for preserving the health of Prisoners. That Act is neatly painted on a board hung up in the Chapel, which is commodious and has a gallery: several Texts of Scripture are painted in sundry parts of it.—Clauses of the Act against Spirituous Liquors are not hung up. No Table of Gaoler's Fees.

THE Rev. Mr. James Rouquet has been unwearied in attention to the spiritual and temporal interests of the Prisoners; officiating near twenty years without a Salary. He had only once a Gratuity of £20*.

* THIS was written before November 1776, when Mr. Rouquet died in the forty-seventh year of his age. The general Sorrow, and the Sermons preached and printed on that Occasion, do more than justify what I have said concerning the Zeal of this pious Divine.

Mr. Easterbrook lately appointed. Besides the Service noted in its place, there are thirteen Sermons a year, for which the Preacher has £4.

JOHN HEYDON left £100 to be lent to two Merchants, each paying annually to the Corporation for the Prisoners as Interest of his Moiety £1 : 13 : 4.—Mrs. Aldworth left about £5 a year, to be paid by the Parish of All-Saints; two thirds of it to Debtors, who receive the money usually on Christmas-Eve; the other third part is generally laid out in coverlids or blankets for Felons. No Memorial in the Gaol of any Legacy.

BRISTOL CITY BRIDEWELL.

PART of it is in the Keeper's house, on one side of a common foot way : and part on the other side. In the Keeper's house, the Master's-side, are three rooms : one a day room ; in the other two are beds at six pence a night.—The Common-side, the new Bridewell, crosses the way, consists of two parts separated by a court-yard of about fifty feet by seventeen. Each part has two rooms on the ground floor, and two chambers. Total eight rooms, about eighteen feet square; windows to the court-yard; no chimnies. The Court being quite out of sight of the Keeper's house, he does not suffer Prisoners to use it; nor the pump in it. They have no water but what is handed to them; and all the rooms are very dirty. Little or no straw: no employment. Keeper's Salary lately raised from £20 to £30. He receives the money for bread allowance, two-pence a day: but the Prisoners assured me, that what he gave them from his own loaf was far short of two penny-worth. In Dec. 1775 there was an acquitted Woman Prisoner detained for Fees 3s. 6d. Those Fees were paid, and the Prisoner was released.—Clauses of the Act against Spirituous Liquors hung up.

THE ascent to this Prison, lately built in a meadow which is sometimes overflowed, is by a fine flight of Steps. On the ground-floor is the Keeper's kitchen &c. and some rooms for Petty Offenders. Above are three stories; five rooms on each: one or two of them used by the Keeper: the rest for Debtors; one bed in a room, in which if two Prisoners sleep, they pay two shillings a week each; if one has it to himself he pays two shillings and six pence a week. Two rooms on the second story are a free ward; on the upper floor is their work-shop. There is a court-yard with offensive sewers too near the house.—Keeper a Sheriff's Officer: no Salary: Fees, if from the Court of Conscience 3s. 6d. these Debtors are cleared in thirteen weeks paying those Fees: Debtors for large sums 7s. 8d. no Table.

YORK CASTLE.

IN THE SPACIOUS AREA is a noble Prison for Debtors, which REMARKS.
 does honour to the County. You ascend by a fine flight of stone steps to a floor on which are eleven rooms, full sixteen feet square, near twelve feet high. Above them is the same number of rooms: one or two of these, for Common-side Debtors. The rooms are airy and healthy. On the ground-floor are the Gaoler's apartments &c.

THE Felons court-yard is down five steps: it is too small, and has no water: the pump is just on the outside of the palisades. The day-room for men is only twenty-six feet by eight: in it are three cells: in another place nine cells: and three in another. The cells are in general about seven feet and a half by six and a half, and eight and a half high; close and dark; having only either a hole over the door about four inches by eight, or some perforations in the door of about an inch diameter: not any of them to the open air, but into passages or entries. In most of these cells three Prisoners are locked up at night; in winter for fourteen to sixteen hours: straw on the stone floors; no bedsteads. There are four condemned rooms about seven feet square.—A sewer in one of the passages often makes these parts of the Gaol very offensive: and I cannot say they are clean.
 Indeed a clean Prison is scarcely ever seen, where the Water is to be brought in by the Gaoler's servants. The next house to the Castle-gate, and others in the neighbourhood, have river-water laid in at a moderate expense.

WOMEN-FELONS are kept quite separate: they have two courtyards, but no water: you go down four steps to their two rooms, a day and a night room. Their condemned room is in another part of the Gaol: near it is a room to confine Debtors who do not behave well.

THE Infirmary near the gate is only one middle-sized room. When Prisoners of one sex are there, those of the other are excluded. A sick man was kept out for that reason when I was there.

AT Assize some Prisoners appear in Court on their trial in the County-cloathing.*

THE County pays one John Sherwood £10 a year to inspect and weigh the Bread, and deliver it to the Prisoners. He constantly attends for this purpose on Tuesday and Friday.

TRANSPORTS convicted at Quarter Sessions have, besides the bread allowance, one shilling a week. Those cast at Assize have the King's Allowance of 2s. 6d. a week.

THERE is a grand Shire-Hall in the Castle yard almost finished. I hope the Gentlemen of this great County will not stop there; but proceed to build a proper Prison for Felons; in which Boys may be separated from Old Offenders, and the other Inconveniences of the present Gaol avoided.

Yorkshire. ORDERS AND FEES settled by the Justices of the Peace of the several Ridings of the County of York and confirmed by the Justices of Assize---which are to be observed and kept by the Gaoler---and all Prisoners---until the same shall be Legally altered.

COUNTY BRIDEWELLS.

WEST-RIDING, WAKEFIELD. THIS showy Prison is unfortunately built upon low ground ; so that it is damp, and exposed to floods. Four of the wards are spacious ; but all the wards are made very offensive by sewers, which are dark withal. Prison and Court-yard out of sight from the Keeper's house, though adjoining ; and some Prisoners have escaped. They are now let out to the court only half an hour in the day. The wards are very dirty : a Prison on ground so low as this, requires the utmost attention to cleanliness.—Keeper's Salary lately raised from £80 to £105 he contracting to supply straw and coals. No Fees. No allowance of food, but by order of a Justice : little or no employment. Two rooms for an Infirmary almost finished.

1776, Jan. 11, - - - 32,

---- Oct. 27, - - - 19.

NORTH-RIDING, THIRSK. THE County has ground enough about this Prison, and might enlarge it. If they do, they will think of an Infirmary. The Keeper told me his Prisoners had the Gaol-Fever not long ago. His Salary £26 : 10 : 0. No Fees. No straw : no employment.

1776, Jan. 13, Prisoners 3.

EAST

EAST-RIDING, BEVERLEY. ON the ground-floor three small night-rooms; and a new work-room with a chimney: above, four rooms for those that pay. In the court-yard not only a pump, but a cistern of rain-water. Coals two chaldron and a half a year. No straw: no employment. The Keeper has been in his office above forty years: Salary £30: Fees 4s. no Table.

SURGEON, Mr. Wallis, occasionally.

REMARKS. THIS GAOL upon Ouse-Bridge, called the Kidcots, has on one side of the bridge four convenient chambers for Debtors, about eleven feet square: for these they pay six pence a week. Below them is a free ward with barrack-beds; and a room to the street. At the window they sell nets, purses, laces, &c.

THE Men-felons Ward on the other side is down eleven steps : that adjoining, for women, down ten. The two night rooms for Men are each six feet and a half by five. The night room for Women about six feet square. All the rooms for Felons, are close and offensive: no amendment since the late Act. The wooden door stands open in the day time, to give them a little air. At the inner door, which is of iron grates, I have seen liquors handed to those who seemed to have had enough before.—No water, but when there is too much; that is, in a very high flood; then it flows into the rooms.—Gaoler a Sheriff's Officer for City and County.

It were in vain to offer any hints of improvement. This Gaol cannot be made a good one.

THE Corporation pays free-ward Debtors one shilling and two pence three farthings a week by a Legacy of Mr. Peacock. No memorial of this in the Gaol. But there is a memorandum of another Legacy, viz. of Elizabeth Taylor, who by her Will dated 21st of October 1580 left 3s. 4d. to be divided equally among the Prisoners in Ouse-Bridge Gaol on Lady-day. This has not been received by them for some years.

ST. PETER'S GAOL,

FOR the Liberty of St. Peter of York, near the Minster-gate, is the Property of the Dean; who holds his Courts here. He has lately purchased an adjoining Tenement for his Gaoler to live in: in consequence of which, the two rooms in which he lived before are added to the Debtors apartments, and they have now four rooms. Under those are two cells for Criminals. All out of repair, dirty and offensive: no court-yard: no sewers. No allowance.

I HAVE a printed list of Parishes, Towns, and Parts of Towns which are in the Liberty of St. Peter.—Within the City and Ainsty nine Places: in the East-Riding sixty-two; West-Riding forty; North-Riding fifty-one: and there is one Place in each of the following Counties, Devonshire, Gloucestershire, Lancashire, Lincolnshire, Northumberland, Southampton i. e. Hants. In Nottinghamshire seven Places.

RICHMOND GAOL,

FOR the very extensive Liberty of Richmond and Richmondshire, is the Property of Lord Holdernefs. It is also the Bridewell, and the Borough-Gaol. For Debtors a kitchen and bed-room, close glazed. For Men-criminals two dungeons down five steps: for Women, a room above. No straw. Clauses of Act against Spirituous Liquors hung up. A Court-yard, and a Well.—Gaoler no Salary for the Liberty: for the Bridewell £13: 10: 0: for the Borough £4: Fees, Debtors 6s. 8d. at Entrance, and 6s. 8d. at Discharge: Criminals 16s. 4d. Allowance to the latter four pence a day.

IN the Table of Fees dated 1671 and signed W Lylde and Ty Lyttleton, the 12th article is, “Every Person or Persons that shall “be committed upon any Warrant---upon his or their Commitment “to Gaol shall pay to the rest of the Prisoners 2s. 4d. for their “GARNISH.”

1776, Oct. 26, Debtors 6.

RIPPON LIBERTY-GAOL,

Is the Property of the Archbishop, by a Charter from King Edward IV. His Court adjoining, is called the Court Military. The Liberty includes twenty-four Parishes. For Debtors four or five good good rooms in the Keeper's house: but no free ward. For Felons one strong room quite dark; another with a little window. Keeper no Salary; he pays Rent: he is a Bailiff. Fees, Debtors 15s. 4d. no Table: Licence for Beer.

1776, Oct. 26, Debtors 2.

R I P P O N G A O L,

FOR the Canon-Fee Court, belongs to the Dean and Chapter of Rippon. It is not only a Gaol for that Court, but a House of Correction for the Liberty. Good rooms for Debtors, but no free ward. The Bridewell part, two dark rooms, about eight feet square. No Salary as Gaoler; as Keeper of Bridewell £10 : 10 : 0. Fees, Debtors 13s. 4d. no Table: Licence for Beer. Keeper a Bailiff.

1776, Oct. 26, No Prisoners.

KNARESBOROUGH PRISON,

FOR DEBTORS, in the Honour or Forest of Knareborough, the Liberty including nineteen Townships &c. is the Property of the Duke of Devonshire, Lessee to his MAJESTY. It is almost the only Remains of a ruinous Castle granted by King Edward III. to John of Gaunt Duke of Lancaster. One room about twelve feet square, another within it about eight: in the latter no window.—No sewer: no fire-place: no water. Keeper lately dead; was a Bailiff; lived distant.

1776, Oct. 26, No Prisoners.

KNARESBOROUGH PRISON,

FOR TOWN DEBTORS, is under the Hall. Of difficult access; the door about four feet from the ground. Only one room, about fourteen feet by twelve. Earth floor: no fire-place: very offensive; a common sewer from the town running through it uncovered. I was informed that an Officer, confined here some years since, for only a few days, took in with him a dog to defend him from vermin: but the dog was soon destroyed, and the Prisoner's face much disfigured by them.

1776, Oct. 26, No Prisoners.

KNARESBOROUGH TOWN GAOL

Is under the landing-place between two flights of stone steps, that lead on the right and left hand up to the Hall. Only one room about eight feet by five: two windows eighteen inches by six.—I mention this small Prison, because in it are sometimes confined for one night or two at Quarter Sessions six or seven Prisoners, men and women.

1776, Oct. 26, No Prisoners.

DONCASTER TOWN GAOL.

FOUR good rooms. No yard: no water: no sewer. Keeper lives distant.

1775, Jan. 5, Prisoners 2.

LEEDS TOWN GAOL.

Four good rooms, and a small one. No court-yard: no water: no sewer. Keeper lives distant.

KINGSTON UPON HULL TOWN AND COUNTY GAOL.

THE Debtors free ward is a large room. Over it one as large, and over that another smaller, both for Criminals. The ground-room is a damp dungeon: but the Gaoler, who has a character for humanity, assured me that no one had been confined in it for many years. In his house adjoining is a room or two with beds, for those who pay. Leads for Debtors to walk on: no court-yard: no water accessible to Prisoners: no sewer; and the Felons rooms are offensive. Gaoler no Salary: Fees 8s. no Table. Allowance to Felons three pence a day. Gaol-Delivery once in three years*.

For the Manor of Wakefield in the Liberty of the Honour of Pontefract in the Dutchy Court of Lancaster, is out of repair. A new Prison is lately built at BATLEY. BEHIND a House for the Keeper is the Prison. Plan rectangular: the Front is the wall and gate. On three sides are Lodging-rooms for Debtors; five or six about ten feet square; four much larger for two beds in each. Two Day-rooms; two work-rooms; and a dark room for the unruly. There are in a separate Court two rooms for Women-debtors: a provision very kind and prudent, and, I believe, peculiar to this Prison.—All the Prison rooms are on the ground floor.

IN the old Prison at Rothwell, I saw both times I was there, one William Carr a weaver: he had given a bad name to a woman who was said not to deserve a very good one: she cited him to the Ecclesiastical Court; and he was imprisoned 4th of May 1774. He had a wife and three children.—I will transcribe a line or two of the Warrant.—“For as much as the Royal Power ought not to be wanting to the Holy Church in its Complaints---attach the said W. C. ---until he shall have made satisfaction to the Holy Church as well “for the Contempt as for the Injury by him done unto it.” He was discharged 26th July last by the Insolvent Act.

THE Keeper has no Salary. Fees see Table.

HALIFAX PRISON FOR DEBTORS,

FOR the Manor of Wakefield, dated 1662, is the Property of the Duke of Leeds. For Master's-side Debtors, rooms in the Keeper's public-house. Through this you pass to a court-yard about fourteen yards by seven: at the further end of which is a sizeable room on the ground floor for Common-side Debtors, it is called the Low Gaol: over it a chamber (the Low Gaol Chamber) where Prisoners pay one shilling a week.—The whole Prison is greatly out of repair: it rained in upon the beds: the rooms at my last visit were clean.

KEEPER no Salary: he pays the Duke £24 a year: Fees see Rothwell, preceding page.

IN this Town formerly the Barons (as in many other places) and after them various Proprietors had power of life and death. The method of execution was decollation by an axe in an engine. The axe is preserved in the Gaol to this day. Two men in 1650 were the last who suffered by it.

D 'U R H A M.

THE HIGH GAOL is the Property of the Bishop. By REMARKS.
 Patent from his Lordship, Sir Hedworth Williamson Bart. is perpetual Sheriff.—The Court-yard for Master's-side Debtors is only twenty-four feet by ten. Common-side Debtors have none at all: their free wards, the Low Gaol, are two damp unhealthy rooms by the Gateway: they are never suffered to go out of these, unless to Chapel, which is the Master-side Debtors Hall; and not always to that: for on a Sunday when I was there and missed them at Chapel, they told me they were not permitted to go thither. No sewers: at more than one of my visits, I learned that the dirt, ashes &c. had lain there many months. There is an excellent double-barreled Pump, which raises water about seventy feet.

FELONS have no Court-yard: but they have a Day-room and two small rooms for an Infirmary. The Men are put at night into Dungeons: one seven feet square for three Prisoners: another, the Great Hole, has only a little window. In this I saw six Prisoners, most of them Transports, chained to the floor. In that situation they had been many weeks; and were very sickly. Their straw on the stone-floor almost worn to dust. Long confinement, and not having the King's allowance of 2s. 6d. a week, had urged them to attempt an Escape: after which the Gaoler chained them as above.—There is another dungeon middle-sized; and for Women-felons a separate room or two.

THE Common-side Debtors, whom I saw eating boiled bread and water, told me, that this was the only nourishment some had lived upon for near a twelvemonth. They have from a Legacy two shillings a week in winter, and one shilling and six pence a week in summer

DURHAM. for coals. No memorandum of it in the Gaol : perhaps this may in time be lost ; as the Gaoler said two others were, viz. one of Bishop Crew, and another of Bishop Wood ; from which Prisoners had received no benefit for some years past. The clauses of Act against Spirituous Liquors are hung up. Gaol-Delivery once a year.

THERE was a vacant piece of ground adjacent, of little use but for the Gaoler's occasional lumber. It extends to the river, and measures about twenty two yards by sixteen. I once and again advised the inclosing this for a Court-yard : but when I was there in January 1776 I had the mortification to hear that the Surgeon, who is Uncle to the Gaoler, had obtained from the Bishop in October preceding a Lease of it for twenty one years at the rent of one shilling per annum. He had built a little stable on it.

and airy: I always found them remarkably clean, strewed with sand &c. The Corporation allow both Debtors and Felons firing and candles in plenty: and every Prisoner hath a chaff-bed, two blankets, and a coverlid: Debtors are not thus accommodated in any other Prison in England. They also allow brooms, mops, and all such necessaries. I copied the sums generously allowed for those articles; the whole amount is £45 : 1 : 4 per annum. This is one of the very few Gaols that have what is called in London the RULES. Part of two Streets near the Gaol is in the Prison-Liberty.

THERE is no yard: but one might be made of the vacant ground that lies West of the Gaol. A Door should be cut in the wall between the Felons Ward and the room used for a Chapel. It would not then be necessary for them to come out and cross the street, as they do now.

THE Debtors Beds are in Closets, which should be taken down. Instead of them Iron Bedsteads should be placed in the Wards, as in some Hospitals.

No Prisoners here have Fetters, unless they be riotous. For some years past, Prisoners acquitted have been discharged in Court. The Corporation paid the Gaoler's Fees if the Prisoners were poor.—Gaol-Delivery once a year.—Clauses of Act against Spirituous Liquors not hung up.

I WAS concerned when I heard at my last visit that the humane Gaoler Mr. Crafter was dead. But his Successor Mr. Harle is equally worthy of the Trust.

DR. ROTHERAM, a Physician in this Town, visits the Prisoners very assiduously without Fee or Reward. This is the only instance of the kind I have met with.

REMARKS. ONLY one Court-yard, which is for Debtors. Some commodious rooms have been lately built for them; the old ones being out of repair.—Felons are always locked within doors. In the Women's room I saw (Jan. 1776) two; who, the Gaoler said, were cast for Transportation; one in Sep. 1773, the other in Nov. 1774. The term of their punishment was lengthened by all this Time.

OF the other two rooms, generally appropriated to Men-felons, one is a Day-room, the other an offensive Dungeon. In the latter were three Transports, who upon suspicion of intending an Escape were chained to the floor.—They have not the King's allowance of 2s. 6d. a week.

GAOL-DELIVERY once a year. Assize held at Newcastle, whither Prisoners are conveyed; and men and women confined together, commonly a whole week, in a dirty damp Dungeon down six steps in the Old Castle.

THE County has for some years paid the Gaoler's Fees for acquitted Prisoners, if poor: and cloathed such Transports as were quite indigent.

THE Debtors Court-yard should be allotted to Felons: and one for Debtors might be taken from the Gaoler's spacious Garden.

THIS GAOL is part of the grand Town-Hall, which was built in 1754, and has a fine Steeple: the only one in the Town. The rooms on the ground floor are damp and Prisoners are not put into them, but over the Hall, where is a long room, or gallery, and seven other rooms, sizeable, but dirty. No court-yard: no water. Clauses of Act against Spirituous Liquors not hung up. The Gaoler keeps a Public-house, distant. He told me he went to the Gaol thrice a day; at nine, one, and eight.

REMARKS.

* THIS place, though a distinct jurisdiction, in none of the Circuits, is inserted here, rather than at the end of the English and Welch Counties, because its situation gives it a natural connection with the last-mentioned County, and it falls in here in the order of my journey through the northern part of the kingdom.

CARLISLE.

C A R L I S L E.

THE COURT spacious, eighty-five yards by thirty-six; but common to all Prisoners. In it a Chapel, built, by the date upon it, 1734. Five rooms for Master's-side Debtors; and as many on the Common-side. Most of the latter are large, but have windows to the street. As there are so many rooms, the not separating men and women is inexcusable. REMARKS.

THE Wards for Felons are two rooms down a step or two: dark and dirty. One of them, the Day-room, has a window to the street; through which Spirituous Liquors and Tools for Mischief may be easily conveyed: but the last time I saw it, there was a shutter and padlock to it. The Night-room is only eleven feet by nine. No Infirmary. Transports have not the King's allowance of 2s. 6d. a week. Clauses of Act against Spirituous Liquors not hung up. Gaol-Delivery once a year.

THE Gaol-Fever, which some years ago carried off many of the Prisoners, did not deter Mr. Farish from visiting the sick every day.

FEW Gaols have so many convenient rooms for Common-side Debtors. It is the more remarkable here, because there is no Table signed by the Magistrates to particularize the Free Wards. Some Gaolers avail themselves of such a Circumstance, and demand rent for rooms which were undoubtedly designed for Common-side Prisoners.

CARLISLE CITY GAOL,

OVER the Scotch-Gate. Only one ruinous room about twenty feet square ; with a window four feet by one and a half. No allowance but a very small quantity of peat taken as a toll upon that commodity, and water brought twice a day.

I WAS told that many a poor Traveller from the North who by some Calamity had contracted an unavoidable debt of forty shillings, has been confined at a distance from his Friends in this Prison where there is no Provision, nor any means of procuring it.

THIS GAOL was built by the County. The Earl of Thanet is REMARKS.
Hereditary Sheriff, and pays the Gaoler his Salary. Happily for the Prisoners in a Gaol so circumstanced, the present Gaoler is a man of temper and humanity.

At page 41 I complained of this Prison being within reach of Floods: but in Jan. 1776 there was a new Building on the highest part of the Yard. It consists of four vaulted Wards for Felons, fifteen feet by thirteen; a window in each, but no chimney: and over them three good rooms with chimneys, for Debtors.

GAOL-DELIVERY once a year.—No Table of Fees.

KENDAL. ONLY one room for Men and Women eighteen feet by twelve and a half, with one window about two feet square : no chimney : no yard : no water : no sewer. The Keeper has a garden : Salary £6 : 10 : no Fees.—The Town sometimes commits Prisoners hither and allows them six pence a day ; the County, four pence.

ONLY two Dungeons, called Black Holes : fourteen steps under ground. No yard : no water : no straw. Allowance six pence a day. The two Town Sergeants keep the Prison by turns ; a week each.

I HAVE not censured the management of any Work-houses (though highly deserving it) because foreign to my subject. But I will take the liberty to extol the oeconomy, industry and cleanliness of the Kendal Work-house. It makes some amends for the inconvenience of the Town Gaol, which occasions the sending Town-Prisoners to the County Bridewell as above.

THE CASTLE-YARD is spacious. Master's-side Debtors have many apartments. One of them which they call the Oven, is said to have been used as such in the time of John of Gaunt Duke of Lancaster : the diameter twenty-four feet, the height, now, that of an ordinary room. The Free Ward for Debtors is large but dark. These, as well as those of the Master's-side, are allowed to walk and work (spin, knit &c.) in the Crown and Shire Halls. Over the Judge's Bench in the latter is written this text; "Let Judgment run down as waters, and Righteousness as a mighty stream."

LAN-

PETTY OFFENDERS are sometimes sent hither, because the Bridewells are distant. There is a large Room for them near the Gate; and they are, as they should be, kept separate from Felons.

MEN and Women-felons have their Day-rooms apart, at the upper end of the Yard. Women sleep in their Day-room.—Men have for their Night-rooms two vaulted Cells. One of them, the Low Dungeon, is ten steps under ground, twenty-one feet by nine, extremely close, dark, and unwholesome; so very hot even in Winter, that coming from it in the morning into the cold air must be pernicious. Their other Cell, the High Dungeon, is larger but close and offensive, though not under ground.

I ONCE saw three Felons sick: but the Recorder, Mr. Fenton, gave immediate orders for their relief by better nourishment &c. and they soon recovered. No Infirmary. Transports have not the King's allowance of 2s. 6d. a week. When Prisoners are convicted at Preston or Manchester, and from thence brought hither, Mr. Dane has a shilling a mile Conduct-Money for each.

PART of the Castle-yard is an inclosed Bowling-Green.

ONE of the rooms for Debtors is called the Quakers Room; because, it is said, when those people were so cruelly persecuted in the last Century, vast numbers of them were confined in it.

IF the large Stable which is not much used, and the great Room under the Shire-Hall (in which I saw only one poor Lunatic; who had had been there many years, and is since dead) were converted into Night-rooms for Felons, one small room for each; and an Infirmary was built, this would be a good Gaol. From Mr. Fenton's humanity, and the regard that is justly paid him, I cannot but hope for some of these Improvements.

THE Chaplain's Salary £50 is—from the County £36—from the Dutchy £4—from a Charity £10.

I WILL give a Copy of the Table of Fees, though it is not authentic: and of a Paper in the Shire-Hall containing a List of Donations; though imperfect, and not vouched by any Authority.

Out of repair. Apartments close and dirty. Seven close Dungeons ten steps under ground; each six feet and a half by five feet nine inches, and six feet high. Three Prisoners are locked up in each of them at night. There is another Dungeon, larger, but not secure. No Infirmary. The Keeper told me in Nov. 1775, that after I was there last year and said his Prisoners were in danger of the Gaol-Fever, twenty-eight of them had been ill of it at one time. What led me to think so was, the offensiveness of the Dungeons, and the number of Prisoners. The Prison is surrounded with other buildings, and cannot be made healthy and convenient.—Allowance in common on Sunday, bread 4s. beef and broth about 6s. Firing from October to May. Gaoler, Rosendale Allen, Sergeant at Mace, pays the Widow of the late Gaoler £20 a year; and there are two staircases leading up from it to four rooms for Master's-side Debtors. Down eighteen steps is a small Court-yard, which was common to Debtors and Felons. It is lately divided, but the high close pales which separate the two Courts, now so very small, deprive both Debtors and Felons of the benefit of fresh air. The former in their free ward, the Pope's Kitchen; the latter in their day-room, the King's Kitchen. Both these are six steps below the Yard: each of them about thirty-five feet by twenty-two. Near the former is the Condemned Room. Under the King's Kitchen is the King's Cellar; quite useless. Under the Pope's Kitchen is a dark Room or Passage twenty-four feet by ten: to it you descend twenty-one steps from the Yard. On one side of it are six Cells (Stalls), each about seven feet and a half by three and a half, with a barrack-bedstead, and a small aperture over the door. In each of these are locked up at night, sometimes three or four Felons. No window: not a breath of fresh air: only an aperture with a grate in the ceiling of the Passage, into the Pope's Kitchen above. They pitch these Dungeons three or four times a year: when I was in one of them, I ordered the door to be shut; and my situation brought to mind what I had heard of the Black Hole at Calcutta.

THE Felons Day-room is not secure. They escaped in 1775 by breaking through the slight floor into the King's Cellar below; and through the decayed walls of that they made their way down the hill. The Keeper, who is careful and humane, was not blamable.

CHESTER CASTLE. No Infirmary: no straw: Transports have not the King's allowance of 2s. 6d. a week. Of the seven Debtors whom I saw last, five were imprisoned by Exchequer Writs *.

* I HAVE in two of my visits seen the places of confinement for Deserters in this Castle, who are not under the care of the Gaoler, but of the Invalids of the Garrison. They are bad unhealthy Cells; often productive of the Gaol-Fever. An Officer at Worcester informed me, that having sent a Serjeant and two Men for two Deserters lodged here, three of them died a few days after they came to their quarters, and he had them buried privately, without military honours, to the surprize of the Soldiers, who knew not the reason.

WE whose names are subscribed his Majesty's Justices of the Peace do approve the above Table of Fees and the additional Fee of six pence per week. Witness our Hands April 7. 1730.

COUNTY BRIDEWELL AT MIDDLEWICH.

THIS Prison has been lately much improved by the addition of a Work-room ; a little Room at the end of it, which they call a Shop ; and some Chambers over them. At one side of the Work-room is a strong brick Bench against the wall, long enough for several to sit on : and fronting the fire-place is another strong brick Seat, almost a semicircle. Two of the old Rooms have now a window in each : the other have only perforations in the doors. I found at my last visit all the Prisoners, but two, employed in picking Oakum ; the other two were Shoe-makers, working at their own trade. The Yard is enlarged from the Keeper's Garden, and flagged with broad stones, which are very convenient, not only for cleanliness &c. but particularly for drying the Oakum. The Partition between this and the Garden, is a brick wall about one third of the height, and the rest strong palisades with tenter-hooks. This is a judicious contrivance for keeping the Yard and House airy and healthy.

CHESTER CITY.

THIS GAOL, called the North-Gate Prison, has many convenient REMARK apartments for Debtors. The Felons Day-room is spacious : but to their Dungeon, or Night-room, you go down fourteen steps. It is fourteen feet by eight, and seven high. No light nor any communication with the external air, but at the door. The Prisoners in March 1774 complained of excessive heat : but in my latter visits I found they had been lodged elsewhere. No bedding nor straw. The Court-yard is common to Debtors and Felons : but the former have the privilege of walking in the Keeper's Garden.

MR. DUKE is Chaplain to the Blue-Coat School ; and officiates in little St. John's Chapel belonging to the School. A Navigation parts that from the Prison-yard ; and a foot bridge, made for the purpose, gives these Prisoners an opportunity of attending Divine Service when it is performed ; that is Prayers twice a week, and Sermon once a month. Few Prisoners in City or Town Gaols have such a privilege.

IN November 1775 several Prisoners were ill in bed of the Cold which then generally prevailed ; yet the Surgeon had not, for three weeks, either seen them himself, or sent his man.

CHESTER CITY BRIDEWELL.

OUT of repair ; and not safe : no yard : no water : no allowance : no employment. They are building a large Work-shop, and rooms over it. Below are two new Dungeons about nine feet under ground. I told the Keeper that I wished the Contriver of these might be the first who lodged in them. I heard they intend to enclose a Court-yard : I hope they will not forget a Pump.

HERE were several leaden weights marked 30, 40, 60 pounds, with a ring and chains to each : these are fastened, as the Magistrates order, or the Keeper finds needful, to the legs of refractory Prisoners, that they may not walk without carrying the weight. The Keeper said he had some Women so turbulent that it was extremely difficult to make them behave orderly, while they were kept together.

MACCLESFIELD PRISON.

THIS Prison for the Liberty of the Hundred, Manor, and Forest of Macclesfield, in the Pinfold or Pound for that Hundred, is the Property of Lord Derby. It has four Rooms ; and a Dungeon which is down seven steps, eleven feet by nine. The windows of the rooms glazed, no casements. The Building is slight, and the whole of it ruinous.—Keeper, John Haslehurst, is a Bailiff; keeps a Public-house; and has a Lease of the whole for sixty years at £13 clear of Taxes. No Salary: Fees 7s. 6d. no Table.

1776, Sep. 15, Debtors 2.

MACCLESFIELD TOWN BRIDEWELL

Is a ruinous Room behind the Keeper's House. Only one window twelve inches by six. The Keeper told me he was sometimes obliged to confine men and women together in it. Salary twenty shillings; Fees one shilling.

1776, Sep. 15, No Prisoners.

HAULTON CASTLE GAOL.

I SHOULD scarcely have mentioned this Prison, since for a number of years past no person has been confined in it, had I not found that in an Inscription in the Court-room, dated 1737, it is still called a Gaol with a Court-yard.

THE Earl of Cholmondeley is Proprietor under the Crown; and Quarterly Courts are held here for the Manor. Two Cellars in the Building appear to have been used for the purpose of confining Prisoners.

REMARKS. THIS GAOL is also the Bridewell.—On the ground-floor are the Gaoler's apartments.—For Debtors there are, up stairs, a Common Ward; and two other Rooms.—They have also a Court-yard, backwards.—For Felons and Petty Offenders, two dark Closets, the Black Holes, on the same floor as the Debtors rooms: they are each five feet by four; and were the only receptacles for Criminals till a few years ago, when a Dungeon in the Yard was added. This is down eight steps: rain comes through the roof upon the barrack-beds. A Court before it about five yards square: water laid in. When Men are here, Women are put in the dark Closets.

GREAT SESSIONS at Mold: Conveyance thither at the Gaoler's Expence. He has a Salary of £25 as Keeper of Bridewell.

NEAR twenty years ago, here was a Debtor who insisted upon not being subject to the Gaoler, nor to any Orders but such as should be enjoined by the Magistrates. Upon this occasion, the Justices at the Quarter Sessions held at Holywell in July 1759 made some salutary Rules for the government of this Prison, resembling those for Chester Castle, which are hung up in the Gaol. It is probable the man knew he had a Statute to support his claim, namely, the Act the 32d of George the Second.

REMARKS. THIS GAOL is also the County Bridewell. The old apartments are too close; and so are the new Cells for Criminals. These are about seven feet by six: apertures in the doors only about nine inches square: earth-floors. The Day-room is used as a Chapel. Over it is a free ward: and over that, a room for the sick. The condemned Dungeon is damp; a small window. One Court-yard; but it is spacious. A House for the Gaoler, lately built in the yard; but he still lives distant, as before. It has convenient rooms for Master's-side Debtors; and an Alarm Bell at top: by ringing it, a Debtor lately prevented an escape of the Felons. No water: the Well is useless; and the Gaol offensive.—Houses in the neighbourhood have water laid in.—Transports have not the King's allowance of 2s. 6d. a week. Clauses of the Act against Spirituous Liquors not hung up. No Table of Fees. J. Williams has £12 : 12 : 0 a year as Keeper of Bridewell. To this Prison there are Rules or Bounds, which extend near a mile round.

Two of the Offenders, whom I saw last time, were for Fines which they can never pay. They have not the County-allowance, and were almost starved.

THE Gaoler was desirous of farming the Allowance: but the abuse of such a trust by the Gaoler at Brecon had been detected; and the request of this Gaoler was not granted.

AT CARMARTHEN is also the COUNTY-BOROUGH-GAOL.

To the four rooms of this Gaol at the Gate, you ascend by stone steps on the outside. No yard : no water. Keeper, one of the Town-Sheriffs, lives distant.—At my first visit a young creature committed for a petty Theft, had been there four months, and was sick on the floor. At my last, a Debtor sick in bed. Besides the four Prisoners whom I saw, the Sheriff told me he had one in the Rules which are of small extent.—Food &c. for the Prisoners is put through an aperture at bottom of the door : a little girl, the daughter of a Prisoner, could just get through it to fetch water &c.

C A R D · I F F.

REMARKS. THE NEW GAOL, not finished, is to consist of three separate Houses, with Court-yards between them. The Old Gaol to be taken down; and in Front (where it now stands) is to be the House for Debtors: a Court behind it—Then the Gaoler's House: this is built; two rooms on a floor. Behind it, the Felons Court-yard; and beyond that, their House or Wards; which are also built: on the ground-floor, a small room for the Turnkey; and three vaulted rooms: above them three chambers, twelve feet and a half by ten.

THE Gaoler's house being in the middle, he will have both Debtors and Felons in view: but his passing to the street through the Debtors house, may be dangerous to him when they prove riotous.

HE undertakes for £40 a year to pay Felons ten pence halfpenny a week; and find them straw: and to pay a shilling a week to such Debtors as the Justices shall appoint. No Table of Fees.

GREAT SESSIONS always at Cowbridge.—The late Gaoler informed me, that an Exchequer Debtor confined ten years for seven pounds died in the Gaol just before I was there.

COUNTY BRIDEWELL AT COWBRIDGE.

BESIDES the Old Room, there are two Rooms lately built in the Back-yard ; each fifteen feet square. In them provision is made for the circulation of air ; and there is now little danger of the Gaol-Fever ; of which the Keeper told me, at my first visit, many had died : a man and woman about a year before ; when himself and his daughter were also ill of it. No fever : no water : no Court-yard ; one may be easily enclosed from the Ground adjacent. No allowance. Keeper's Salary £25 : 12 : 0.

C O N C L U S I O N.

IT was once my intention to have published the preceding account of English Prisons, * without any of the introductory matter which composes the former part of this Volume. But thinking, from a close attention to the subject, that it was in my power in some instances to suggest remedies to the evils which I had been witness of; and aware of the common proverbial objection “that it is easier to find faults than to mend them;” I imagined I should be culpable in suppressing any thing which might conduce to improvement in a matter I had so much at heart.

A PERSON of more ability, with my knowledge of facts, would have written better: but my ambition was not the

* My Readers will observe that I do not give this as an account of every single Prison in the Kingdom. Some, doubtless, have escaped my researches; for it was only by assiduous enquiries in my frequent journeys that I was able to discover all those I have mentioned. It will readily be conceived, however, that those I have missed must be of very small consequence.

fame of an Author. Hearing the cries of the miserable, I devoted my time to their relief. In order to procure it, I made it my business to collect materials, the authenticity of which could not be disputed. For the warmth of some expressions where my subject obliges me to complain, and for my eagerness to remove the several grievances, my only apology must be drawn from the deep distress of the sufferers, and the impressions the view of it excited in me—impressions too strong to be effaced by any length of time!

WHAT I have proposed throughout my work is liable, I am sensible, to some objections; and these will, doubtless, be heightened by the cavils of those whose interest it is to prevent the reformation of abuses on which their ease or emolument may depend. Yet I hope not to be entirely deserted in the conflict: and, if this publication shall have any effect in alleviating the distresses of poor Debtors and other Prisoners—in procuring for them cleanly and wholesome abodes; and thereby exterminating the Gaol-fever, which has so often spread abroad its dreadful contagion—in abolishing, or at least reducing, the oppressive fees of Clerks of Assize, and of the Peace; and checking the impositions of Gaolers, and the extortion of Bailiffs—in introducing a habit of industry in our Bridewells; and restraining the shocking debauchery and immorality which prevail in our Gaols and other Prisons—if any of these beneficial consequences shall accrue, the writer will be ready to indulge himself with the pleasing thought of not having lived without doing some good to his fellow-creatures; and will think himself abundantly repaid for all the pains he has taken, the time he has spent, and the hazards he has undergone.

NOTHING effectual will, however, I am persuaded, be done in reforming the state of our Prisons, till a thorough Parliamentary Inquiry concerning them be set on foot, on which may be grounded one comprehensive Statute for their general regulation. Should this be undertaken, I would cheerfully (relying still on the protection of that KIND HAND which has hitherto preserved me, and to which I desire to offer my most thankful acknowledgments!) devote my time to one more extensive foreign journey, in which the Prussian and Austrian Territories, and the most considerable free Cities of Germany would probably afford some new and useful lights on this IMPORTANT NATIONAL CONCERN.

A P P E N D I X.

THE House of Commons having taken under consideration the regulation of prisons, I thought myself bound, by the promise made in the conclusion of my late publication, to collect such farther hints as I might be able to procure in several foreign Territories there mentioned. I therefore visited them and some other countries, and shall subjoin those remarks which seemed most worthy of attention.

IN the Draught of a Bill “to punish by Imprisonment and Hard Labour, certain Offenders; and to establish proper Places for their Reception*,” the plan was formed on the Rasp and Spin-houses in Holland. This made me more solicitous to gain the best information, by a fresh inspection, and by conversation with intelligent men. In pursuance of this design, I went to Holland in April 1778, and cheerfully entered on the intended business of my journey at

* THIS has since passed into an Act, 19th George III. Cap. LXXIV.

R O T T E / R D A M,

STADT-
HOUSE.

WHERE I revisited the Stadt-house prison, in which were no debtors in either of the three rooms. When there are any, they are alimented at one fixed sum, viz. sixteen stivers *. There are seven rooms for criminals or disorderly persons. One of them is called the condemned room, into which a criminal is put fourteen days before his final sentence; and immediately after the sentence, he is executed with a solemnity very striking to the common people. In three of the rooms, were three persons confined for a limited time for some small offences, and kept to bread and water. Their daily allowance was from four to five stivers, and their pitcher was filled with water three times a day; but the other criminals had their pitcher filled once a day with beer, and their allowance was from nine to ten stivers. There were cases with thick straw mats, and two or three coverlids to each.

RASP-
HOUSE.

IN the Rasp-house (or Spin-house, as it should more properly be called) the thirty-eight men who were there, were spinning, except two who were cutting or rasping logwood, and a few who were carding wool, making fishing-nets, and sorting coffee-berries. The women were all employed in spinning, carding, or winding at a great wheel. They were clean, and appeared healthy and well. I observed the ceiling

* A GUINEA 252 d. is = 11 guilders 11 stivers = 231 stivers (for 20 stivers is a guilder) therefore stivers are to pence as $\frac{231}{240} = \frac{11}{10}$: i. e. 11 stivers is equal to a shilling.

ROTTERDAM
HOUSE.

THE men were more separated than the women, into rooms which measured about fourteen feet by seventeen, and each of which contained only four or five. For preventing combinations, two of them are removed every ten or fourteen days, to different companies. In those rooms were some Jews, whose dinner was not pork, as was that of the other prisoners, but mutton, which their society in the city sent them, with a slice of white bread, by permission of one of the five regents or inspectors*.

THE whipping-post is in the middle of the yard, in full view of the men criminals. For the more refractory, there are dark rooms, but not dungeons: in one of these, on shutting the door on myself, I found no dampness. My conductor observed, that the floor was raised to preserve it dry. Here they are allowed no bedding, and are kept to bread and water, which is given them at an aperture in the door. Their confinement is for six, eight, ten, or fourteen days.

THE keeper has a salary from the city, of four hundred florins or guilders per annum †, and also a house, victuals and drink, firing and candle, and one seventh part of the produce of all the labour of the prisoners; so that it is his interest to see that the work be well performed : yet as the quantum is fixed by the regents, it is not in his power to be a cruel task-master. The manner of dieting the prisoners seemed to me worthy of being inserted at length in the note below*.

* As I was there at one o'clock, the time of the distribution, I observed that the bread was all cut in slices: this prevents those contests or frauds which sometimes happen where prisoners mess together, and the bread is given out in one loaf, as I saw on board the hulks in the Thames, where one loaf was given to six persons.

BEING at Rotterdam on a Sunday, I was desirous of seeing, whether there was such dissipation in their prisons, as there is in ours, on that day.

* REGULATION for the daily diet, at the Rasp-house at Rotterdam.

SUNDAY Dinner. Each man has a mess of boiled grout, with butter or kitchen-stuff; a piece of cheese or butter, with a quarter of a pound of rye bread.

Ditto ditto. Each boy, woman, or such as only work half-task, a mess of grout, as above; a piece of cheese or butter, with one sixth of a pound of rye bread.

Ditto Supper. Each man a bowl of new milk boiled with barley or flour, with a piece of cheese, and one fourth of a pound of rye bread.

Ditto ditto. Each boy, woman, or such as only do half-task, the bowl of sweet milk as above, but no bread or cheese.

MONDAY Breakfast. Each man half a pound of rye bread with cheese or butter. Each boy, woman, or half-tasked, one fourth of a pound of rye bread with butter or cheese.

N. B. Breakfast through the week, is the same as above.

MONDAY Dinner. Each man half a pound of meat, or one sixth of a pound of pork without bone; half a pound of rye bread, with a bowl of boiled carrots, cabbage or greens.

Ditto ditto. Each boy, woman, or half-tasked, one third of a pound of meat, or one eighth of a pound of pork without bone, three eighths of a pound of rye bread, with a bowl of boiled carrots, cabbage or greens.

TUESDAY Dinner. For all, boiled gray pease, with one fourth of a pound of rye bread; the men have, besides, each a piece of cheese.

WEDNESDAY Dinner. Each man a bowl of pease porridge, with three eighths of a pound of rye bread and a piece of cheese.

Ditto ditto. Each boy, woman, or half-tasked, a bowl of pease porridge, one fourth of a pound of rye bread, with a piece of cheese.

THURSDAY Dinner. Each man, one third of a pound of meat, or one eighth of a pound of pork without bone; two slices of rye bread, weighing together half a pound, with a bowl of barley broth.

THURSDAY

day. The public service at the Rasp-house began at half after one o'clock. The audience consisted of about thirty or forty inhabitants of the town, Mr. Schumaker the presiding regent, the head-keeper and his family, and three under-keepers, besides the prisoners. The number of women prisoners was about forty, who were separated from the rest of the congregation by a wooden palisade, and seated on benches

THURSDAY Dinner. Boys, or men who only do half-task, one fourth of a pound of meat, or one twelfth of a pound of pork without bone; two slices of rye bread, weighing together three eighths of a pound, with each a bowl of barley broth.

Ditto ditto. The women, no meat or pork; each a bowl of barley broth, with three eighths of a pound of rye bread with butter or cheese.

FRIDAY Dinner. Each man a bowl of kidney-bean porridge; three eighths of a pound of rye bread with cheese.

Ditto ditto. Each boy, woman, or half-tasked, the mess of kidney-bean porridge; one fourth of a pound of rye bread with cheese.

SATURDAY Dinner. Each man a bowl of boiled pease, with butter and vinegar sauce; boys, women and half-tasked, have the same allowance; and all have the same allowance of rye bread and cheese as on the Fridays.

THE constant supper, on week days, for all, is butter milk boiled with barley or grout till thick enough to be eaten without bread; to this, each man has one fourth of a pound of rye bread with cheese; the boys, women and half-tasked have only a mess of the butter milk, but no bread or cheese.

	Cans.
EACH man has, during the three summer months, daily, of beer,	2 $\frac{1}{2}$ raised one above another. They were all clean and neat; had nothing distinguishing in their dress, but were without hats. While they stood up during prayer, they held up their aprons to cover their faces. The men were neat, dressed in brown coats, had been shaved, had clean shirts (which were most of them chequed), clean stockings, and wore handkerchiefs about their necks. They also were seated on raised benches, in a room out of the chapel, and separated from it by an iron grating, from the top of the room to the bottom, so wide that all the audience, except the female prisoners, had them full in view. The keeper's seat adjoins to this grating, and two of his servants, who are turnkeys, sat observing their behaviour.

THE chaplain, after a short prayer, preached extempore; then, the men convicts joined in singing, most of them having books. When the chaplain had prayed again, he catechised for about three quarters of an hour. It being the women's turn that Sunday, six of them stood up, one after another, and made the responses, which the chaplain explained to them. After this he prayed, and the service concluded by singing the fifty-first Psalm. The decent behaviour and attention of the audience, evidently proved that the service, though of two hours and an half, was not tedious or disagreeable.

DURING the time of catechising, the head-keeper and one of his servants went out, to inspect the empty wards, and to search whether any tools or instruments were concealed. The keeper returned to his seat in an hour. At the end of the service, the women passed by the regent's seat*; and when they were gone, he went into the court to see the men go to their several wards, four or five together,* that number only being let out a time.' After they were all locked up, he went to each window, and conversed with them. Many of them returned their thanks for the abridgment of their term of confinement, as this was just before the time for electing new magistrates. One or two, who had been at sea, intreated to go in any capacity to India, as is sometimes permitted. He afterwards went to the grates of the women's wards, and conversed with them; and gave the catechumens some token of his approbation.

I CANNOT forbear closing this account, with mentioning the ardent wishes it inspired in me, that our prisons also, instead of echoing with profaneness and blasphemy, might hereafter resound with the offices of religious worship; and prove, like these, the happy means of awakening many to a sense of their duty to God and man.

AT La Porte, the prison at Goude, there is a small room for debtors, which the keeper informed me had not been occupied since 1761. There are many (octagon) rooms, but all empty: some are assigned to those who are committed for small offences, and kept to bread and water, for which there is an allowance to each of them of three stivers a day.—In the Spin-house the prisoners were all employed in carding and spinning wool for stockings. On observing little towels hanging in one room, they told me, that each of them had one clean every week. Here were some prisoners from the Hague, and other towns which have no rasp-houses, who were admitted at a stipulated

HOUSE.

AT Harlem, the Spin-house (which is the work-house or poor-house) being old, is not so airy and commodious as modern buildings. Here were about thirty male and fifteen female offenders. The latter were at work with the mother (as they call her) making and mending the linen of the house. The former were weaving coarse linen, in which, at the distance of every six inches, there was a blue stripe, to distinguish the linen of the house, and to prevent its being in any manner disposed of elsewhere. One person was working at a loom on flowered silk damask, because that had been his former trade. Taylors were also employed in the way of their profession. The room in which the women worked, and that in which they slept, were quite clean. Each bed had two persons allotted to it, and they were all allowed sheets. The poor here, as in other work-houses in Holland, were cleanly and decently clad.

IN this city is a noble hospital, airy and spacious, called the Proeveniers, in which the persons admitted are decently provided with meat, drink and lodging during their lives, and a burying-place at their decease. Persons of all ages from twenty to the most advanced period are admitted, though it is not common for any under forty to apply for admiffion. At entrance, each perfon pays a greater or fmaller fum, according to his age, as by the table in the note.* A common table is provided for all who are not fick or infirm. If any, after refiding fome time, choofe to have their victuals brought to their rooms, rather than eat in common, they muft pay for that privilege according to their age, one fifth part of the fum that would be required for admiffion at that age. For example, if a perfon of feventy years of age choofes to eat in his apartments, he muft pay one fifth of the admiffion money required at the age of feventy, namely, four hundred and twenty florins.

It often happens that there are not vacant places, when perfons defire admiffion. But many fecure places before a vacancy, by paying two hundred florins in advance of their entrance money; in confequence of which, their names are infcribed in a lift; and the money deducted from the fum required when they enter.

AMSTERDAM
HOUSE.

AT Amsterdam I more than once revisited the prisons. At the Stadt-house were eighteen debtors; and there were five criminals, but their offences not being capital, all the strong rooms under ground were empty. The debtors are on the ground-floor. I often conversed with them, and found that they were all ~~allimented~~ ^{allimented} alike: the first fourteen days at eleven stivers (a shilling) a day; after that time at five stivers and a half. But this is paid to the gaoler, who has great profit out of it, as appeared from the daily allowance which I weighed several times. Each debtor has from the city one quart of beer daily, and turf for firing. The rooms were clean, though the prisoners are never out of them, unless twice in a year at the times of white-washing.

FROM a book containing the names and crimes of all who have been executed at Amsterdam, from January 1693 to the end of 1766, I find it necessary to retract the assertion "that for a hundred years past there have not been executed, communibus annis, more than "one a year." From this publication, the following state of executions at different periods are drawn.

----- 1736 -- 1745	(10 years)	20.
----- 1746 -- 1766	(21 years)	28.

And I have been well informed, that in the three years preceding my last visit, there was only one criminal executed, who was beheaded.

* For this account I am indebted to Dr. MacLaine, the worthy minister of the English church at the Hague.

DAM.

AN observation before escaped me, concerning the attention of the magistrates to the children of the malefactors who are executed. They are sent to the orphan-house, and there brought up in industry, and not left destitute vagabonds, to become unhappy victims to the wickedness and folly of their parents.

PERHAPS the computation which I have mentioned of two hundred and fifty thousand inhabitants in this city may be too great; * though, if I mistake not, Mr. Karssboom, some time since, estimated them at two hundred and forty-three thousand; and of late, many Jews banished from other countries have made an addition to the number. But Dr. Price reckons that they hardly amount to two hundred thousand. †

In no case may he, or any of his family, receive a gift from the prisoners or their friends, either before or after their enlargement. He must not entrust a servant with the keys, but must himself carefully search the convicts and their cots, or rooms, before he locks them up in the evening, at six o'clock in summer, and at four in winter. The father must never be absent for a night, without special permission. He is severely punished if any prisoner escapes. He must register in order all acts concerning commitments and discharges, and produce them to the regents when required. Also he must keep an exact register of the cloaths, and all other things which belong to those confined.

THE regents assemble in the house at four o'clock every Wednesday afternoon, to collect and examine the transactions of the preceding week. They appoint a servant to give any necessary assistance to the father, and particularly to cut the slices of bread for the prisoners; and when the father is ill, in the evening to visit and examine the cots.

IN the nine lower rooms of this house, in June 1778, were confined upwards of forty prisoners. Each of these rooms, in which they work in the day and are locked up at night, contains at least four persons. The same prisoners do not continue long together, but are removed and separated once a fortnight or oftener. Few or none of them were rasping logwood, but most of them chopping it, for the two mills belonging to the house: for it was found to be too laborious for most of the prisoners, to work with six or eight saws, which often weigh seventy or eighty pounds. The medical gentlemen, gentlemen, who daily visit the prison, informed the magistrates that it had been the cause of frequent ruptures.*

AMSTERDAM
RASP-

No friends of the prisoners are permitted to visit them, without express orders from the regents, unless on Mondays: and then they must be searched, to prevent the introduction of spirituous liquors, or instruments for breaking out, or any thing else forbidden: and they must retire before the time for shutting up. Every visitant is obliged to put two stivers into a box entrusted with the father. Refreshments may be received and given to the convicts on Tuesdays; but not on other days. Every evening, at eight o'clock, the father must see that all things are in due order. The saws, and other heavy implements for their work, are taken from them in the evening, and returned in the morning. If a convict be guilty of breaking any thing considerable, or of neglect or disobedience, he is punished severely by whipping, or confined to bread and water in a dungeon under ground.

PRAYERS are read morning and evening, and before and after meals, by one of the best-behaved convicts: and divine service, with a sermon, is performed by a clergyman on Sunday mornings.

THE Spin-house is for women. This, and the Work-house, are under the direction of six regents and four governesses : who appoint two fathers and two mothers to superintend and inspect the work, the diet, † and the lodging of the prisoners; and to chastise the disobedient.

THE work-room, is a large room up stairs, separated by a wooden balustrade from the passage (six feet wide) into which spectators are admitted. This room is divided by balustrades into three, for distinguishing those who have suffered some public or corporal punishment, from the others who have not been whipped, and exposed on a scaffold.

THE mother was seated at a desk (where she had a full view of her family at work) with a Bible before her. By calling there on Whitsun-Monday, I found that they keep the same holidays as at the Rasp-house.

THE kitchen, the dining and lodging-rooms, were on the ground floor. In each of the three bed-rooms were ten wooden cates, with a straw mattress, two coverlids, sheets, and one large pillow, for two persons. All were clean, and shewed the attention of the regents.

TAX.

THIS house is supported by a small annual tax on those who sell tobacco, beer and other liquors, and one fourth part of what is received at public exhibitions and diversions.

HOUSE.

THE old Rasp-house or Work-house is worthy of observation, as a well-regulated house of industry.* In one large room were forty-six women carding, spinning and reeling; twelve, weaving coarse linen or sail-cloth; thirteen, making and mending linen; and one employed in keeping the room clean : the mother had a slate, with the names of the prisoners before her.* Some men and boys were in another large room, in which were many looms. But most of the men were at work in the courts, boiling and picking oakum, for caulking the seams of ships. I counted also forty or fifty women among them, at the same employment.

THE women's bed-room is spacious; and I found it clean and in order, though I was there before ten o'clock in the forenoon.

THIS house was provided with (what seems to be much wanted in the Dutch prisons in general) an infirmary. But it was too small and close for the purpose.†

THE diet of the prisoners is the same as in the Spin-house.‡ Their provisions are bought in considerable quantities. The rye for bread was on the floor in an airy room, and was sweet and good. The produce of the prisoners' work is applied to the maintenance of the house, and the deficiency is made up from the Spin-house tax. The expence for each prisoner is full five stivers a day. Their number is generally from a hundred and eighty, to two hundred.

† THE mode of keeping patients extremely warm, and preventing the free circulation of air by close woollen curtains, occasions me to say so little respecting the infirmaries or hospitals in Holland.

‡ THOUGH in this house, and the Spin-house, as well as in most of the other houses of correction in Holland, the prisoners have meat only on Sundays, yet the pease, beans, barley, &c. are always made into a kind of thick soup or pottage, which is palatable, and is served up hot at noon.

UTRECHT.

IN the Stadt-house at Utrecht were no debtors, and only one criminal, and his offence was not capital. The allowance to debtors, (by their creditors) the first week, is twenty-eight stivers a day; the second week, sixteen; and every day afterwards, eight stivers. The state allows criminals thirteen stivers a day, which are paid to the gaoler. There has not been an execution, for the city or province, in the last fourteen years.

SPIN-
HOUSE.

I WENT over the Spin-house with Mr. Van Goens, one of the magistrates, to whose kindness I am indebted for the following account of the instructions to the keeper. In this house were thirty-seven men, and thirty-four women. The criminals were employed in spinning wool. The men were three in a room. The women were separated, according to their crimes, as they are in the Spin-house at Amsterdam.

THE overseer or keeper has a house for the residence of himself and his family, and an annual salary of a thousand guilders from the states, and a hundred and thirty from the city, clear of all deductions. According to the copy of instructions, he must not be absent a night out of the city, without leave from the chief officer and the regents. He must, with assistants, search every part of the cells twice a week, to see whether any thing be done,—attempted,—or introduced, that is not permitted: and he must carefully inspect all things that are conveyed to the prisoners, that no tools, or glass, no gin or other strong liquors may be concealed: and he must himself, himself, or one of his family, be present when any persons come to see the house; and no more than six visitants are to be admitted at one time. He must see that the provisions for the prisoners be good; and take care that the manufacturer pays the same for their work, as he would if he employed others. He must confine those condemned for a long term, in strong rooms separate from the rest. He may correct moderately; but if the prisoners are refractory, and deserve severer punishment, he must inform the regents. By a particular permission from the magistrates, he may take in as boarders, persons of bad behaviour, at the desire of their parents, guardians or relations.

UIRECHT
HOUSE.

THE regents only can appoint, or discharge, a servant, or turnkey.

AT Deventer, the prison is near the river Iffel. It consists of four rooms, which were all clean and sanded, but had no prisoners. When there are any, sixteen stivers a day are paid for each; which the gaoler receives, as at most other towns. Prisoners for capital offences are removed to the Stadt-houfe, where the same allowance is continued.

DEVENTER,

THE rooms in the prison at Middleburg are spacious, lofty, and clean. The three dungeons are used to force a confession; as there is no direct torture, and the criminal is not executed till the crime is confessed. The allowance to a criminal is eight stivers a day.

MIDDLE-
BURG.

IN the house of correction, the prisoners were employed in weaving cloth or sacking for the East India company. This is more profitable than their late employment on coarse carpeting. None were in irons. No more than four persons were in any of the men's rooms; in some there there were but two. Each criminal pays three guilders at his entrance, and the same at his discharge.

MIDDLE-

BREDA.

THE prison at Breda is an old tower. The allowance to criminals is five stivers a day. I was informed, that the torture stool in the chamber of examination has not been used for three years past.

SPIN-
HOUSE.

IN the new house of correction were eleven men and two women prisoners, all employed on coarse carpeting; which is like the Scotch carpeting, but much cheaper. The specimen which I purchased, cost only eleven stivers, or a shilling their ell, which is two feet four inches. I here give the plan of the house taken by the builder, who has been particularly attentive to certain apartments which delicacy forbids enlarging upon, though they are of the greatest importance to the preservation of the health of prisoners.

THE old house of correction was burnt down about five years since, and seven women perished in the flames. In the construction of the new prison, the magistrates have taken proper precautions against such an accident.

I LEAVE this country with regret, as it affords a large field for information on the important subject I have in view. I know not which to admire most, the neatness and cleanliness appearing in the prisons, the industry and regular conduct of the prisoners, or the humanity and attention of the magistrates and governors.*

* I SHOULD accuse myself of ingratitude, did not I take this occasion again to express my acknowledgments to Sir Joseph Yorke; who not only in this, as in my former visits to Holland, exerted himself with ardour to promote the success of my enquiries; but while I was confined at the Hague in consequence of an accident, favoured me with instances of kindness and friendship that I never can forget.

Nothing can be more unreasonable than the pretences used among us to justify inattention and negligence. I cannot help taking this occasion to add the following authorities on this subject. All unprejudiced persons must acknowledge the absolute necessity of fresh air and cleanliness to preserve and promote health. To this purpose Dr. Mead writes, in his Discourse concerning Pestilential Contagion.* “ Nothing approaches so near to the first original of contagion, as air pent up, loaded with damps, and corrupted with the filthiness, that proceeds from animal bodies. Our common prisons afford us an instance of this, in which very few escape, what they call the gaol fever, which is always attended with a degree of malignity in proportion to the closeness and stench of the place. And it would certainly very well become the wisdom of the government, as well with regard to the health of the town, as in compassion to the prisoners, to take care, that all houses of confinement, should be kept as airy and clean, as is consistent with the use, to which they are designed.”—And “ as nastiness is a great source of infection, so cleanliness is the greatest preservative.”—From the general practice of foreigners in building their prisons near the water, it seems, that they were convinced of the bad effects of offensive drains, and of the necessity of cleanliness; and they had no apprehensions of bad consequences arising from such a situation. Dr. Heberden has expressed his sentiments on this subject in the Medical Transactions.† “ In England few make any doubt of the great danger attending wet rooms:—Is this opinion founded upon experience, or is it a prejudice, which has been suffered to grow up and get strength merely for want of being examined? If “ we enquire into the arguments in favor of this notion, we shall “ hardly find any other, than the random conjectures of the sick about

 “ the cause of their illness; or than their artfully substituting this “ origin of it instead of some other, which they are unwilling to own.
 “ —The air from rivers and from the sea is probably more replenished “ with vapors, than inland countries cleared of their woods; yet the “ most celebrated of antient physicians recommended the bank of a “ running river for the situation of a house, on account of its peculiar “ healthiness; and many invalids are sent by the modern physicians “ to the sea side, only for the benefit of the sea air.”

OSNABRUG. I WENT into Germany in June 1778, by Osnabrug and Hanover.
 The prison at Osnabrug I should entirely omit, did I not entertain a hope, that the account of it may possibly engage the notice of an amiable Prince who is the present bishop, and so be the means of alleviating the sufferings of the miserable prisoners. The prison and the house of correction is one large building, situated in an airy part of the suburbs, near a brook. A Latin inscription over the gate implies, that it was erected “ at the public expense, in 1756, for the purposes of public justice and utility, by confining and punishing the wicked.” — There are seventeen chambers for criminals, which have no light but by a small aperture over each door. I was happy to find here no more than one prisoner. He had been confined three years, and had survived the cruelty of the torture. In another part of the house I found many miserable and sickly objects, men, women and children, almost all without shoes and stockings. They were spinning in different rooms, which were dirty beyond description. These rooms open into a passage, which a gentleman in office in the city, to whom I was recommended, durst not enter. I enquired of the keeper, concerning several particulars in the diet, &c. but the misery expressed in the countenances of the prisoners, made me totally disregard the information given me by words.

O. 2 APRIL

At Brunswick I visited the habitation of the slaves, who lay on barrack bedsteads without beds. They had heavy irons, and their countenances were unhealthy.

BRUNSWIC

THE prison for capital offences is over one of the gates. It consists of three rooms, but none of them had been occupied for a considerable time. It was about eleven years since the last execution.

At Magdeburg the Prussian slaves were at work on the fortifications, serving the masons, digging sand, &c. Their daily allowance is two pounds of bread, and on the days they work, they have also in money, half a grosche, about three farthings. Their number was only fifty-one, for many had been taken to recruit the army.

MAGDE-
BURG.

In the other two prisons, nothing seemed worthy of observation: but in the house of correction (which was formerly a convent) was a mill to grind or beat the logwood that the men rasped, and two or three large chambers of silk-worms, on which the women attended.

BERLIN.

AT BERLIN, in the city prison, called Calandshof, were eighteen men and thirteen women in fifteen rooms, in each of which was a stove. The men and women have the use of the court-yard at different hours. The allowance to each is one grosche and twelve pfennigs, about two pence three farthings, a day. There is a chapel. There is no torture room in any of the prisons in the Prussian dominions, for the present king has set the example in Germany of abolishing the cruel practice. In one of the rooms of this prison are alphabetically digested, the names and descriptions, with the sentences, of all who have been confined in that prison, in order that if they are found there a second time, they may suffer a much severer punishment.

IN another prison, called the Haus-vogtey, are sixteen rooms, eight for criminals, and over these the other eight for debtors and smugglers: these rooms look into a court, to which the prisoners have access two hours in a day. All the rooms have stoves. The allowance here to criminals is one grosche (seven farthings) a day; but debtors have two grosche, and in winter, one besides for firing.

THE Maison de Travail, is a spacious building in the suburbs: it was erected about twenty years since: the front is two hundred and twenty feet, the sides a hundred and sixty. It has a court in the centre. The number of inhabitants were about four hundred and fifty, including fourteen children. Beggars and idle persons of both sexes are sent to this house. Those who can work are employed, fed, and cloathed; and proper care and attention paid to the aged and infirm. Each time I was there, I was pleasingly struck with the cleanly appearance of all the inhabitants. Old and young, men and women, were spinning and carding wool, in rooms about about seventy-five feet by twenty-four.* All have clean linen once a week; and I observed a towel hanging up in each room. The apartments are all white-washed once a year: this gives freshness and neatness, and also light to the work-rooms. Here is a chapel with two galleries, one for each sex; and an apartment for the chaplain. The hall for meals is spacious: the hours, seven, twelve, and seven. I was present at dinner-time: after ringing a bell, in ten minutes all were seated at about twenty tables, eighteen to each table. Four separate tables were at a little distance for criminals. A servant having called out, Silence, the school-master prayed at the desk, in the middle of the room. And after all had helped themselves with barley soup,† while they were eating, he read part of a chapter in the Bible; then sung an hymn, in which the children, who were all at one table, joined: after which, all went out and fetched their cans, each containing about a quart, and they were filled with small beer. After spending about half an hour at dinner, they had half an hour for recreation. The whole was conducted with the greatest regularity.

IN this hall are morning prayers, at which all must attend clean, and then they take their bread for breakfast.

* MY minutengs with respect to measurements and other circumstances relative to the construction and government of these buildings, will require no apology with those, who consider, that in the formation of new establishments it is of use to be acquainted with many things which, though apparently trivial, are frequently of material consequence to the purposes intended to be answered.

† I TASTED the barley soup, the bread, and the beer, which were wholesome and good, and they had enough. They have butter or cheese, with their bread, for supper.

TRAVAIL.

THIS house resembles the old rasp^{or} work-house at Amsterdam. It is exceedingly neat, and such great attention is paid to all confined in it, as prevents every ground of complaint. The strict and good police preserves the city of Berlin entirely free from beggars.*

SPANDAU.

AT Spandau, about ten miles from Berlin, are two prisons. In that in the town, there were about a hundred and fifty persons, spinning, knitting, and carding wool. Forty-seven of these were men, committed for small offences. They have meat only on Sundays in this and some other houses of correction. Here were some rooms with silk-worms, on which the female prisoners attended. Neither this, nor any foreign houses of correction which I have seen, are without a chapel.

THE other prison, in the fortress or castle, is surrounded with water. Thirty-six state prisoners were confined in it, and a hundred and five criminals. Some few of the latter were rasping logwood; the task for each thirty-six pounds a day: but most of them were spinning. The criminals are badly lodged, and there seems to be little attention paid to them. Here are none but men, for no women are ever permitted to continue a night in the castle. They had a light chain to each foot, and such as were taken after an escape had a collar of

* THAT it is indeed strict and extensive I had some evidence by weighing the bread from various parts of the city; all which exactly agreed with the assize or standard. In June 1778, the fine white bread was something above three halfpence a pound; and there was just double the weight of rye bread for the same money.

• If I may judge, by what I saw of the state prisoners here, and at SPANDAU, Magdeburg, and of the few prisoners in the spacious areas, all their apartments are not so dreadful as some imagine, nor are the persons confined in them unhealthy and miserable objects *

• THE house of correction for Lusatia at Lukau is a spacious prison. LUKAU. The men were treading in a large wheel to grind corn, five and five by turns. Some of them had iron collars, as at Bern, but no irons on their feet. The prison for the women was a distinct building, their employment was spinning

At Dresden, the apartments for the slaves being under the fortifications, must be unhealthy. I saw four sick, and yet they had their irons on. Among those that were at work, one had an iron collar, by way of punishment, for making an escape, besides the broad iron about his leg. Another was sitting, and endeavouring somewhat to alter the place of his iron. He told me, that the weight was marked on it twenty-one pounds, and that he could not have it changed to the other leg without paying a smith. DRESDEN.

HERE are two other prisons. The house of correction has ten or twelve rooms, each about ten feet square, with one window, and an aperture over the door, and barrack beds. There were ten prisoners, five of each sex. Three of the men were rasping logwood in a room down twenty steps; and the other two were employed as la-

DRESDEN. bourers in building a chapel. This prison and the orphan-house, is, very improperly, one building.

THE other prison for the bainnage, contains nineteen chambers, in which were twenty-six prisoners; most of whom had a chain (some on one foot, some on both), fastened to a staple in the wall. The prison was dirty; and the gaoler's pan of charcoal and frankincense (which his negligence rendered necessary) could not prevent its being very offensive. Here was one debtor, who had from his creditor six grofche (ten pence halfpenny) a day. The criminals allowance is one grofche (about seven farthings) each PRAGUE. THERE was nothing very remarkable in the two prisons at Prague. The men at the Maison de Force, work out, with a guard, sawing wood, &c. for twelve creutzers † a day, which is less than the common wages of labourers. The prisoners themselves receive only four for a day's work, the rest is paid to the house. Many were thus employed, with chains to one or both legs, according to the different terms of their confinement.

* ON paying my acknowledgments to the grand bailiff for permitting me to see the gaol, I took the liberty to observe, that I had seen prisons cleaner. I mentioned also the severity of chaining women, which is very uncommon in other countries. To this he answered, that “the gaoler chained them for security, being often obliged to be absent in fetching prisoners from the country.” In return, I gave my opinion that the attention to a prison ought to be the sole work of a gaoler, without which, little regard will be paid to cleanliness or humanity.

† A CREUTZER is near a halfpenny.

I VISITED

AT VIENNA I visited all the prisons, and most of the hospitals. VIENNA.
The prisons are old buildings, and afford no instruction.

THE front of the great prison, La Maison de Bourreau, is remarkable for a very striking representation of the crucifixion of our Saviour and the two thieves on mount Calvary. In this prison are many horrid dungeons.*

IN the Maison de Force, or house of correction, were a hundred and sixty-nine men, and a hundred and forty women. The women were employed in carding, spinning, and knitting. I was present on a Monday morning, when they brought their week's work, for which,

* HERE, as usual, I enquired whether they had any putrid fever, and was answered in the negative. But in one of the dark dungeons down twenty-four steps, I thought I had found a person with the gaol fever. He was loaded with heavy irons, and chained to the wall: anguish and misery appeared with clotted tears on his face. He was not capable of speaking to me; but on examining his breast and feet for petechia or spots, and finding he had a strong intermitting pulse, I was convinced that he was not ill of that disorder. A prisoner in an opposite cell told me, that the poor creature had desired him to call out for assistance, and he had done it, but was not heard. This is one of the bad effects of dungeons.

I HAVE been frequently asked what precautions I use, to preserve myself from infection in the prisons and hospitals which I visit. I here answer once for all, that next to the free goodness and mercy of the Author of my being, temperance and cleanliness are my preservatives. Trusting in Divine Providence, and believing myself in the way of my duty, I visit the most noxious cells, and while thus employed, "I fear no evil."—I never enter an hospital or prison before breakfast, and in an offensive room I seldom draw my breath deeply.

after it had been weighed, they received their pay. They have all that they earn for themselves. A few received twenty-six creutzers each, others less. The master was employed in putting the name on the work of each prisoner, and setting down the money that was paid, and the cotton delivered. The prisoners saw the cotton weighed, and took as much as they could spin in that week.* At dinner time, several large pans of soup and beer were brought in, and the prisoners bought what they thought proper,

THE prison was too much crowded,† the house not being built for the purpose to which it is applied. In several rooms the men were carding and spinning. In one room, some of them, who were taylor, were making cloaths for the soldiers: in another, some were weaving coarse linen at eight looms: and in another room, they were making thick blankets for the convents. Two more rooms were warehouses for cloth, stockings, coverlids, &c. manufactured in the house for sale. They were then white-washing the house.‡

* IN the holidays, when the prisoners are not permitted to work, each has an allowance of four or five creutzers.

† ONE or two of the women were crying, and charging others with rising in the night and stealing some of their cotton. The mistress believed the complaint, but said she was not able to prevent such frauds, because there was not the convenience of separate apartments.

‡ IT is the general rule in Dutch and German houses of correction, to white-wash them once or twice a year. I seldom neglected to enquire about this practice, as we have a clause relative to it in a late act for preserving the health of prisoners in gaol.

VIENNA.

In the chapel is a proper separation of men and women. Here, and at Prague, and in some other parts of Germany, they have iron grate doors, which do not prevent the circulation of air, so salutary and necessary in houses of confinement. Too little attention is paid to the lodgings of the prisoners, for they have no coverlids.

THOUGH I could not mention with commendation the prisons of this city, yet I must acknowledge, I was greatly pleased with the public buildings for the indigent, the aged, and infirm; which do honour to the citizens in general, and especially to the Empress Queen.

THE great alms-house in the suburbs consists of three courts. The front of this spacious building is six hundred and thirty-seven feet; the side, eleven hundred and fifty-three. The inhabitants are near three thousand, including the military invalids. It was agreeable to observe their order, neatness, and cleanliness. Here poverty and old age appeared with a smiling aspect. Many of them were seventy or eighty years of age. They were cheerfully spinning, because whatever they could gain was to be their own.

ALMS-
HOUSE.

Les Freres de Charité have not only wards for the sick in their convent, but these friars have also another airy and commodious house with gardens, to which they remove their patients when they begin to recover. In this were two wards up stairs, and each ward has fourteen beds.

THE noble Hospital for bringing up children, was the plan of one person, whom I left engaged in the improvement of his liberal design. In sixteen rooms for boys, were five hundred and thirty-nine beds, and two hundred and forty-one in eight rooms for girls. The extent of the front is six hundred and sixty-two feet.

VIENNA. IN the great alms-house, and in several prisons and other public buildings, the rooms are all arched, to prevent danger and confusion in case of fire.

BEFORE I leave this city, I would just mention that every month, an account of the price, weight and measure of bread and flour, is put up on the gates.*

GRATZ. AT Gratz (the capital of Stiria) I observed in the house of correction, that the prisoners had an appearance far more healthy than those I had seen in a similar house at Vienna. They have beds and cover-lids, and the guards ~~see~~ that the men take off their cloaths at night.

LAUBACH. I OMIT particulars concerning the prison at Laubach in Carniola, as I cannot say a word in favour of it.

TRIESTE. AT Trieste, the prison consists of eight or ten very close offensive rooms, each having only one small window. The pale countenances

* THE bills I observed were dated July 1, 1778. Seven sorts of bread were mentioned in them. The finest was (by my weights) exactly one pound for three half-pence of our money. The second sort was one pound and six ounces for a penny. Inferior sorts made of rye were cheaper. I commonly examined the price, and the strictness of this part of the police, in most large cities that I visited, to compare them with our own at London.

THE bakers at Vienna are punished for frauds by the severity and disgrace of the ducking-stool. This machine of terror, fixed on the side of the Danube, is a kind of long pole or board extending over the water, at one end of which the delinquent, being fastened in his basket, is immersed. The bakers would gladly purchase a removal of this machine, but the punishment is continued and inflicted by order of the magistrates.

of the nineteen prisoners bespoke their own misery, and the negligence of the magistrates and keepers.

BUT in the Castle were eighty-five slaves (Condannati) who seemed healthy and well. They were confined for three, five, seven, or fourteen years and upwards; and were employed on the roads, in the harbour, &c.* Some of them were at work in a large lighter,* clearing the harbour, just under my chamber window. To prevent their escaping, they were guarded by six soldiers. They did not work harder, than other labourers would in the same employment. Their hours for work were from five in the morning till between five and six in the afternoon; but they had two (from eleven to one) allowed them for rest, and half an hour more sometime before they left work. They appeared healthy, clean, and strong; and laboured cheerfully, because when they were employed, each of them received, as extraordinary pay, three farthings a day. Their common allowance was two pounds and a half of bread and four farthings a day. I heard them called over, and saw them receive their pay, before they entered their chambers in the castle. Their bread was sweet and good, such as I should have been happy to have found in many parts of my tour. They were treated with humanity, though

* Two wheels were fixed in the lighter, one of them to draw back the scoop or bucket, and the other (by the weight of ten men treading in it) to raise the mud, which was then emptied into another lighter managed by the overseer of the work. Three or four times a day, a soldier (with a bayonet fixed on his musket) accompanied a convict, who went to fetch a tub of fresh water; and on his return he supplied each with a tumbler of it while they were at work in the wheel. By the mast of the other lighter; a sail was spread to shade them, the weather being warm, Farenheit's thermometer 85°.

TRIESTE. under strict discipline ; were well supplied with food and cloaths ; had two shirts, two pair of stockings, &c. and they lay in good beds * with coverlids, in large airy rooms having opposite windows, and not, like many convicts, in close dirty dungeons under the fortifications. But they were distinguished from other labourers by a light chain on their legs, and a chain supported by a girdle of leather at their waists.

I T A L Y.

I ENTERED ITALY with raised expectations of considerable information, from a careful attention to the prisons and hospitals, in a country abounding with charitable institutions and public edifices.

* MAY not one great cause of the unhealthiness of our prisoners be, the want of proper bedding, which obliges them to lie in their cloaths ? How different did these prisoners appear at the castle from many that I have seen in Prussia and at Vienna ! I was struck with the same good appearance of the women prisoners at several of the spin-houses in Holland. This reminds me of what I heard an old general say, “ That he always found his men subject to illness and diseases when they lay in camps, “ not from dampness, but from lying in their cloaths and the want of proper bedding ; for “ at the same time all his officers had been quite healthy and well.” Whatever be the cause of this difference, whether a more free perspiration in bed, taking off bandages, or ventilation of the cloaths, I am fully convinced of the fact.

VENICE.

AT VENICE, the great prison is near the Doge's palace,* and it is one of the strongest I ever saw. There were between three and four hundred prisoners, many of them confined in loathsome and dark cells for life; executions here being very rare. There was no fever, or prevailing disorder in this close prison. None of the prisoners had irons. On weighing the bread allowance, I found it fourteen ounces. I asked some who had been confined many years in dark cells, whether they should prefer the galleys? They all answered in the affirmative: so great a blessing is light and air! The chapel is only for the condemned, who continue there a night and a day before execution.

REGULATIONS were hung up in the prison.—Here is a charitable society established for the relief of prisoners both civil and criminal, and rules are published for the direction of the officers who have the management of it, of whom four are appointed visitors of the prison. There are likewise rules for the good government of the two infirmaries. These I procured from the ducal printer, with the regulations for the galleys and prisons, for many years past.

ONE of the galleys was moored two boat's length from the shore, in which were only twenty-seven slaves, who were kept here in order to be sent on board the other galleys. This was clean. Here, and in the other galleys, which were dirty and crowded, the slaves were in chains of about twenty-seven pounds weight.†

* THE rooms for the state prisoners are over part of the palace on the leads, which renders confinement in the heat of summer almost intolerable.

† I SAW a slave dead on the shore, who I suppose destroyed himself in despair, for he could not hope to escape by swimming, because of his heavy irons.

I VISITED

PADUA. I VISITED the prisons of Padua and Ferrara. In the former of these cities, none of the confined debtors would sit on the elevated *stone stool in the great hall; and I was informed that not one had submitted to the ignominy these ten years.

BOLOGNA. AT Bologna are three prisons; one of which is for debtors, who are alimanted after four months and three days confinement, at one paule (about six pence) a day each.

HOSPITAL. THE hospital, S. Maria de Vita, afforded me great pleasure. All was clean; and the wards were lofty, and not in the least offensive. The wards of the men and women were of the same size, each containing thirty-eight beds, nineteen on each side. The bedsteads were of iron, and the coverlids were white and clean. Each ward had fourteen windows, seven on a side, and all had curtains. They had folding wooden casements; and on the outside, wire lattices.†

* THIS is sometimes called the stone of disgrace; for if they who are insolvent would avoid imprisonment, at a time fixed they must sit upon it in a disgraceful manner three times.

† THE wards of this hospital were thirty-two feet and a half wide, and the beds were three feet two inches wide, and three feet eight inches asunder. In the middle of each space of the wall between the beds was a cupboard, with a shelf, concealed by a small curtain; and over each curtain was a slip of black marble with the number of the bed. On the sides of all the wards, for the convenience of opening and shutting the windows, was a gallery eighteen feet above the floor, and two feet broad, with a light rail two feet nine inches high. The doors to the wards were iron grates, five feet five inches wide.

IN FLORENCE are two prisons.* In the great prison, Palazzo degl' Otto, were only twenty prisoners. Six of them were in the secrete chambers, which are twenty-one strong rooms. None of the prisoners were in irons. They had mattresses to lie on. Their bread was good. In the torture chamber, there was a machine for decollation, which prevents that repetition of the stroke which too often happens when the axe is used.

IN the other prison, Delle Stinche, there are five doors to pass before you come to the court. The opening of the first is three feet wide, and four feet nine inches high, with an inscription over it, Oportet misereri, (We ought to be compassionate.) In this prison are many spacious rooms, in which are small benches, or cribs to lie on. The men's rooms are below, and look into the court, which is about forty-three feet square. The women, entirely separated, are up stairs, and have an hospital joining to their room. A new infirmary for the men (forty-four feet by twenty-nine) is contiguous to the chapel. In this prison were forty-two men and fourteen women. Debtors are not separated from criminals. In one room were eight, who paid for their beds. The bread was good: the day's allowance to each fifteen ounces. None were in irons.—The chaplain has apartments, and resides in the gaol.†

* DR. TARGIONI, who had an order from his royal highness to inspect the hospitals, and report what beneficial improvements might be made in them, accompanied me in visiting these prisons.

† THIS prison has something similar to the plan I proposed. A wall surrounds three sides of it; but being very high, and only eleven feet and a half distant, it renders the prison too close.

FLORENCE
HOSPITALS.

THE great hospital of S. Maria Nova was crowded and too close; though the men's fever ward was four hundred and fifty-four feet long, and thirty feet and a half wide. They have separate wards for wounds and fractures. The women are attended by the Nuns, who have a passage under ground from the opposite convent. Here are twenty students, who lodge and board in the house for seven years, attend the sick, serve the victuals,* &c. and are distinguished by a long cloak.

BUT the hospital which I most frequently visited, was S. Giovan di Dio.† The ascent into the sick ward is by a flight of thirty stone steps. This ward was lofty and clean; and was a hundred and twenty-three feet long, and thirty-three and a half wide. There were in it thirty-three beds, three feet four inches wide, placed on varnished boards, on iron bedsteads.‡

NEITHER the sides nor floors of this, and the other hospitals of Italy, were wood, that being more retentive of scents or infection than tarras or brick. At one end there are five rooms with single beds for sick priests. Three of them were occupied.

THE hospital S. Paolo della Convalescenza, for the reception of recovering patients, has clean and airy apartments, and a spacious

* I SAW a friar or capuchin come in form and blest the meat or soup for dinner. The numerous patients seemed entirely satisfied with this, without any devotion of their own.

† THE great attention of this order of friars to the sick, in every country where they have hospitals, does them honour.

‡ THIS is very conducive to cleanliness, and secures patients from vermin.

refectory,

refectory, or dining hall. They continue here four days, and by the change of air and diet their health is confirmed before they go to their several occupations.

HERE I would just mention an alms-house, S. Bonifazio, for infirm persons of advanced age. It has eighty beds for each sex, and they are sitting up twenty more. The wards are (thirty feet wide) all clean, and shew the care of the Nuns who attend on this charity.*

IN the prison at Leghorn were three debtors, and eight of those called prisoners at large, and in the secrete three criminals. I mention this prison because of the infirmary, which, as appears by an inscription over the door, was built at the expense of the present governor, Philip Borbonio, in 1761.

THE slaves in the fortress † appeared healthy and well; better, as the old keeper remarked, since they have lain on shore. ‡ Each prisoner had a ring round one leg; but when they go out to work, a chain is rivetted to two prisoners. Here were seven pontons to clear the harbour; but the weather, when I was there, being stormy, they could not be worked. There were forty-seven slaves employed at

* I CANNOT leave Florence without expressing my great obligations to the Grand Duke for his permission to inspect the prisons, and making my acknowledgments to Sir Horace Mann our ambassador, for his very kind attention and assistance.

† IN this fortress, there were a hundred and thirty-two slaves: at Pisa, were eighty-five: and at the Grand Duke's salt-works at Port Ferrara, seventy.

‡ GALLEYS or hulks ought to be the punishment only for the most atrocious crimes.

LEGHORN the new Lazaretto, which is a noble spacious building, with different FORTRESS. apartments for officers and their men to perform quarantine, and large warehouses for the cargoes of their ships.

THE old keeper generously ordered his son to copy for me all the rules, from which I shall here give some extracts.

THREE keepers have their salary from the Grand Duke. They receive a copy of the process against every convict, carry it to the government, and register it in the proper book; and when required, they must give an exact account of all proceedings against the prisoners. They make a report of the refractory to government, that they may be punished in proportion to their offences, with severer confinement, irons, and bastinadoes. The principal keeper has power to choose two turnkeys out of the best-behaved prisoners, who are to exhort and instruct the others: but the keeper is to have a strict watch over them. He must order that all prisoners, when they are brought in, have their heads shaved,—be dressed in the uniform of the house,—and have irons on their feet.

THE prisoners are condemned to labour, for thirty, twenty, ten, or seven years, or for a shorter term, according to the nature of their crimes; and are chiefly employed on the publick works. They are sent out every morning, under a guard of soldiers, and are chained two and two together, with a chain of about eighteen pounds weight. An hour's relaxation is allowed them at breakfast, and two hours in the afternoon: and at an hour before sun-set, they are reconducted to the prison, and must be well searched by the keepers, to prevent their having any thing concealed: and two hours after sun-set, they are ordered to go quietly to rest. When they are employed on the works by his royal highness, they are paid two crazzies (about three halfpence) a day ; but if employed by other persons, they are paid four or six crazzies, according to the nature of the work. At day-break, the turnkeys ring the bell to awake them : and a report is made by them to the keepers, if any have been guilty of irregularities during the night. • Their daily allowance is a loaf of thirty ounces (which is made two thirds of flour, and one third of bran,*) and soup made from four ounces of pease boiled in water, with salt and oil. On each of the two Easter holidays they are allowed a pound of meat, and three ounces of rice. Every two years they have a coat of gray cloth, a waistcoat of red cloth, and a red cap, every year a pair of shoes ; and every six months a shirt, and a pair of drawers or breeches. Their drawers are shifted once a month, their shirts every week. For lodging, they have a mattress filled with straw, and a coverlid : the straw is changed, and kept in good order.—If one attempts to desert, and be taken before sun-set, he must wear a ring, and a chain of eighteen pounds weight ; and he must pay half his future earnings, till it amounts to a zechin,† to those that apprehended him. If they who are condemned for five years desert, when retaken, their term again commences : and for repeated desertions, they are more severely punished, and sometimes tortured.

THE chaplain must instruct the prisoners.

IN the hospital there must be all proper provisions for the sick and infirm, viz. veal, mutton, rice, fine bread, broth, good wine, &c.

* THEIR bread was very good. I preferred it to that which I met with at my lodgings.

A physician attends, and the diet and medicines must be according to his prescription. On entering, the patients have clean linen, shirts, night-caps, and cloaths. And the keepers and turnkey must examine their victuals and soup, to see that they be good, and that the quantity be according to the physician's orders.

secrete chambers, and twenty more at large.—There are eighteen of these strong rooms for the men, which are close and offensive, each of them having but one window for admitting light and air. These rooms are never opened without an order from the governor of the city. There were sixty-eight prisoners. They are not permitted to go out of their rooms at any time, but for examination.—Some having been confined there many years, appeared with pale sickly countenances; but none were in irons.

HERE is a chamber for distracted prisoners, in which were seven miserable objects.

THERE are several chambers with beds for those who are called prisoners at large, for which each pays one paule and a half (about eight pence) a night. There is a chamber for priests, one for boys, one for Jews, and one for prisoners who have cutaneous disorders.

ON the upper floor are two Infirmaries: one, appropriated to the prisoners in the secrete, in which were four patients. In the other, which is for the rest of the prisoners, were ten patients the first time I was there, and the last time only seven.* The whole prison is arched with brick, for security in case of fire. The passages are seven feet two inches wide, and light. The ascent to each story, is by two flights of seventeen stone steps. These staircases are seven feet three inches wide; the rises five inches: this I mention, as generally, in our prisons (even those that are lately built) the stairs are

IN the prison at the Capitol are two rooms for poor debtors, and for criminals whose offences are not so great as to cause them to be confined in the secrete. The prisoners in one of these rooms, had the privilege of asking alms of the passengers. There were five debtors in rooms which they paid for, and two criminals in the secrete. This prison is not offensive. There is a constant current of water through one of the large rooms.

THE state prisoners are confined in the castle of San Angelo. The rooms appropriated to that purpose were all empty, except one, in which was a bishop, who had been confined upwards of twenty years, and was distracted. Here were also eighteen condannati who work in the fortress, and had each a light chain. They seemed healthy and well.

ON the death of the Pope, the prisoners are brought hither from the great prison, for upon such occasions the prisons are thoroughly cleaned.

I CAN give but little information respecting the prison of the inquisition. It is situated near the great church of St. Peter's. On one side of the court round which it is built, is the inquisitor general's palace. Over the gate is an inscription importing "that it was erected by Pope Pius V. in the year 1569." The windows of the prison have wooden blinds, and at a small distance is a high wall.*

* THERE is a table of regulations by the authority of the magistrates hung up in this prison, ordering the exact times, of opening the prison and the court, of saying mass daily, and of distributing the alms. The times vary twice in a month, according to the different length of the days. In the same table, the physician is ordered to visit the sick in the infirmary every morning, and in case of extraordinary illness, in the evening.

IN this City, and many others in Italy, is a Confraternita della misericordia, called S. Giovanni di Fiorentini.† It consists of about seventy, chiefly nobles, of the best families. After a prisoner is condemned, one or two of them come to him the midnight before his execution, inform him of the sentence, and continue with him till his death. They, with the confessor, exhort and comfort him, and give him his choice of the most delicious food. All the fraternity attend the execution, dressed in white. When the prisoner is dead, they leave him hanging till the evening; then one of the fraternity, generally a prince, cuts him down, and orders him to be conveyed to the burying-place which they have appropriated to malefactors. I was there the twenty-ninth of August, the only day in the year when this burying-place is opened to the public.—Adjoining an elegant church is a chapel, which makes one side of a court, and on each of the other three sides, is a portico supported by Doric pillars.

* THE chambers of this silent and melancholy abode were quite inaccessible to me; and yet I spent near two hours about the court and the priests apartments, till my continuance there began to raise suspicion.

† MANY of Florentine extraction were the founders. This institution is ancient, for the church of S. Gio. Battista Decollato belonged to them in 1450.

In

S. MICHELE. THE hospital of S. Michele is a large and noble edifice. The back front is near three hundred yards long. It consists of several courts with buildings round them. In the apartments on three sides of one of the most spacious of these courts, are rooms for various manufactures and arts, in which boys who are orphans or destitute are educated and instructed. When I was there, the number was about two hundred, all learning different trades according to their different abilities and genius. Some were educated for printers, some for bookbinders, designers, smiths, carpenters, taylor, shoemakers, and barbers; and some for weavers and dyers, a cloth manufacture being carried on here in all its branches. When the boys arrive at the age of twenty years, they are compleatly clothed, and a certain sum is given to set them up in the business they have learned. In the middle of the court is a noble fountain, and there are several inscriptions to the honour of the founders of this excellent institution.

JOINING to another court are apartments for the aged and infirm, in which were two hundred and sixty men, and two hundred and twenty-six women. Here they find a comfortable retreat, having

* HERE are marble squares, in which are circular apertures for the interment of those that are executed. Round these stones is inscribed,

ANOTHER part of this Hospital is a prison for boys or young men. Over the door is this Inscription :

In the room is inscribed the following admirable sentence, in which the grand purpose of all civil policy relative to criminals is expressed.

IN this hospital is a room also for women. On the outside is an inscription, expressing, that it was erected by Clement XII. in 1735, for restraining the licentiousness and punishing the crimes of women.

THERE are in Rome many hospitals for the sick, but they were in general crowded, yet none of them had more than one patient in a bed. In the great hospital of San Spirito in Sassia, † there were, the first time I visited it, a thousand and fifteen patients; the second time, eleven hundred and three. ‡

THE hospital of S. Gio Laterano was also crowded and offensive; and that of S. Giacomo degl' Incurabili was worse: § but that called

* THIS room being different from any I had before seen, I had a plan taken, which may give a clearer idea of it than a verbal description would do.

† FORMERLY many nations founded hospitals in this city. This was founded by one of our Saxon kings. Some others continue to the present time entirely national, as the Milaneze, Florentine, and Spanish hospitals.

‡ HERE is a staircase remarkable for its ascent being very easy, for valetudinarians, and for carrying up the sick in a kind of chairs or enclosed beds. It is seven feet wide, and has a rail on each side. Every step is an inclined plane of three inches ascent, one foot eight inches wide, and the rise from one step to another is only three inches. These steps are of bricks, set edgeways, and fronted with stone.

§ INDEED I saw the hospitals under great disadvantages, it being a very sickly time, occasioned by the long continuance of drought, and the extraordinary heats of the summer 1778.

In this last-mentioned hospital, no patients are received except such as have wounds or fractures. The Gallicano, another hospital in this City, is solely for cutaneous disorders.

ROME
HOSPITALS

BEFORE we take our leave of Rome, it may be proper just to mention the Hospital for pilgrims and convalescents. Recovering patients, when dismissed from the other hospitals, may enter into this, and reside here three days, lodge in airy wards, dine in the refectory, and be well attended.

THE Pope's galleys are at Civita-vecchia. The slaves condemned to them are confined for different terms, according to the nature of their crimes: but the shortest time is three years for vagabonds, who are generally employed on board the pontons in clearing the harbour. For theft, the term is never under seven years. Persons convicted of forgery are always confined for life; and if found guilty of forging bank-notes, or any instruments by which large sums have been lost, they are punished with an iron glove. Prisoners for life are chained two and two together: those for limited terms have all a single chain, and, at their first arrival, of the same weight; but when they have no more than one or two years to serve, they have only a ring round their legs, which is lessened as the end of their term approaches. For escapes, they are obliged to finish their first condemnation, and then receive a fresh one for the same time as the former; but if the first was for life, the same is renewed, and they receive from a hundred to two hundred lashes a day, for three days after their arrival. None are sent to the galleys under the age of twenty: criminals of a younger age are kept at the hospital of S. Michele in Rome till they are of age; and are there employed in spinning, and fed on bread and water.

THE allowance to each slave is three pounds of bread a day; and fifty-five pounds of beans or calavances to each galley, with which they generally make a kind of soup once in two or three days, and they are allowed two pound and a half of oil to boil with their beans. At Easter, Christmas, and Carnival, they are allowed one pound of beef and half a pint of wine a man, and twenty-five pounds of rice to a galley.

FOR their cloathing, they have once in two years, a striped woollen capotto and waistcoat, two shirts, two pair of canvas breeches, and a woollen cap; and every year, two feet and a half of woollen cloth to wrap round their legs instead of stockings.*

THE slaves here are constantly employed, and have what they earn for themselves, being paid according to their abilities and the nature

* THE yearly expense of each slave for maintenance, cloathing, and chains, is computed at fifteen Roman crowns and eighty-seven baiocs, about £3 : 13 : 9.

AT the time of my being at Civita-vecchia, three of the galleys were out on a cruize, and two only remained. Through the whole night there was great silence, though about four hundred were chained in each of the galleys.

of their work. For sawing in the arsenal, they are ~~are~~ paid two pence a day each; for working as masons, two pence halfpenny; for carrying stones and mortar, only a penny. Such as work at the canvass and callico manufactories are paid from two pence to eight pence, according to the quality of the work, &c. At the public works they are allowed an hour for dinner, and in summer-time an hour for breakfast.*

HERE is a spacious hospital on shore for the slaves. None were in irons. All was clean. In the centre of the great room in this hospital was an altar for public worship. A particular room was appropriated for such as had cutaneous disorders, and another for consumptive patients.†

THE principal prison in the great and populous city of NAPLES‡ is La Vicaria, under the courts of justice. It contained when I was there, according to the gaoler's account, nine hundred and eighty prisoners. In about eight large rooms communicating with one another, there were five hundred and forty sickly objects, who had access to a court surrounded by buildings so high as to prevent the circulation of air. In this court was a recess, under arcades like those under the chapel at Newgate. Some of the prisoners were employed in knitting, and others in making shoes, but most of them were entirely without employment. In six chambers, which opened into a spacious hall, were many beds for such as could pay for them. Adjoining was a chapel, and an airy infirmary for the whole prison.* In seven close offensive rooms were thirty-one prisoners, almost without cloaths on account of the great heat: and in six dirty rooms communicating with one another were fifty women. Of all the prisoners, one man only was in irons, in a dungeon, near a small chapel which is allotted to the condemned before execution.

* FOR the preceding account I am indebted to our countryman Mr. Denham, who has the superintendence of the Pope's galleys.

† IN this country, the physicians are persuaded that the consumption is a contagious disorder. Patients afflicted with it in hospitals have a separate ward. The same precautions are used to prevent infection as in the plague. When this disorder has been in private houses, the furniture is removed, and the rooms are scraped and fumigated, before they are again inhabited.

‡ AN account is taken every year of the inhabitants of this city; and at Easter 1777, their number was 350,061; of whom 164,545 were males, and 160,071 females, besides 3303 priests, 4231 monks, and 6311 nuns.

THE bread was good: the daily allowance to each was twenty-two ounces.

THERE were three other prisons: one contained eighty prisoners, another near sixty, the other but eleven.

THE galleys were moored about ten feet from the shore. In the first were two hundred and sixty slaves; in the second, two hundred and ninety-eight; in the third, two hundred and seventy; and in the fourth, four hundred; most of them stout and healthy. All were chained two and two together. Their bread was hard, but sweet.

* THERE were forty persons in this infirmary, in single beds, with sheets, coverlids, &c.

IN visiting the prisons of Italy, I observed, that in general great attention was paid to the sick; but I could not avoid remarking, that too little care was taken to prevent sickness.

FROM the heat of the climate, one might imagine the gaol fever would be very likely to prevail; but I did not find it in any of the prisons.

About

About twenty-six ounces a day was allowed them, and when employed in the arsenal and other public works, they have an extraordinary allowance of near a penny a day. After escapes, if they are retaken, their whole term is doubled. Each galley has a chaplain, and public worship on Sundays and Holidays.

IN the Serraglio, or great alms-house,* there were about five hundred and fifty prisoners condannati in eight or nine rooms. Many of them work as labourers on this great building, with chains varying according to the terms of their confinement; and have the extra allowance just mentioned, with five ounces of flour for soup. In these rooms were shoemakers at work, as in some of the galleys; but most of the prisoners had no employment.†

THIS great building is to be a receptacle for the aged and infirm; and for beggars and idle persons. There is a great number of the former in some rooms that are finished, and which have windows into a court, where they were digging a foundation for a very large church, by which the numerous inhabitants will be deprived of the salutary effects of the circulation of air.

THE galley slaves have an hospital on the shore‡ fronting the bay, entirely appropriated to them and their guards. It has four or five

* THE front of this building already extends near thirteen hundred feet, and probably it will be enlarged.

† As no regular plan had been settled for the employment of these slaves, the king lately made a present of three hundred of such of them as had been condemned for life to the Maltese.

‡ On my telling the surgeon, that in some countries a part of each galley is made an hospital; he replied, “that must soon make the whole an hospital.”

NAPLES. spacious and airy wards, cleaner than most of the other hospitals in this city. One of these rooms is only for the guard of the marine. The patients are distinguished into three classes, sick—very ill—and recovering. Great attention is paid to them, and they are allowed good bread in sufficient quantity.

HOSPITALS. THE great and crowded hospitals of S. Apollini and L. Annunziata, have wards appropriated to the cure of wounded persons.*

THE hospital of the Benfratelli, or S. Gio. di Dio, is clean and elegant. It consists chiefly of one lofty ward,† at one end of which is an altar and a room for poor priests, and at the other end a table on which were placed the patients' victuals. Near this table was inscribed a reference to the apposite words of Scripture, Matthew xxy. 35, 36. For I was an hungred, and ye gave me meat: &c.

* THE frequency of assaults and assassinations in Italy is generally known. Many of the common people seem to be insensible of the atrociousness of the crime of murder. I have heard criminals in prison express, with seeming satisfaction of mind, "that though they stabbed, they did not rob." If we consider that wards and even hospitals appropriated to the wounded are filled with patients, that the prisons are crowded, and that many are continually taking refuge on the steps of churches, and examine our accounts in Janßen's Lists and the Judges' Returns, we may reckon that there are more murders committed in a year in the city of Naples or Rome, than in Great Britain and Ireland. Does not this prove, that the English are not naturally cruel? And might not arguments be derived from hence, for the revival and repeal of some of our sanguinary laws? The Marquis Baccaria justly remarks, in his Essay on Crimes and Punishments, chap. 28. "That the punishment of "death is pernicious to society, from the example of barbarity it affords."

† IN many of the Italian hospitals, and in all that I have seen belonging to this order of friars, there are no rooms over the sick wards, so that they are as lofty as our churches or chapels.

AT

At Lucca, they formerly sold their condannati to the Genoese or Venetians, but now they keep them in prison without any employment. LUCCA.

At Genoa, besides a prison for debtors, and a prison for female criminals, there is a great prison for male criminals, consisting of thirty-five rooms. I saw none of the prisoners in irons. Their daily allowance was thirteen ounces of good wheaten bread for each. To this prison belongs an hospital and a chapel, with a large room to which the condemned are brought four days before their execution.—The instructions formed for this prison by the supreme syndics, are hung up in it, and contain good regulations, as will appear from the following account of a few of them. GENOA.

THE keeper shall have under him six assistants:—and the said keeper is to be responsible, and liable to punishment, if any of the assistants shall be guilty of the least fraud or neglect in their employment.—The advocate fiscal is once a week, at any time he shall think proper (but when he is least expected) to visit the cells of the prison, and to enquire diligently how the prisoners are treated by the keeper and assistants, in order to give information to the most serene senate, &c.—When any prisoner is condemned to death, he is immediately to be put into chains.—The keeper is always to keep the chapel shut, except at the time of celebrating mass, confession, or administering consolation to the unhappy.—He is also to take care that the prisoners do not play at any games, particularly cards. The last order is, that this table of regulations be fixed up in the criminal court of justice, in the chancery, and in the apartments of the criminals.

IN one of the galleys just returned from conveying some noblemen to their country seats, I found about three hundred stout fellows, GALLEYS.

clean and healthy: for the old and infirm had been left in the galleys at home, of which there were only two, the other two being out on a cruize.

THE hospital for the galleys is on ~~the~~ ^{the} ~~side~~ ^{side}, and in it are hung up the regulations, which consist chiefly of such orders as the following:

THAT five superintendents shall be appointed by the magistrates, who every month shall draw lots, to determine which of the galleys they are to inspect.—That exact lists of the crews, and of the sick in the infirmary, with an account of the time of their admission, shall be taken and kept, with the assistance of the physician, chaplain, and surgeon.—That the secretary shall keep a register of all things necessary to be provided; bread, wine, meat, pease, beans, rice, &c. &c.—That four caldrons of broth shall be allowed weekly to a galley, besides kettles of broth statedly given them in the three winter months.—That when the superintendents discontinue the allowance of meat, cheese, oil, and stockfish, the chaplain shall see that each of the slaves be served daily with half a pint of wine.—That the physicians shall keep exact accounts of their orders of meat, wine, pastry, &c.—That the captains and midshipmen shall take care that all the regulations be exactly observed.

HOSPITAL. IN the great hospital there were about three hundred men and six hundred women. All sick persons of any nation are admitted into it; and it is one of the best and least offensive of the public hospitals of Italy. Here was a room and ward for foundlings, crowded and close; and the poor infants were cruelly bound hands and feet with bandages.

THERE

THERE were also in this hospital apartments for the insane. These apartments were close and dirty; and the calm and quiet, I found in- GENOA HOSPITAL humanly confined in the same room with the noisy and turbulent.

THE Albergo hospital, situated on an eminence within sight of the harbour, is an asylum for boys and girls. There were in it a hundred and seventeen of the former, and four hundred and eighty-two of the latter. It is something similar to the noble and well-regulated hospital of San Michele at Rome. Over the door of the great room, where numbers were spinning and weaving, is this inscription:

Silentium et Obedientia.

IN Milan, besides the great prison in which are twenty secrete MILAN. chambers; *—the prison for debtors,† &c.—there are two prisons called L'Argastro, and La Casa di Correzione, which do honour to the country. Both are for criminals, condemned either for a term of years, or for life. The most atrocious, work in chains in the streets; the others only in the house.

* THE general size of these rooms is eleven feet by twelve to fifteen. In some were only one or two persons, but in others six or eight: the windows are towards a high wall eleven feet distant. These are some of the strongest and most retired rooms in the Italian prisons, which the most atrocious offenders, and those who are imprisoned for life, are confined. They are inaccessible but by a special order. The entrance is guarded by two doors, between which is a narrow space, just sufficient to admit two persons. Into this you are locked before the turnkey opens the inner door, for fear these desperate criminals should attempt to rush out and murder the keeper for the keys.

† IN this great trading city, there were only four persons confined for debt.

IN L'Argatro there were three hundred and fifty-nine prisoners, healthy and strong. A considerable number of them were at work in public :* but in the house there were at work shoe-makers, tailors, smiths, wheelwrights, cabinet-makers, turners, nailers, rope-makers, leather-dressers, painters on gauze, spinners and weavers. In one room eleven looms were employed.†

THEIR dormitory is a spacious room, with three stages in it on which they lie. In the centre of the cieling are four large apertures and sixteen small ones.‡

THERE is a large court and a pump, and running water for washing§ the linen of the prisoners, which they shift once a week. The daily allowance to each is thirty-five ounces of good bread,|| and a mess of good vegetable soup. They have two hours for dinner and repose.

* THEY water the streets and public walks (at the expense of the city) there being nineteen small four-wheeled waggons for that purpose ; six men draw, and one attends behind chained. Others repair the pavements, &c.

† MANY learn several trades ; so that there is a probability, that when their term is finished, they will become useful members of society ; which should be the grand object in all such houses. They receive for themselves one third of what they earn, and two thirds go to the house.

‡ A PRISONER, whose employment was drawing designs and patterns, gave me a plan of the rooms and courts in this prison.

§ I OBSERVED to one of the prisoners that they were cleaner than most working men : he replied, “ or else the confinement would be intolerable.”

|| ONE loaf was equal to the daily allowance of two prisoners, and it was divided into two equal parts with an engine, and each received his own portion every day.

All had a chain to each leg. If any escape and ~~be~~ retaken, the whole term is renewed, and half as much more

IN this house there is an hospital, a chapel, and an apartment for the chaplain.

THE Casa di Correzione is now building, on a noble and spacious plan.* The dormitory and the work-rooms for the men are finished and occupied.† In one of these work-rooms there were forty looms employed weaving linen, cotton, and diaper: in which also, and in two others opening into it, were warping and twisting-mills, and winding-wheels. Under these was a calendar: and some were employed in beating (not carding) cotton. In a detached temporary building I saw a prisoner employed in weaving gauze; who (as I conjectured from the great resort to him) was reckoned curious in this art. With the assistance of some whom he employed, he kept four looms at work. Other prisoners were bleaching the cloth manufactured in the house. And some were employed as labourers and masons in this great building.

* THE Count de Firmian, governor of Lombardy, whose amiable character is well known to our English travellers, not only honoured me with the plan, but favoured me with every advantage for examining the prisons.

† THE two work-rooms for the women, (just finished) are large and lofty, and in each there are five large windows, placed high above the floor. At one corner of these rooms are stone basins, with water laid in to them.

Rome.

MILAN.

*Rome. It consists of a great room, (one hundred and twenty-four feet by thirty-one) † near the end of which there is an altar with a cupola over it: on one side of the altar is the dormitory for boys, and on the other the infirmary; and all together make the figure of a cross, which is the form of many hospitals in Italy and other Roman Catholic countries.

THERE were near three hundred prisoners in this house; twenty of whom were chained to two benches in the dormitory, but at the same time employed in spinning, making and mending clothes. There are two or three rooms, adjoining those in which they work, occupied as warehouses. All the prisoners work in irons.

HOSPITAL.

IN visiting the great hospital, my expectations, which had been too much raised by the accounts of travellers, were disappointed. Most of the wards are on the ground floor and not lofty, as there are rooms over them. They are also dirty and offensive, though provided with spacious drains. They have a middle row of beds, and in many of the beds were two persons: but care was taken to separate the patients in fevers from those who were attended by surgeons.‡

* I THEREFORE insert the plan of this also.

† ON each side of the hall are three stone galleries, two feet eight inches wide, with iron rails. The chambers are all numbered, amounting to one hundred and twenty: these are all similar, nine feet two inches by eight feet two; they have one window outward, three feet by two: and one towards the great room, two feet five inches by one foot five: they are furnished with a bed and bedding, a stool, and a vault. In the infirmary, and the dormitory for boys, as well as in the great hall, there were stone sinks and water laid in.

‡ MOST of the chirurgical patients had been wounded in sudden quarrels or assaults.

HOSPITALS.

IN the hospital for orphans called La Stella, the work and bed rooms were spacious, neat and agreeable. There were three hundred girls in it; whose employment was making lace on round pillows.*

IN the prison at the Citadel of TURIN there were one hundred and seventy in irons; some had the half-chain, others were chained two and two together. These prisoners continue always unemployed, till they are sent to the galleys at Villa-Franca. Their unhealthy countenances plainly shewed the little attention paid to them.—In this prison there was a chamber for convalescents, who not being fit for labour, are continued here forty days before they are sent to the galleys.

IN the great hospital of San. Giovanni there were a multitude of old men and women, whose apartments had a very improper communication with the wards of the sick and dying.

HOSPITALS.

IN the hospital of La Carita, there were about two thousand inhabitants, mostly boys and girls.

HERE also is an hospital for lunatics, where with pain, I saw wards crowded with beds, and in some of them miserable creatures chained and raving.

AT Chamberry I found that the salutary practice of washing the prison was adopted. Besides the stated allowance of good bread, the prisoners are often supplied with bread and soup, and in winter with clothes and coverlids, by a charitable society of ladies. In one of the rooms I saw chains; but was told they had not been used since the walls had been built high. A dismal torture chamber, into which day-light never enters, makes a part of this prison.

GENEVA.

AT Geneva I revisited the prison which was formerly the bishop's palace. There were in it two debtors, and five other prisoners; to whom great attention was paid, as they were then laying new floors, lest the rooms should be damp and injurious to their health. *

IN the house of correction there were no prisoners.

IN ENTERING SWITZERLAND from Geneva, a traveller will be surprised to meet frequently with a gibbet on the road, if he be not informed that almost every seigneurie or bailiwick has a prison, and possesses the power of trying criminals and capitally convicting them. I visited one of these prisons. It belonged to Mr. Baron de Prangins,

* I HOPED to have found here no torture chambers, but I had only the pleasure to hear that none had suffered in them these twenty five years. They are thus restrained by the thirty second article in the Reglement de l'illustre Mediation pour la pacification des troubles de la Republique de Geneve, published in 1738, "Les accusés et criminels ne pourront être appliqués à la Question ou Torture, que préalablement ils n'aient été par jugement définitif, condamnés à mort." and consisted of four rooms at the top of his castle. * It was empty : and this is commonly the case with the prisons in this country, in consequence of the virtuous education and industry of the inhabitants.

AT Freyburg there were no prisoners except a few in the house of FREYBURG correction. The men convicts are employed abroad in cleaning the streets, &c. •

THERE were none confined in all the prisons at Bern, except in the BERN. two houses of correction. In that for the city, the men and women were spinning. In the other, called the Scallenbaus, there were a hundred men and forty-one women, who were in separate apartments, and three different rooms assigned to each sex according to their different crimes and the terms for which they were condemned. † They were all employed either in the house or abroad, except fifteen, who seemed miserable for want of employment. ‡

* I OBSERVED the same thing at the castle in the isle of Gorgona in Italy, where were two rooms at the top of the building for prisons. This is different from the ancient cruel mode of confining prisoners in pits and dungeons of castles.

† AN old keeper having left the door of one of the men's wards unlocked, twelve prisoners forced the outer door and walked off. The people, who happened to see them, suffering them to pass, because they supposed they were going to work in the streets. When four or five of them some time after were retaken and carried to their old lodgings, the magistrates ordered that they should not be punished, considering that every one must be desirous of gaining liberty. As they had not been guilty of assault or violence in making their escape, the punishment fell on the keeper for his negligence.

‡ WHERE the crimes are of such a nature as to allow or require indulgence, it should be given them by shortening their term of confinement, or in some other way, instead of allowing them to be idle. I have seen this false indulgence to prisoners in several places.

SOME of the women were employed in spinning. I saw them bring in their week's work, and after it was examined, receive twenty-seven pounds of flax for the following week. At that time some of the town's people came and purchased the flax that had been spun, and paid for it to an inspector who lives near the prison.

As the employment of the male convicts out of doors is here somewhat similar to that at Milan, I give a representation of it from a draught taken by a painter in this city; I have also given a view of the employment of the women, though I detest the custom of daily exposing that sex to such ignominy and severity, unless when they are totally abandoned, and have lost all the softer feelings of their sex.*

* WILL it need an apology if the mode of publishing the affize of bread in this City be just mentioned? It is better than that at Vienna and several other cities. In the middle of the window of every baker's shop is hung up in full view, the bill on pasteboard, specifying the weight and price of three different sorts of bread, and, at the bottom, that of the fine rolls. The bills are signed by the magistrates' secretary. If the price continues the same the following month, the secretary notes it on all the bills. I copied one of these bills, and purchased the different sorts of bread, which I found to be full, or rather over weight.

† HERE was only one prisoner. The first room was for examination; in it were five different weights for torture, and if we may depend on tradition, the heaviest, which is one hundred and twenty pounds, was used in torturing a burgomaster of this city.

I observed one woman colouring botanical prints. They have a chapel in which they attend divine service, and are catechised every friday. Three times a day, such of them as do not work abroad walk under arcades in a large square court, during which time, by the advice of one of the physicians in this city, their rooms are thoroughly aired, the doors and windows being thrown open. They have good bedding; and they are well supplied with bread and soup every day, but no meat.

THE house of correction consists of buildings on two sides of a spacious court; one side for those of the Roman catholic religion, and the other for protestants, with a chapel for each. The rooms were all clean, and are white-washed every year. Opposite to the front windows in most of the rooms, were high windows, of a semi-circular form, which were designed for promoting a circulation of air.

MUNICH. AT Munich or Munchen there are two prisons for criminals. One in the town-house had in it six men and two women prisoners.† In a dark damp dungeon down seventeen steps were the instruments of torture.

THE other, called Lá Prison de la Cour, consisted of about fifteen cells, twelve feet by seven, and a black torture-room.‡

IN

* THERE are also two dark dungeons for such as have been convicted of witchcraft: but they are in a very ruinous condition, and seem to have been a long time without inhabitants.

† ONCE a year, viz. on All-saints day, any persons are permitted to enter and see the prison. There is a custom similar to this in Holland, at the Fair and other fixed times.

MUNICH.

I WAS agreeably relieved from the pain excited by these scenes, with the view of the two hospitals of Les Freres and Les Sœurs de Charité. In the former were about forty beds; in the latter, twenty: the wards were about twenty-six feet wide. All was neat and clean, still and quiet; and the great attention paid to the patients was every where apparent. I saw the operation of bleeding performed by the nuns with great dexterity and tenderness. Over the foot of each bed a text of scripture was inscribed; as in some Italian hospitals. HOSPITALS.

above the floor and painted black. Various engines of torture, some of which are stained with blood, hang round the room. When the criminals suffer, the candles are lighted; for the windows are shut close, to prevent their cries being heard abroad. Two crucifixes are presented to the view of the unhappy objects. But it is too shocking to relate their different modes of cruelty. Even women are not spared.—This room seems very much like the torture-room in Spain, described in Limborch's History of the Inquisition translated by Candler, vol. II. p. 221, 4to. edit. "It was a large underground room, arched, and the walls covered with black hangings. The candlesticks were fastened to the wall, and the whole room enlightned with candles placed in them.—The inquisitor and notary sat at a table, so that the place seemed as the very mansion of death, every thing appearing so terrible and awful."

RATISBON. no dungeons, but three dark cellars for torture, at which two senators, their secretary, and the hangman with his valets assist. At Munich and some other places, a surgeon also attends; but I heard of no such custom here.

At the back of the orphan-house is the house of correction, in which were only two women.

NUREN-
BURG.

At Nuremburg the prison is under the town-house. There are fifteen steps down to the goaler's kitchen. The apertures for admitting light into the passages of the dungeons are level with the ground. This is one of the worst prisons I ever saw. The dark unhealthy dungeons, and the dismal torture-chamber,* do no honour to the magistracy of this city.—The goaler makes use of a low trick to prevent the escape of his prisoners, by terrifying them with the apprehensions of falling under the power of witches. †

In one of the city-towers in which lunatics are confined, there are three or four rooms for criminals of higher rank.

Ad mala patrata, sunt atra theatra parata. 1753.

† In several of the German gaols there are dungeons for those that are guilty of witchcraft, but they seem to have been long disused: and I hope increasing light and good sense will soon intirely banish the fears of witches, and consequently the witches themselves.

THE prisoners in the *house of correction were employed in grinding spectacle-glasses. The surplus of what they earn above forty creutzers or eighteen pence a week each, they are allowed for themselves.† Some of the women were working gold and silver lace on cushions.

NUREN-
BURG.

AT Schwabach, in the margraviate of Anspach, is a large house of correction, in which were ninety-three prisoners. Some men here also were grinding glasses in two large rooms, and others, in different apartments, were employed in polishing steel buttons for clothes, wire-drawing, and making spinning wheels: and I was informed that twelve were at work on the road. The women were spinning.

SCHWA-
BACH.

THIS house was clean and well regulated. The goaler readily supplied me with a book containing an account of the regulations, &c.; in which are some liberal and sensible remarks that appear worth transcribing.

* OVER the gate of the house is this inscription:

Hic criminum frequentia
Mortalium dementia
Compefcitur clementia
Salva fori sententia.

† THE men grind seven glasses in each hand. Some grind four hundred in a week, by which they earn fifty-two creutzers at thirteen for a hundred, and consequently each earns for himself twelve creutzers a week.

THAT this is a very unhealthy business is evident from the countenances of those whom I saw thus employed, and from the disagreeable sensations I always received from the dust in the rooms where they were grinding. The medical gentlemen prescribe bleeding and physick to these persons, two or three times a year.

It is observed, "that there is great error in expecting that a house of this kind should be able to maintain itself; since with the strictest œconomy, a considerable annual sum will be found necessary for its proper support."

THE greatest attention to cleanliness is inculcated; bathing rooms are provided for the prisoners; and the expense of washing for them is reckoned an object not to be regarded.

THE necessity for sick wards for both sexes is pointed out.

It is remarked, "to be a very false notion, that a man who lives upon bread and water can work hard and be kept in health;" accordingly, as will be seen in the table subjoined, a daily allowance of hot provisions is ordered for the criminals.

It is mentioned as an essential point in order to preserve order and prevent abuses, "that one of the city magistrates should every week in rotation visit the house, and closely inspect every thing relative to its management."

SUCH prisoners as have been publicly whipped are called infames, and are distinguished from the rest, by having a particular place appropriated to them in the chapel, and by being made the last in receiving the sacrament. OF the goods they had finished. In summer, many of them are CORREC- employed in sawing without doors; but in winter, they work in TION. rooms: for were they to attempt this work abroad, a sudden frost might endanger the materials, but would certainly render it impossible to use the saw. The pale countenances of the prisoners were a sign that their work was laborious, and that the keeper had the whole profit.

THE women were spinning worsted, and appeared objects of compassion. Their dirty rooms, sickly looks, and cutaneous complaints, evidently bespoke inattention and neglect.*

WURTS-
BURG.

IN the house of correction at Wurtzburg were fifty-four men and thirty-six women, employed in a well-regulated woollen manufactory. In one part of the house they were spinning; in another, picking and carding wool; and in another, weaving wide cloth for the soldiers,† and also stocking and waistcoat-pieces.—The women were all spinning or carding in one large room. As their spinning was of various kinds,

* I HAVE their book of regulations: but of what advantage are the best rules when not enforced?

† THE wheels were larger than our spinning-wheels, the diameter being four feet.

HERE, and at most houses of this sort, are large looms (six feet seven inches wide) and two persons work at each loom. In a warehouse, the manufacturer (for all such houses have a manufacturer) shewed me several pieces of cloth for the under officers, the artillery, the soldiers, and the hospital or poor-house.

there was a room with cupboards, where each person's work was laid up separately. The task for each man or woman was eight creutzers, or three pence half-penny, a day. Here is a Roman catholic chapel, and the priest lives in the house.*

WURTS-
BURG.

At Frankfort (on the Maine) there are five prisons. One is for debtors, where I found only three, who were alimented at ten creutzers, about four pence, a day, payable by their creditors.

FRANC-
FORT.

The prison called Lá Tour de Ste. Catharine was empty. Here is a light room, to which criminals are generally brought from the great guard prison, just before their execution. The men are hanged, and the women beheaded; but executions are very rare in this city.

In the house of correction (near the work-house) were three prisoners, two women and a man. The man was at work with two or three others in the court, beating to powder a porous stone, which is worked up with water, and makes, when dry, a hard cement or coat of platter. The two women were employed in the work-house.

In the tower at Cologne there were no prisoners either for debt or for capital offences. In this and many other cities, the magistrates will not permit a debtor who has no effects to be confined. This city has not the power of executing criminals, but when they are condemned they are delivered up to an high officer of the elector's, and confined in a

IN the house of correction, the men were beating stone to powder with small wooden mallets, as is practised at Francfort.—The women were spinning, or knitting stockings.

AIX-LA-CHAPELLE.

THE great prison at Aix-la-Chapelle was unoccupied.

IN the guard prison near the Maison de Ville there were two prisoners; one of whom was a very old man with irons on his hand, who was confined on suspicion, and had twice suffered the torture to force a discovery of his confederates.

EXECUTIONS are not frequent in this city.* Citizens are always executed by decollation, which is performed by the broad sword, as at Hamburg, Bern, &c. and not by a machine, as in some parts of Italy; nor by the axe, as in England, Denmark, &c.

LIEGE.

THE two prisons (distinguished by the names of the old and the new) near La Porte de St. Leonard in Liege, are on the ramparts.—In two rooms of the old prison I saw six cages made very strong with iron,† four of which were empty. These were dismal places of confinement; but I soon found worse. In descending deep below ground from the gaoler's apartments, I heard the moans of the miserable wretches in the dark dungeons. The sides and roof were all stone. In wet weather, water from the fosses gets into them, and has greatly damaged the floors. Each of them had two small apertures, one for admitting air, and the other, with a shutter over it strongly bolted, for putting in food for the prisoners. One dungeon larger than the rest was appropriated to the sick. In looking into this, with a candle, I discovered a chimney, and felt some surprize at this little escape of humanity from the men who constructed these cells.

THE dungeons in the new prison are abodes of misery still more shocking; and confinement in them so overpowers human nature, as sometimes irrecoverably to take away the senses. I heard the cries of the distracted as I went down to them. One woman, however, I saw, who (as I was told) had sustained this horrid confinement forty-seven years without becoming distracted.

THE cries of the sufferers in the torture-chamber may be heard by passengers without, and guards are placed to prevent them from stopping and listening. A physician and surgeon always attend when the torture is applied; and on a signal given by a bell, the gaoler brings in wine, vinegar and water, to prevent the sufferers from expiring.—“The tender mercies of the wicked are cruel.” Thus in the Spanish inquisition, the physician and surgeon attend to determine the utmost extremity of suffering without expiring under the torture.*

I WILL only add, that in this prison there are rooms appropriated to prisoners en pension; that is, to such as are confined by the magis-

IN the Maison de Force there were ninety prisoners, ranged in four rooms, and employed in a woollen manufactory of linings for soldiers clothes. Persons live in the house who well understand the business, and instruct the prisoners in sorting, carding, spinning, twisting and weaving. None of them were in irons. All had separate beds, and were supplied with good rye bread,—meat three times a week,—two quarts of beer, for each, every day,—and soup every other day.*

BRUSSELS. AT BRUSSELS I revisited the prison La Porte de Halle, which consists of twenty-four chambers, distinguished by the twenty-four letters of the alphabet, and each prisoner had a separate room.

THE house of correction is an old building, and the prisoners are soon to be removed to that at Vilforde. They are all employed; for at

* THE chaplain, who lives in the house, favoured me with his company through the work-rooms, lodging-rooms, and the refectory. He entered into the true spirit of this institution, and lamented the inconvenience of the house, as not being built for the purpose to which it is applied. He took notice of the propriety of solitary confinement for those that were riotous and refractory at their first coming; for generally, he said, "in four or five days they would become very tractable and submissive."

présent they have a careful and attentive keeper. Some tailors and shoe-makers were at work ; but most of the men were occupied in the manufacture of paper-hangings ; carving the moulds, grinding the colours, and staining the paper. The women prisoners were entirely separated from the men, and were employed in making lace. All the prisoners have clean linen every week.

BRUSSELS.

At Ghent I went over the house of correction, or Là Maison de Force, with one of the magistrates, and found that they were still carrying on a well-regulated manufactory. There were two hundred and eighty men prisoners, and one hundred and seventeen women. These latter had on the house clothes, and were at work. Most of them were spinning or knitting, ranged in proper order, attentive and quiet. I was informed that all the prisoners are allowed one fifth of their earnings for themselves. I brought home specimens of the cloth, as I did of the paper from Brussels ; which I mention, because I know an idea has prevailed, that no manufactory can be carried on by convicts to any valuable purpose.

GHENT.

In the prison at Antwerp there are two rooms for citizens ; and up stairs there is a cage, about six feet and a half square, into which criminals are put before the torture.—A criminal, while he suffers the torture, is clothed in a long shirt, has his eyes bound, and a physician and surgeon attend him : and when a confession is forced from him, and wine has been given him, he is required to sign his confession ; and about forty-eight hours afterwards he is executed.

ANTWERP.

In a small dungeon is a stone seat like some I have seen in old prison towers, in which it is said that formerly prisoners were suffocated by brimstone, when their families wished to avoid the disgrace of

of

CORRECTION.

THE river runs under the House of correction. At the entrance, on one side are the keeper's apartments ; on the other, the warehouse and the room for the magistrates.* On three sides of a paved court there are thirteen cells for the men, and over them are the rooms for the women. On one side of the court are the young women who are put in by their parents or relations ; and on the other, the criminals. All the men were employed in spinning cotton, so were some of the women, and the rest in making lace. A pound of cotton at a time is delivered to each ; for spinning which, thirteen sous† are paid. I found, by the books, that at first coming, some did not earn more than seven or eight sous in a week, but soon after they earned from twelve to fourteen. Rye bread (to the value of half a stiver each meal) and water, is their allowance ; and whatever they have more than this, they are required to pay for out of their earnings. They are obliged to put on clean linen every week, towards washing which each pays a sous. The stoves are heated twice a day, and candles and lamps are provided, at the expense of the magistrates.

THERE are three rooms for the ungovernable. One of them has a floor made of triangular pieces of wood a few inches asunder. The prisoner is chained in such a manner in the middle of this floor, that he can move but a few steps ; and being allowed no shoes, whether

THE men are never suffered to go out, except on Sundays and other holidays, when they go to the chapel, in which they have seats below. The women sit in a gallery with a lattice of wood before them. Here, and also in the prison, a table of regulations is hung up, which is read in public by the chaplain the first Sunday after the entrance of every prisoner.—These regulations consist of thirty-six articles, from which I have taken the following extracts.

THE prisoners must be submissive to the keeper and to his wife; and if they think themselves injured, must complain to the regents.—The times fixed for rising are, at half after six in the morning from December 1st to February 15th, and all the rest of the year at five, or half after five; but on Sundays and holidays at six.—The times of meals are fixed at seven, twelve, and seven.—The prisoners are allowed, at their own expense, at breakfast a pint of tea; and at dinner soup or broth, or a pint of tea or small beer, and at supper the same quantity of tea or beer; and on Sundays and other holidays a certain quantity of boiled meat: and every week, a pound of butter, and fruit to the value of half a stiver.*—Every day the keeper is obliged to prepare two sorts of soup or broth, and at seven in the morning to give the prisoners their choice of either sort, or none.—After service on Sundays, the men are permitted to walk in the court, and the women in the gallery half an hour, under the inspection of the keeper and officers.—They forfeit half a stiver, every time they curse or swear, or make a disturbance in the chapel; and also every time they are not up in half an hour after they are awaked by the keeper, and for every hour they sleep longer.—If they persist in insulting the

to make such alterations as they think proper in the rules; and in case of sickness or old age to give indulgences to the prisoners, with respect to their diet, times of rising, &c.

LILLE. AT LILLE, Lá Prison Royale is under no proper regulation. And the unhealthy countenances of the prisoners at the citadel, intimate the pernicious effects of lying in damp rooms, under the fortifications.*

THE two hospitals Lá Comtesse and St. Sauveur are lofty buildings, designed only for the admission of men; for in this city there are no hospitals for sick women.† The patients are distinguished into three forts, viz. wounded—very sick—and recovering: they have different wards assigned them accordingly. Every patient has a bed to himself. Here cleanliness is the agreeable effect of the great attention given to the patients by the Nuns. ‡

* I OBSERVED this, because there was reason to apprehend, that some of the English prisoners at Dinman would be removed hither.

† L'HOPITAL GENERAL indeed admits both sexes, but that is on a different foundation, and is somewhat similar to the houses of industry in Suffolk, Norfolk, and the Isle of Wight.

‡ WHEN a sick person arrives at either of these hospitals, his bed is immediately threwed him. Then one of the sisters brings warm water, washes his feet, and dries them, and kisses one foot. Another brings clean sheets and a clean towel. A man-servant makes and warms the bed, and the patient goes directly into it.

R A N C E.

AT AMIENS are two prisons; one for Les Bourgeois et Lâ Libertinage; the other, Lâ Conciergerie.—In the town-house I saw great numbers attending the trial of a woman for confining her son. He was then about thirty-two years of age, and had been confined sixteen years, with a severity which had almost deprived him of his intellects. The prosecution was carried on by his father's relations, who had been long solicitous for his release.

AMIENS.

AT PARIS is L'Abbaye, a prison for the military or guards, and for such debtors as are of rank.—In the debtors rooms, a partition of lath and plaster detached from the brick-wall, is an expedient to prevent escapes. For if the smallest perforation be made in the partition, it is immediately discovered, by the mortar falling between that and the wall into the keeper's court, through the aperture which was left for that purpose.

PARIS.

I REVISITED the other prisons here.—The exemplary charity established for giving clean linen to prisoners is of great utility, and well conducted. The supplies are regularly brought to the prisons every Saturday.

THE infirmaries are supported by charitable contributions; a decent old prisoner is chosen to be keeper; and the turnkey of the women's wards having less to do than others, has the immediate care

PARIS. of them. The physician and surgeons are appointed and paid by government: but the fuel, broth, drugs, linen, and all necessaries, are amply supplied by the charity.

PRISONERS are not properly separated. Though one turnkey walks in the court to prevent combinations, yet it is difficult to keep such as become king's evidence apart from the rest; and the gaoler of Le Petit Chatelet was obliged to fit up a separate room for that purpose.

IN this country, when prisoners have received their liberty from the king, or their creditors, they cannot be detained a moment for fees, hire of rooms, debts contracted in prison, or on any pretence whatever.

A PRISONER of rank, a very sensible man, to whom I was speaking concerning gaolers, said, "They pay nothing to the crown, and their revenue is not small; at the Conciergerie, it is about fifteen thousand livres; at the Grand Chatelet, twenty thousand; at Fort L'Eveque, twenty thousand; at the Petit Chatelet, twelve thousand; at L'Abbaye, ten thousand. And all things considered," he added, "prisoners have no just reason to complain of this class of men in France."

THE nomination of a gaoler belongs to the magistrates. When he has been nominated, he is proposed to the Procureur general; and if, after a careful enquiry into his character, it appears that he has the reputation of a man of probity, he is fixed in the office, and takes an oath of fidelity. The office is freely given him without any expense whatever.

IN the Sal Petriere, or great hospital, there were but few of the female convicts employed.

PARIS.

I WAS two mornings at the Bicêtre, where I saw in the two halls above two hundred prisoners. Such a number confined together in idleness, must produce a great corruption of manners. Many at their unhappy end have ascribed their ruin to the flagitious examples they have here seen, and the instructions here given them.

BICETRE.

THE French now seem to be sensible of the bad police of confining persons here in idleness; for within the two last years they have set some of their prisoners to work. In one room I saw thirty-six employed in polishing plate glasses: and they are erecting a mill for grinding corn, which is to be worked by sixteen men at a time.

THERE were sixty-three in the infirmary, most of them ill of the scorbut. They contract this distemper in a year or two from their confinement, which is extremely close, since they are never suffered to go out of their rooms. Many lose the use of their limbs by it. I saw several such miserable objects at St. Louis's hospital, where they are often admitted at the expiration of their term at the Bicêtre.

AT the gate of St. Bernard is the prison for those who are condemned to the galleys: there were only fifteen prisoners, who were chained two and two together. Their daily allowance is one pound and a half of good bread, and half a pound of meat, and soup. On meagre days they are allowed pease in their soup. On their journey they have daily two pounds of bread, half a pound of meat, a pint of wine, and about a quarter of a pound of cheese, or eggs.—They are sent from hence to Marseilles, Toulon, Brest, &c. on the 25th of May and the 10th of September, and are joined by many other convicts HOSPITALS. L'HOPITAL DE ST. LOUIS for the sick, and L'Hotel de Dieu, are indeed the two worst hospitals that I ever visited. They were so crowded, that I have frequently seen four or five in one bed, some of them dying. In one of my visits at L'Hotel de Dieu, I observed the number of patients written up to be three thousand six hundred and fifty-five.*

BUT though these two hospitals are abominable, and a disgrace to Paris, it has many other charitable foundations which do honour to it; and from which this country may derive useful information.—This is a subject foreign to my chief purpose, and I have perhaps already enlarged too much upon it. I cannot help, however, just mentioning a few of these foundations.

IN the Hopital de la Pitié there were about one thousand four hundred and twenty boys, who are clothed, and taught to read, spin, &c. These boys are admitted at about four years of age, and put out apprentices at thirteen or fourteen.

L'HOPITAL DES INCURABLES is designed for the aged, infirm, and distorted, who are here clothed in a neat uniform, the men in gray, and the women in black. The Nuns attend upon them.

LE QUINZE VINGT HOPITAL is appropriated to blind persons.

* OVER one of the gates of this hospital is the following inscription, which, from its application to such a place, has an air of ridicule and even of profaneness.

“ C'est icy la Maison de Dieu, et la Porte du Ciel. ”

PARIS.

L'HOPITAL des petites Maisons et des Insensés is situated in a spacious garden or court, containing a number of small houses for the aged and infirm of both sexes, and a hospital for the insane. Here are also infirmaries for the sick, which the Nuns kindly superintend. The neatness and cleanliness I observed in them gave me such pleasure as engaged me to repeat my visit. Each person of the insane has a separate room; and they also are taken care of by the good sisters.

BASTILLE

IN my last tour I had the good fortune to procure an extremely scarce pamphlet, published in 1774, written by a person who had long been confined in the Bastille. It is reckoned to contain the best account ever made public of this celebrated structure; and the sale of it is forbidden in France, on the severest penalties. I have copied from it the most material circumstances of the description, and have added the plate given in the work.

“ THE Bastille is a state prison, consisting of eight very strong towers, surrounded with a fossé about one hundred and twenty feet wide, and a wall sixty feet high. The entrance is at the end of the street of St. Antoine, by a draw-bridge, and great gates into the court of L'Hotel du Gouvernement, and from thence over another draw-bridge to the corps de garde, which is separated by a strong barrier constructed with beams plated with iron, from the great court. This court is one hundred and twenty feet by eighty. In it is a fountain; and six of the towers surround it, which are united by walls of free-stone ten feet thick up to the top. At the bottom of this court is a large modern corps de logis, which separates it from the court du Puits. This court is fifty feet by twenty-five. Contiguous to it, are the other two towers. On the top of the towers is a platform

BASTILLE. form continued in terraces, on which the prisoners are sometimes permitted to walk, attended by a guard. On this platform are thirteen cannons mounted, which are discharged on days of rejoicing. In the corps de logis is the council chamber, and the kitchen, offices, &c. above these are rooms for prisoners of distinction, and over the council chamber the king's lieutenant resides. In the court du Puits is a large well for the use of the kitchen.

“ THE dungeons of the tower de Liberté extend under the kitchen, &c. Near that tower is a small chapel on the ground floor. In the wall of it are five niches or closets, in which prisoners are put one by one to hear mass, where they can neither see nor be seen.

“ THE dungeons at the bottom of the towers exhale the most offensive scents, and are the receptacles of toads, rats, and other kinds of vermin. In the corner of each is a camp-bed, made of planks laid on iron bars that are fixed to the walls, and the prisoners are allowed some straw to lay on the beds. These dens are dark, having no windows, but openings into the ditch: they have double doors, the inner ones plated with iron, with large bolts and locks.

“ OF the five classes of chambers, the most horrid next to the dungeons are those in which are cages of iron. There are three of them. They are formed of beams with strong plates of iron, and are each eight feet by six.

“ THE Calottes, chambers at the top of the towers, are somewhat more tolerable. They are formed of eight arcades of free-stone. Here one cannot walk but in the middle of the room. There is hardly sufficient space for a bed from one arcade to another. The windows, being in walls ten feet thick, and having iron grates within and without, admit but little light. In these rooms the heat is excessive in summer, and the cold in winter. They have stoves. BASTILLE.

“ ALMOST all the other rooms (of the towers) are octagons, about twenty feet in diameter, and from fourteen to fifteen high. They are very cold and damp. Each is furnished with a bed of green serge, &c. All the chambers are numbered. The prisoners are called by the name of their tower joined to the number of their room.

“ A SURGEON and three chaplains reside in the castle. If prisoners of note are dangerously ill, they are generally removed, that they may not die in this prison.—The prisoners who die there are buried in the parish of St. Paul, under the name of domestics.

“ A LIBRARY was founded by a prisoner who was a foreigner, and died in the Bastille the beginning of the present century. Some prisoners obtain permission to have the use of it.

“ ONE of the centinels on the inside of the castle rings a bell every hour, day and night, to give notice that they are awake : and on the rounds on the outside of the castle they ring every quarter of an hour.”

IN inserting so particular an account of this place, my principal intention is to excite in my readers a strong detestation of despotism, and a love for the laws which are the foundation of our liberty.

MANY of the prisoners in this and other prisons had no change of linen, and some were almost entirely destitute of clothes, being the crews of vessels shipwrecked in the great storm of Dec. 31, 1778.

I FOUND twenty-six of our people in a spacious ward in the military hospital, to whom great attention was paid. Each had a bed and sheets: and their bread and meat were good. But most of them having a disorder which did not break their spirits, they would have been better pleased if their allowance had been equal to that in the prison.

FRENCH PRISONERS IN ENGLAND.

FRENCH
PRISONERS.

WHEN I visited my countrymen confined as prisoners of war in France, some of the Commissaries and other gentlemen informed me, that they had received great complaints from the French prisoners in England. On my return in January 1779, I waited on the Commissioners of the sick and wounded seamen, and gave them an account of the English prisoners in France, and of my intention to visit the French prisoners. In order to assist me in this business, they very readily and kindly favoured me with letters to their agents at several prisons.

HAVING

HAVING determined to take another general view of English prisons, to see what improvements had been made, in consequence of two late acts of parliament,* and of the charges given by the Judges in their circuits to the grand juries, I chose to begin my tour in those parts where most of the French prisoners were confined; and of them, therefore, I shall first give some account.

IN the Mill-prison near Plymouth, Feb. 3, 1779, there were three hundred and ninety-two French prisoners. The wards and courts in which they were confined, are not so spacious as those appropriated to the American prisoners, nor were they so well accommodated with provisions. The hospital, which had fifty patients in it, was dirty and offensive, and I found there only three pair of sheets in use.— Here a new prison was building.

IN the ship Cambridge there were three hundred and ninety-six prisoners; and the next day, two hundred and fifty more were coming in. The bread was heavy, and the meat bad; and too little attention was paid to the sick. An hospital ship, called the Tiger, was fitting up for an infirmary.†

AT Bristol, in a prison which had been a pottery, there were a hundred and fifty-one French prisoners, Feb. 9, 1779. The wards were more spacious and less crowded than those of the prison near

* 14th Geo. III. Cap. XLIII. and 16th Geo. III. Cap. XLIII.

† I SUPPOSE this was to be an infirmary only till the hospital which they were building in Mill-prison was finished. The wards in this new hospital will be too low and close.

BRISTOL. Plymouth. There were two day rooms, in which many shoemakers, tailors, &c. were at work: an advantage which the prisoners at Plymouth desired, but could not obtain.—The bread was good.—There being no infirmary, the sick were attended and victualled at a small house near the prison, where seven shillings a week was paid for each patient. There were five in that house, in a dirty and offensive room.

WINCHESTER.

THERE were one thousand and sixty-two confined in the prison at Winchester, March 2, 1779. The wards are lofty and spacious. The meat and beer were good: but the bread (being made with leaven and mixed with rye) was not so good as that at Bristol.—If two or three of the rooms were to be used as work-rooms, the health of the prisoners would be promoted, and they would not be indolently lying in their hammocks in the day-time; as I observed they were, both here and at Mill-prison.

SEVERAL prisoners were confined here in the dark hole.—Forty days confinement on half allowance, in order to pay ten shillings to those that apprehend them after escapes, seems to be too severe a punishment. On such occasions, the observation of the worthy magistrates at Bern always occurs to my mind, “that every one must be “desirous of regaining liberty.”

THE hospital wards here are lofty, and upwards of twenty feet wide. Each patient had a cradle, bedding and sheets; and the surgeon paid them great attention.*

* MR. SMITH the agent also was assiduous in his department. He mentioned to me, that he thought it would be an advantage if one of their priests (two of whom were at a little distance on their parole) were permitted to attend the prisoners. This, he said, would be the means of comforting some, of aweing others, and of giving information whenever there was any just reason for complaints.

IN

IN a prison not very convenient at Forton near Gosport, there were a hundred and seventy-seven French prisoners, March 2, 1779. On that day the meat was very bad, and had been killed, as the butcher's servant said, that morning: but it was returned, and Mr. Newsham the agent procured them good meat instead of it.—Most of the six pound loaves wanted weight. I saw the bread weighed for a hundred and forty-two prisoners, and observed a deficiency of three pounds.—The straw, by long use, was turned to dust in the mattresses, and many of them here, and at other places, had been emptied to clear them of vermin. The floors of the bed-rooms and hospitals could not but be dirty and offensive, the boards having been laid rough. I took notice of this kind of bad policy in all the floors of the new prison which was then building here, and almost finished.

FRENCH
PRISONERS.

THE regulations are in the French language, and are the same with those published last war. They are evidently the original from which those printed in page 90 are translated. For the sake of greater accuracy, they will be given at the end of the book. I was informed both here and at Winchester, that they had been hung up, but were torn down.—Would it not be better, to paint them on a board, which should be fastened in some conspicuous place in every prison?

ON the prisoners complaining that the bread was too light and the meat bad, I referred them to the ninth article of the regulations, by which they are directed to apply to the agent, and (if not redressed) to the Commissioners. One of them pertinently replied, "How is that possible, when every letter is examined by the agent?"*

* I COULD have wished, that the gentlemen concerned for the American prisoners, had extended their regards also to the French, and by their attention and visits had obliged the contractors to be more careful in discharging their duty.

DEAL. THERE is a new temporary prison at Deal for French prisoners. It has an airy and spacious room below, and another above, and a large and convenient kitchen.—The regulations were hung up, and the provisions of all sorts were good. I made my first visit (as I do always) without the agents or contractors, and I had the pleasure of hearing the prisoners express their satisfaction.

FRENCH
PRISONERS.

THE prison adjoins to the naval hospital, in which the sick and wounded prisoners have the convenience of a ward, similar to that which the English prisoners have at Dunkirk and Calais. There were seventy-three in the prison, and fifteen in this ward, April 17, 1779.

CARLISLE. IN the county gaol at Carlisle, in one large room in the debtors ward, there were twelve French prisoners, May 10, 1779. They were not supplied with hammocks, as at Plymouth, Winchester, &c. but lay on straw without coverlids.—Their allowance, six pence a day.

PEMBROKE. ON the 5th and 6th of June 1779, I visited the prisons at Pembroke. There were fifty-six French prisoners in an old house adjoining to that in which the Americans were confined. Most of them had no shoes or stockings, and some were also without shirts.—They had no victualling table, nor did they know what was their allowance. There were two or three who had their allowance in money, which should have been three shillings and six pence a week each for their aliment, but six pence was deducted.—The common men, besides their allowance, received a penny a day each, by order of the French court.—They lay, in general, on the boards without straw; for there were but four hammocks in two rooms, each of which contained eighteen prisoners. Here was a court-yard, but no water or sewer.

IN the two rooms of the town gaol there were twenty French prisoners. They had some straw, but it had not been changed for many weeks. Having no supply of water in the gaol, and not being permitted, as they are at the other prison, to fetch water for themselves, they are often neglected. On Sunday at noon, no water had been brought to them from Friday evening.—They walked in a field, with a guard, about an hour every day.—Their bread was tolerable, but their beer very small, and their allowance of beef so scanty, that they preferred an allowance of cheese and butter.

PEMBROKE
FRENCH
PRISONERS.

AT a house appropriated for an hospital, there were nine French prisoners, besides five of the crew of the Culloden man of war, and three Americans. These lay in three or four rooms on straw with coverlids, but without sheets, mattresses or bedsteads.

SUCH observations as these have convinced me, that humanity and good policy require that an inspector of the prisoners of war should be appointed, who should be obliged to report quarterly their state as to health, provisions, &c.

AT CHESTER Castle, Aug. 27, 1779, there were twenty-three French prisoners of war. They were healthy and well, and made no complaint.

CHESTER.

AT LIVERPOOL, on Nov. 30, 1779, were five hundred and nine prisoners of war, all French, except fifty-six Spaniards, who were kept separate on account of the animosities between the two nations. These were all confined in four or five rooms crowded with hammocks three tier high; but they had a spacious airing ground. There were thirty-six sick in some small dirty rooms of a house at a distance from the prison. These had no sheets; but much attention seemed to be paid them by the surgeon, and they made no complaints. At the prison the bedding wanted regulation. No table of rules or victualling was hung up, or ever had been. The prisoners rejoiced at the discharge of the late agent; and from the character of the present, have every reason to expect all due attention and humanity. Their meat was fine and good; the beer good; the bread heavy.

HERE, as well as at all the other places throughout the kingdom where French prisoners are confined, I found that there was an allowance from the French court of one penny per day to all sailors and boys; two pence to boatswains, carpenters, &c.; and three pence to those of superior rank; which is regularly paid them every month. There is besides a supply from the same court of clothes, linen, and shoes to those who are destitute of these articles: a noble and exemplary provision, much to the honour of those who at present conduct public affairs in France! *

EDIN-BURGH.

I FOUND in the Castle at EDINBURGH, July 6, 1779, sixty-four French prisoners, in two rooms formerly used as barracks for the soldiers. In one of the rooms they lay on straw, two and two, in boxes against the wall, with two coverlids to each box: in the other

* I HAVE since heard that a bounty is paid by the Court of England to their prisoners in France, at the following rates, viz. captains, mates, sailing masters, surgeons, and stewards, three pence per day each; common sailors, boys, and passengers of inferior rank, three halfpence per day each; which payment is made every twenty-eight days.

room they lay on mattresses in hammocks.—The regulations as to diet, &c. were hung up. Their bread was excellent, and all other provisions good; nor was there any thing of which they made complaint.—They received every month, the allowance from the French court.—There were fourteen in the hospital, which was a house at some distance in the city, where they had bedding and sheets, and great attention was paid them by the humane surgeon and agent.

FRENCH PRISONERS IN IRELAND.

BELFAST.

ON the 13th of July 1779, there were seventy-seven French prisoners at Belfast, who had been brought there the beginning of May.—There was no table of regulations, and they seemed to be very much neglected. Sixteen of them were in the hospital, including three attendants. Many others were sick, but in the hospital there was neither room nor accommodations for them.

DUBLIN.

AT DUBLIN, July 22, 1779, there were twenty-two prisoners of war, in a good room fitted up for a temporary prison. Their bread and other provisions were very good; and they were treated with all the humanity and kindness that could be expected.

AMERICAN PRISONERS.

PLYMOUTH.
AMERICAN
PRISONERS.

IN the Mill-prison near Plymouth, there were two hundred and ninety-eight American prisoners on the 3d of February 1779. Their wards and court were spacious and convenient, and their bread, beer, and meat good.

THE

FORTON. THE Americans were equally well accommodated at Forton near Gosport, where I found two hundred and fifty-one prisoners, March 2, 1779.

AMERICAN
PRISONERS.

THE table of regulations is almost the same with that for the French prisoners. The principal difference is, that in the victualling table, the bread allowance is but one pound a day.

PEMBROKE. AT PEMBROKE, June 5, 1779, there were confined in an old house thirty-seven American prisoners. Some of them were without shoes and stockings.—There was no victualling table, or table of regulations; nor did they know what the allowance ordered by government was, except only that it was the same with the allowance for the French prisoners.—They lay on straw on the floor, and their straw had not been changed for six or seven weeks.—By liberal subscriptions, ample provision has been made for the other American prisoners: I was sorry to find that these had been entirely overlooked.

IN a house appropriated for an hospital, in which were some Englishmen and French prisoners, I found also three American prisoners very poorly accommodated.

BEFORE I leave this subject, it will be but justice to mention the care and assiduity of the Commissioners of the sick and wounded seamen, &c. in London, who have themselves visited many of the prisons in England, and dismissed such agents as had abused their trust; and who are ready to receive any information which may be for the benefit of those committed to their inspection.

SCOTLAND.

IT may not be improper, before I enter on a particular account of SCOTLAND English prisons, to mention what further occurred to me worthy of observation, in a journey into Scotland and Ireland in the summer, 1779.

THE prisons which I saw in Edinburgh, Glasgow, Perth, Stirling, Jedburgh, Air, &c. were old buildings, dirty and offensive, without court-yards, and also generally without water. They are not visited by the magistrates: and the gaolers are allowed the free sale of the most pernicious liquors.

IF a prisoner for debt declares upon oath that he has not wherewithal to maintain himself, the creditor must aliment him within ten days after notice is given for that purpose, with at least three pence a day,* but generally the magistrates order six pence.—By the process of Cessio bonorum,† a debtor after being a month in prison, may obtain his liberty, and be secured against execution for any previous debts, by making a surrender of all his effects to be divided among his creditors: though if he afterwards comes into better circumstances, his effects may be attached for the payment of those SCOTLAND. debts. This compassionate law prevents a creditor putting his debtor in prison, unless he has good reason to believe he is acting fraudulently.

PERJURY is not frequent in Scotland. The oath, and the form of administering it, are very solemn. The witness, holding up his right hand, repeats the following words after the judge:—"By God himself, and as you shall answer to God at the great day of judgment, you shall declare the truth, and nothing but the truth, in so far as you know, or shall be asked at you."—The depositions are read over by the clerk, and signed by the witnesses and the judge.*—It is enacted by the 20th of George II. that "the circuit-courts shall be regularly held twice in every year, within that part of Great Britain called Scotland, and the Judges thereof shall continue by the space of six days at the least, at each town or place where the circuit-courts shall be held, for the dispatch of business."†

THERE are in Scotland but few prisoners; this is partly owing to the shame and disgrace annexed to imprisonment; partly to the solemn manner in which oaths are administered, and trials and executions conducted; and partly to the general sobriety of manners produced by the care which parents and ministers take to instruct the rising generation. ‡

I AM indebted to Andrew Crofbie, Esq. for an account, from the Clerk of the Justiciary, of the executions from January 1768 to July 1779, which shall be inserted in a table at the end of the book; from which it will appear, that in ten years and a half there have been only thirty-nine executed, and eighteen pardoned.

SCOTLAND.

IN Scotland, executions are not delayed after conviction or sentence; a delay which is often equally injurious to the criminal and to society. Here, the punishment of the offender is made to appear the immediate consequence of his crime.*

ALL criminals are tried out of irons; and when acquitted, immediately discharged in open court.

IN the Tolbooth at Edinburgh,† July 6, 1779, there were thirteen debtors and nine felons; and in the Canongate Tolbooth, there were five

“in every parish” in Scotland, and the presbytery has the superintendence of the execution of this act, which has been carefully attended to. Many schools are also settled by donations and legacies, and by the society for propagating christian knowledge; so that no parish is without a school, and in some there are four or five. In the southern parts of Scotland, it is very rare that you meet with any person that cannot both read and write. It is scandalous for any person not to be possessed of a Bible; which is always read in the parochial schools.

* BY the act made in king William's first session, 1695, Chap. IV. all capital crimes are restricted to the trial and sentence within three Suns; and the “Execution, which is hereby left to the discretion of the Judge, not exceeding nine days after sentence.”

DUBLIN. I WAS happy in finding at Dublin a new gaol (Newgate) almost ready for the removal of the prisoners into more airy and convenient apartments, in which the shocking intercourse of the two sexes which took place in the old prison, will be avoided. This new prison is one hundred and seventy feet in length, and has separate courts for men and women. The cells on the first and second floors are about twelve feet by eight, and on the upper floor twelve by four, all arched with brick, to prevent danger from fire.* Besides these there are dungeons, but I hope they will never be used. It might be best to convert the chapel at the top of the house into an infirmary; for the sick rooms are too small, and likely to produce infection.

IN the men's court there is a pump which supplies good water, and I suppose the women's court will be provided with another. Great attention should be paid to air and cleanliness in the stair-cases, and the narrow passages* leading to the cells, to prevent them from becoming offensive and infectious.

THE criminals in the gaols of Ireland are very numerous; one reason of which may be, that in this country there are no houses of correction;† and another, that acquitted persons are continued in confinement till they have discharged their fees to the clerk of the crown, or peace, the sheriff, gaoler and turnkey.‡ Even boys almost

* THEY are three feet and a half wide, and the staircases only two feet one inch.

† IT may be an exception, that in a house adjoining to Norogate there were several finns, &c. and in another small house adjoining to the work-house in Dublin, I found eleven young creatures who for small offences were confined with outrageous lunatics of both sexes. The magistrates seem to have overlooked a compassionate clause of their legislature the 3d of George III. Chap. XXVIII. "that persons of insane mind "and outrageous behaviour" are not to go in common with the other prisoners.

‡ THERE is an act "for discharging without fees persons who shall be acquitted "of offences for which they are or shall be indicted, and for making a compensation "to sheriffs, gaolers, clerks of the crown, and clerks of the peace, for such fees," by a presentment on the respective counties. But many that are acquitted receive no benefit by it, because the presentment must be made by the foreman of the petty jury to the grand jury, and confirmed by the Judges of assize; and the sum presented at one assize must not exceed "ten pounds if it be a county at large; "or five pounds, if it be a county of a city or county of a town." 3d George III. Cap. V. p. 100, 101.

DUBLIN. naked, and under the age of twelve, are sometimes confined two years for these fees, though amounting to no more than about forty shillings. How surprising is it, that any kingdom can endure such injustice! It is a particular aggravation of it, that the prisoners thus confined generally lose, at the same time, their allowance of bread. I have heard that Mr. Justice Aston always ordered the acquitted prisoners to be discharged.—Some boys were lately released from the county gaol at Kilmainham, paying half fees; and others from Newgate, the sheriffs of Dublin generously relinquishing their fees. But as those boys had been associated with the most profligate and abandoned felons for many months, I did not in the least wonder to find that some of them returned to their former habitation in a few days.

ON passing this prison frequently, I could not avoid observing officers from the recruiting regiments waiting at the doors and windows, to receive either the offenders who were permitted to enlist, or any of their associates. When the excessive profligacy and daring wickedness of this set of people is considered, the most melancholy apprehensions must be entertained, of the dreadful consequences likely to result from their mixture with those who may have had a sober education, and have entered voluntarily into the service of their country; and likewise of the danger to society in general, from turning loose such a set of wretches at the close of a war.

OUR English prisons have also contributed their share towards recruiting the army, enlisting being the condition on which many have obtained their release from confinement, or immunity from some other punishment. I shall make no farther remark on this practice, but but that if it be a necessary one, the legislature may receive some satisfaction from the effects of their late salutary laws, respecting the health of prisoners. If this mode had been adopted while prisons were in their former state, it would have been the occasion of carrying the most fatal diseases into the midst of our seamen and soldiers. DUBLIN.

THERE is a new Marshalsea prison in Dublin. The first stone was laid, as appears by the inscription, July 3, 1775. Here were about sixty prisoners.—In the city Marshalsea, which is a very old building, there were fifty-five debtors. Many debtors in this and the other prisons, being not alimented, are objects of compassion. But the most needy of them are relieved by the care of a humane society at Dublin, similar to that called the Thatched-House Society in London.—Such societies deserve the highest praise. I wish however to recommend to compassion other prisoners, who though they seem to deserve assistance less, yet need it more, to save them from the ruin to which the bad state of the Irish prisons exposes them.

I AM sorry to mention the common and pernicious use of spirituous liquors in the Irish prisons.—In Newgate, and in the county gaols that I visited, there were no tables of fees hung up.

THERE is an Irish act for preserving the health of prisoners, passed in the 17th and 18th of George III. Chap. XXVIII. similar to the English act* for the same purpose. But I did not find it “hung up” in

* THIS differs from the English act in one important circumstance. The English act requires “the walls and cielings of the several cells and wards, both of the debtors “ and the felons, and also of any other rooms used by the prisoners in their respective “ gaol

HULKS. IN my former work, p. 75, I ventured to pass some censures on the management of convicts committed to hard labour on the Thames; and in a subsequent visit I was still more convinced of the faults I had observed. The effects of these became so alarming, as to attract the notice of Parliament. A public enquiry was instituted, by which it appeared, that from August 1776, when the convicts were first put on board the vessels, to March 26, 1778, out of six hundred and “gaols and prisons, where felons are usually confined, to be scraped and white-washed, “once in the year at least, to be regularly washed and kept clean;” &c. whereas the Irish act requires the same precautions in the cells, wards, and rooms of gaols and prisons without restriction; for the clause “where felons are usually confined” is omitted. I have known it pleaded as an excuse for not white-washing and keeping clean prisons in England where only debtors or petty offenders have been confined, that they were not obliged to it by the act of parliament.

thirty-two prisoners who had been received, one hundred and seventy-six had died. It is with pleasure that I can now give an account, which will shew in a striking light the beneficial effects of this parliamentary interference, and the obligations the public are under to the Committee appointed on this occasion, and particularly to its chairman, Sir Charles Bunbury.

HULKS.

At my last visit, Nov. 16, 1779, there were at Woolwich, for the reception of convicts, an old India man, called the Justitia; and a frigate, the Censor. In the former were two hundred and fifty-six; and in the latter, two hundred and fifty. That which was first called the Justitia, is now converted into an hospital ship, in which were twenty patients.—Another, called the Reception, was empty: in this, convicts are examined by the surgeon, and continue four days, before they are sent either to the hulks, or to the hospital ship.*

THE prisoners on board the Justitia looked healthy and well; the decks were clean. They had bedding; their provisions were good of the sort; and there were not any (as at my former visits) without shoes and stockings.—I found the Censor, below deck, cleaner than the Justitia; yet, on carefully viewing the convicts, they had not so healthy and contented an aspect as those in the other; and a much greater proportion of this ship's company was sent to the hospital. This created in me a suspicion that something was wrong. I examined all their provisions, bedding, &c. and found that they were the same as on board the Justitia. It would be highly proper that a table of their stated allowance should be hung up, and scales, weights, and measures assigned them,† to check the purfers who give out their

Of the few who were very sick, I found their irons were off. The cleanliness and quietness of the hospital do honour to the conductor. It is to be wished that the patients had better nourishment, as that in many cases would be more salutary than medical prescriptions.

THERE were about one hundred and fifty at work in the Warren; most of them clothed in a brown uniform.

THE situation of these unhappy people is greatly altered for the better. Yet their bread allowance should be half a pound more; for one pound a day is too little, especially for those who work, although they have an extra allowance of beer. There should also be to each bed, in winter, an additional blanket.

GAOL FEVER.

I SHALL take the liberty here to subjoin a few additional remarks on the Gaol fever; in which, if I shall appear to have invaded the province of the gentlemen of the faculty, I hope to be pardoned, from the consideration that my experience in this matter may in some respect supply my want of other means of knowledge.

If it were asked, what is the cause of the gaol fever? it would in general be readily replied, "the want of fresh air and cleanliness." But as I have found in a few prisons abroad, cells and dungeons as offensive and dirty as any I have observed in this country, where, however, this distemper was unknown, I am obliged to look out for some additional cause for its production. I am of opinion, that the sudden change of diet and lodging so affects the spirit of new convicts, that the general causes of putrid fevers exert an immediate effect upon them. Hence it is common to see them sicken and die in a short time, with very little apparent illness. Convicts are generally stout robust young men, who have been accustomed to free diet, tolerable lodgings, and vigorous exercise. These are ironed, and thrust into close offensive dungeons, some of them without straw or other bedding; in which they continue, in winter, sixteen or eighteen hours out of the twenty-four, in utter inactivity, and immersed in the noxious effluvia of their own bodies. On this account, the gaol distemper is always observed to reign more in our prisons during winter than summer; contrary, I presume, to the nature of other putrid diseases. Their diet is at the same time low and scanty; and the powers of life soon become incapable of resisting so many causes of sickness and despair.

* PURSERS weights are known on board ships to be two ounces in a pound short, their measures in proportion.

AFTER the gaol fever has prevailed in a prison, nothing, probably, will be so effectual in destroying all remains of infection, as the mode of fumigation practised by the ingenious Dr. Lind for infected ships. I shall therefore extract some of the most important particulars of this process from the account with which the doctor favoured me.

“ CHARCOAL fires should be lighted in the morning, and allowed “ to remain till evening, and half a pound of brimstone thrown upon “ each, their smoke in the mean time being closely confined. They “ may be made in iron pots.—This fumigation should be repeated “ every day for a fortnight. Every evening after the fumigation, “ the ports and hatchways should be opened, and the inside of the “ ship washed with warm vinegar: and after the last fumigation,

GAOL

“ before the men return to the ship, the decks should be thoroughly “ scraped and cleaned. If the infection has been very violent, the “ parts of the ship most exposed to it may also be white-washed.— “ Every thing ragged and dirty should be destroyed, as also the “ clothes and bedding of such as brought the infection into the ship,
 “ the bedding of such as have died of the fever, and unless the infec“ tion has been very mild, the bedding of such as have had the fever “ though recovered. The remaining clothes and bedding should be “ purified by being exposed twice a week to the steams of the brim“ stone and charcoal; or when the brimstone might be supposed to “ injure the clothes, they may be hung up in a close place, exposed “ to the smoke of tobacco strewed on charcoal fires. Linens, and “ such articles as will admit of being wet, should after the first “ fumigation be steeped for several hours in cold water or leys, be well “ washed, and then dried in the open air.—If, during the fortnight
 “ of this fumigation, any person is taken ill of the fever, the fortnight “ should again commence from the day on which such person leaves
 “ the ship.—Strict attention should be paid to the cleanliness of the “ men both in their persons and apparel: such as are sluggish and “ dirty should be made to bathe and clean themselves; and a sufficient “ quantity of slops should be issued, that every man may have a “ change of clothes.”*

* I HAVE observed in prisons abroad a very cheap and pleasant fumigation, which surprisingly corrects the bad air. I suppose it is the same as is used in Roman catholic churches, viz. juniper berries thrown upon burning coals in a chaffing-dish.

E N G L A N D.

THE TOWER is a strong fortress, and the only prison in LONDON.
England for state delinquents of rank. The care of it is committed to an officer called the Constable of the Tower, who has under him a lieutenant, deputy-lieutenant called the governor, and many other officers, among whom are forty warders, whose uniform is the same with the king's yeomen of the guards. Nineteen of these warders have separate houses well furnished, in any of which, as the governor is pleased to order, the state delinquents may be confined; and the custom has been to assign them two of the best rooms on the first floor. Sometimes they are committed to close confinement; but in general they are at liberty to walk in the area of the Tower, attended always by a warder.

THERE have been no prisoners here for a few years past; and when there are any, their fate is soon determined by a legal trial, and consequently their confinement can never be long. Six shillings and eight pence a day is allowed by government for their subsistence, but they seldom accept this allowance.

IN this fortress, besides the houses just mentioned, there are several public offices and store-houses; such, particularly, as the office of Ordnance, the Jewel-office, the Mint, and buildings for holding artillery and arms.

THE felons apartments are the better for not having glass windows. The wall being three feet and a half thick, in some measure breaks the force of the wind. The felons five night-rooms have double doors; if one of them was an iron-grate door (as at the new gaol at Horsham) and locked up in the day-time, the rooms would freshen and be better ventilated.

NORFOLK.

AT Lent Assize, 1779, twenty-seven prisoners were carried to Thetford, and confined there four nights, most of them in the dungeon.

NORWICH CITY AND COUNTY GAOL.

THE prisoners bread allowance now twelve ounces: straw, £1:6:0 a year. Clauses of act against spirituous liquors are hung up.

THE women have still their low night-room, and no separate day-room. The room adjoining, improperly used for a stable, would be very convenient.

GAOL-DELIVERY being only once a year, three prisoners must be confined from eight to ten months before their trial: as two were committed Nov. 6, 1778, and one woman Aug. 22, 1778.

1779, March 31, Debtors 19. Felons &c. 5.

NORWICH CITY BRIDEWELL.

THE prisoners were at work. The daily allowance is two penny-worth of bread. The keeper's salary, £25. Here is no separate court for the women.

I DID not know, till this visit, that here are dungeons down fifteen steps; in one part four for the men; and in another part, three for the women. In these, as in the other rooms, are cribs. It is to be hoped that Gentlemen who have made many improvements in their gaol, will be so considerate as to order these cells to be barred to all, unless to such as are very refractory and disobedient.

SWAFFHAM. No alteration, but now licence for beer:— and clauses against spirituous liquors not hung up. Straw, 20s. a year. Keeper's salary, £16. Surgeon, Mr. Day: he makes a bill.

1779, March 29, Prisoners 11, including the Lunatic.

WYMUNDHAM. No alteration, but the dungeon arched with brick. It is fifteen feet and a half by eight feet, and six feet high: a dirt floor: has two apertures at the top, of a foot diameter. The Justices seem to have overlooked a clause in a late act of parliament, "to prevent the prisoners from being kept under ground, whenever they can do it conveniently,"* as there is abundant room on the premises.

In the room up stairs were four dirty pale and sick women at work, with padlocks on their legs, though never out in the court except on Sundays. The very small quantity of straw on the floor was worn almost to dust.

1779, March 30, Prisoners 5.

AYLSHAM. In the floor of the work or day-room is a trap-door into a dungeon, which is nine feet and a half by six feet. Above stairs are three rooms not secure. No fire-place: no straw: the court not secure; prisoners in it only on Sundays: no water: no sewer: no implements for work: no allowance, but two pennyworth of bread a day to vagrants. Keeper's salary, £13:6:8.

COUNTY GAOL AT WARWICK.

THE Justices of this county have taken the gaol and bridewell under consideration, and propose that debtors and felons, and also men and women, in both, shall be entirely separated. A chapel and infirmary also are designed. May it not be hoped that Gentlemen so considerate will not continue the damp and offensive dungeon, which has only an aperture level with the court, of three feet two inches diameter.

THERE were hung up in the debtor's hall some rules against profaneness, rioting, and drunkenness, with penalties annexed; but I was sorry to find among them that "Every debtor at his or her first coming must pay for garnish 2s. 6d."

A TABLE of FEES to be taken by the Gaoler or Keeper of his Majesty's Gaol for the Town of Nottingham; of Prisoners confined for Debt therein, as settled by us—Justices of the Peace—on Thursday the Tenth Day of April, One Thousand Seven Hundred and Seventy-seven—as follows:

For the lodging and board of each prisoner, when he lodges and diets with the gaoler, per week , seven shillings. — —	0	7	0
For each prisoner when such prisoner hath a room and a bed of the gaoler and diets himself, by the week, two shillings. —
For each prisoner when he hath a room of the gaoler, and finds his own bed and diets, by the week, six pence. — —	0	13	4
For the discharge of each prisoner, thirteen shillings and four pence. —
For the turnkey for the same, one shilling and four pence. —	0	1	4

THE gaoler is to take notice, that if he takes more than the above sums he is liable to forfeit to the party aggrieved for each offence the sum of fifty pounds, (exclusive of the penalties inflicted by former acts).

AND the said Justices do order and direct, that the clerk of the peace for this town and the county thereof, do as soon as conveniently may be, put up a copy of this table in some conspicuous open place within the gaol of the said town, in order that the same may be inspected as occasions may require, and be preserved within the said gaol and resorted to by the said prisoners at all reasonable times in the day-time without paying any thing for the same, after the original table (which is now ingrossed on parchment, and is intended to be filed amongst the records of this court) has been reviewed and confirmed, or moderated by the Judge of Assize at the next Assizes to be holden for this town.

1779, May 17. The prisoners were in the county gaol, and they were repairing this prison, for the cross-wall had fallen in. But the spot on which it is built is so confined, that it cannot be convenient. Only two rooms are designed for work and lodging for both sexes; and as there is no court, the ~~fewers~~ must make these rooms very unhealthy. It might have been better if the Gentlemen had thought of building the bridewell in one of the two very spacious gardens adjoining to the county gaol, and occupied by the gaoler; then, if they had no chapel, the prisoners (as those in Skrewsbury bridewell) might have the privilege of public worship in the county gaol.

C O N C L U S I O N.

HAVING thus, according to my ability, completed the design I had engaged in, it was my intention immediately to have retired to the tranquil enjoyment of that easy competence a kind Providence has bestowed upon me:—happy in the idea, that I had in some degree been the instrument of alleviating the sufferings of a numerous and unhappy set of people, and had excited the attention of my countrymen to an important object of civil policy. May I be permitted, too, to say, that I felt additional satisfaction, in having avoided giving any possible occasion to impute what I had done to self-interested views. For as nothing but a consciousness of duty could have enabled me to go through all the disagreeable scenes which lay in my way, so I had the happiness of being placed out of the reach of any other incitements.

My resolution of resigning all further public concern in this matter was, however, broken in upon by the urgent persuasions of some, who were pleased to think me a proper person to assist in the superintendence of one of those great and useful plans I had recommended to the notice of the public. I was the more readily induced to comply with their sollicitations, from a confidence that the persons associated with me had the same general ideas with myself respecting the execution of the proposed plan, and would co-operate in it with the greatest zeal and intelligence.

It remains now to be tried, how far the wise and humane intentions of the legislature can be accomplished in this country; and in what degree we can avail ourselves of those lights, which it was the particular purpose of my foreign journeys to collect.

T A B L E I.

De par les Commissaires pour le Soins des Malades & des Blessés de la Marine, et pour l'Echange des Prisonniers de Guerre.

REGLES que tous les Prisonniers de Guerre, dans la Grande Bretagne, & l'Irlande, doivent observer.

LES ordres donnés par l'Agent, àiant soin des prisonniers, doivent être observés sans réplique ou dispute. Qu'aucun des prisonniers ose insulter; menacer, maltraiter, & encore moins frapper le guichetier, ni personne par l'Agent employé aux affaires de la prison, sous peine de la punition qu'ordonneront Messieurs les Commissaires, et de perdre leur tour d'être échangés; d'être étroitement enfermés, et privés de la moitié de leur vivres.

Tous les prisonniers, lors que l'agent en fera la revue, répondront à leurs noms; et si dans la liste donnée à l'agent quelque erreur se trouve, ils l'indiqueront, afin de la corriger; et ainsi prévoir la confusion qui résulteroit des méprises des noms.

Pour les prisonniers refusants de répondre à leurs noms à la revue, seront punis par la privation de leurs vivres, jusqu'à ce qu'ils s'y soumettent.

IV.

Si il arrive du dommage aux lieux où les prisonniers seront gardés, soit en voulant s'échapper, ou autrement, de propos délibéré; les frais de la réparation seront payés des des vivres de ceux qui auront ainsi contrevenu ; et si les coupables ne peuvent être découverts, tous les prisonniers ensemble contribueront de leurs vivres, aux frais de cette réparation.

V.

QUICONQUE s'échappera de prison, étant répris, y sera mis au cachot ; et n'y aura que demi-ration de vivres, jusqu'à ce qu'il aura ainsi payé les frais faits pour le saisir et le ramener ; et de plus il perdra son tour d'échange ; un officier ainsi contrevenant, sera dès-lors regardé et traité comme simple matelot.

VI.

Il est défendu de se battre, se quereller, ou faire désordre dans les prisons, ou aux endroits où il sera permis aux prisonniers de prendre l'air, sous peine de punition selon que l'offense l'exigera.

VII.

LES prisons seront tenues nettes & propres par les matelots, et cela tour à tour, comme l'agent l'ordonnera ; & tout matelot qui refusera ce service à son tour, & qui en aura été averti, sera privé de ses vivres jusqu'à ce qu'il s'y soumette.

VIII.

LES prisonniers doivent informer l'agent, des hardes, ou autres choses dont ils peuvent avoir besoin, et pour lesquels ils auront de quoi payer ; et l'agent a ordre non seulement de permettre qu'ils en soient fournis, mais aussi d'avoir un soin tout particulier, qu'on ne leur en impose dans les prix.

IX.

DANS chaque prison les prisonniers pourront nommer trois, ou cinq d'entre eux, et les changer quand il leur plaira, pour l'examen des vivres ; afin de voir s'ils sont bons, & s'ils ont leur ration, soit pour le poids, soit pour la mesure ; suivant la table d'avitaillement ci-dessous. Et s'il se trouve quelque sujet de plainte, soit sur la manière de les appretêr, servir, ou dans quelqu'autre chose ; ils doivent, avec bienveillance, le faire savoir à l'agent ; qui, trouvant la plainte fondée, doit immédiatement y mettre ordre. S'il le néglige, ils doivent en avertir Messieurs les Commissaires, qui ne manqueront pas de leur rendre justice, à tous égards.

LES boutiquiers (excepté ceux qui trafiquent dans des choses qu'il ne convient pas de vendre à des prisonniers,) seront permis de rester à la grande porte, depuis dix heures heures du matin jusqu'à trois heures de l'après midi, pour vendre leur marchandises, à tels prisonniers, qui sont en fonds pour les payer sur le champ.

XI.

CELUI d'entre les prisonniers qui osera par ce moyen procurer des liqueurs, ou autre choses &c. qui ne conviennent pas à un prisonnier d'avoir, ou qui recevra, ou livrera aucune lettre, fera puni de l'abus qu'il aura fait de cette indulgence.

T A B L E IV.

AN ACCOUNT of the NUMBER of PRISONERS in the Gaols and Prisons of ENGLAND and WALES, at the Time they were visited in 1779.

AS some County gaols are also the county bridewells, where petty offenders are not always separated from felons; in those places I include petty offenders under the article felons &c. The reason of my distinguishing the women debtors, is to shew that a room or two in the gaoler's house may probably be sufficient for them, instead of a separate ward, as proposed in my general plan for a county gaol (edit. 1.) I have omitted mentioning all those prisons in which, at the time of my visiting, there were no persons confined.

Total,

As soon as I have visited all the County gaols, and I think all the County bridewells, as also many of the corporation and private-property prisons, yet as there are some few of the two latter which I did not see in 1779, we may add sixty more prisoners on their account; and then probably we shall have nearly the average number of persons confined at one time in the prisons of this kingdom.
